Radio Speech is Costly Quote Coolidge $2500 Toll

Washington, April 21.—Telephone, telegraph and electric and wireless corporations work together to "sue up" the radio and make profits for the radio. Nathan Burkan, counsel for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers told a sub-committee of the senate patents committee.

The sub-committee is conducting hearings on the Dill bill to exempt radio broadcasters from song copyright restrictions.

Burkan pictured the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Westinghouse Electric and Radio Corporation of America companies as all working together.

"After a program," Burkan said, "you hear the announcement: 'Send us a wire and tell us how you liked the songs and what songs you want to hear.'"

"What's that for?" "To make money for the Western Union Telegraph company," he said. "Broadcasting is done for the advertising in it. The broadcasters charge $2.00 for ten minutes of advertising."

Frank A. Boland, counsel for the National Hotel Association, told the committee that the music composers maintained a "trust" and that they were guilty of "price fixing."

Burkan also related to the committee a report that an effort had been made by radio companies to charge President Coolidge $2500 to broadcast his speech from New York on Lincoln's birthday.
