

FOUR HORSEMEN OF NOTRE DAME STEP ON STANFORD MEN

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Trampled wreckage of Stanford's football bowls covered the turf of Rose bowl field today, grim evidence of the ruthless ride of the four horsemen who yesterday led Notre Dame to a 27 to 10 inter-sectional gridiron victory.

Yet it was by no means the smashing impact of an overwhelming force that confounded the Stanford university players. They, not the Indiana invaders, had the advantage of weight and power and the ten points they were able to pile up were torn from the enemy by sheer charging strength.

East outwitted west, Notre Dame was always where Stanford should have been, but was not. Such was the story.

Yardage Tabulated.

By all the rules of football mathematics Stanford should have won. Coach Glenn Warner's men gained 184 yards from scrimmage; Kuntze Rockne's swift South Bendlers gained 134. The Cardinals registered 17 first downs; Notre Dame made 7. Stanford completed 12 out of 17 attempted forward passes; Notre Dame completed three out of seven. Notre Dame netted only 48 yards with forward passes; Stanford gained 146. Rockne's men were penalized four times, for a total of 30 yards, while Warner's suffered but a single 15 yard penalty.

But one mistake may wreck a ton of statistics, and there were several Stanford mistakes. Notre Dame took advantage of all of them and won.

The easterners opened modestly, Rockne starting the game with his second string men. Stanford showed this aggregation steadily astern until Rockne took fright and whistled for his four horsemen. They trotted on the field with their first string companions, but the first period did not end until Cuddeback had scored a place kick for Stanford.

Score in Second.

In the second period Notre Dame scored by driving the ball over the goal line after repeated gains through the Cardinal defense. Layden, one of the four horsemen, carried the ball. Crowley failed to convert.

After that Stanford's mistakes opened the door of opportunity and there was always some one waiting to leap across the threshold.

First Layden intercepted a Stanford pass and sprinted 70 yards to the chalk line, Crowley converting. In the third period, Solomon, Stanford's quarterback, fumbled a punt on his own 20-yard line. Huntington shoved him aside as he tried to recover, picked up the pigskin and ran unopposed to a touchdown, Crowley again converting.

In the same period Stanford scored again, and for the last time, when Walker passed the ball over the line to Shipkey after the hefty Nevers had shoved his way to Notre Dame's eight yard line.

Stanford Threatens.

Stanford came close to another touchdown in the fourth period but lost the ball on downs less than a foot from the goal line.

Then came another Cardinal error. Layden intercepted the pass Nevers had intended for a teammate and galloped 65 yards down the field for Notre Dame's final touchdown.

Nevers' line bucking power made him the star of the Cardinal offense. Cuddeback's far famed toe accounted for four of Stanford's ten tallies. Layden's spectacular runs outshone any other individual performance on the Notre Dame side, though Crowley's toe and his effective carrying ability made him scintillate alongside of his fellow members of the widely heralded cavalry quartet.

Prizes aggregating $200 in value will be distributed among the winners. No accidents marred the event, according to Van Kennerly, starter and checker at the station in Eugene.

Starting from Eighth and William, the course ran west to Elmira, then to Lorne, to Cottage Grove, to Goshen, to Lovell and back to Springfield, from there in to Eugene by the east bank of the river and the Ferry street bridge.

They returned to South Bend only to come east again a week later to conquer Princeton. Back at their home field.

PHOENIX LOSS BY COLD SEEN AS LOW

Although the pheasants and other wild birds were in a bad way when the cold weather moderated and the snow melted, it is not expected that there was any considerable loss as a result, according to Rodney Roach, deputy state game warden for Lane.

"The quick disappearance of the snow enabled many of the fabled birds to obtain food and this undoubtedly saved many thousands," the warden states. "Some reports of the killing of quail by crows were received. The quail unable to fly had sought shelter under brush cover and it was here that the crows caught the birds."

"As the snow was dry this also saved many of the pheasants. Wet snow usually results in freezing of the tail feathers of the game birds which prevent them from flying," Mr. Roach said.

The Cincinnati Reds appear to have only six regulars around which to build a baseball team for the 1925 race in the National league. Burns and Duncan have disappeared from the outfield. Jake Dauter is dead and Caveney and Bolne have been waived out of the league, although they still remain in the club's roster. Luque, Rixey and Sheehan will do the pitching. Bubbles Hargraves will catch. Babe Pinelli will play third base and Eddie Roush will appear in the outfield. There are several vacancies.

CALIFORNIA DOWNS PENNSYLVANIA BY SCORE OF 14 TO 0

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The University of California football team, undefeated for five consecutive years, was crowned with 1924 post-season honors here yesterday when it defeated the University of Pennsylvania eleven, rated as one of the best football teams on the Atlantic coast, by a score of 14 to 0—two touchdowns with added points.

A crowd of more than 50,000 saw the Californians outclass, outrun and outkick the Pennsylvanians.

Touchdown Speedy

The first touchdown was scored within seven minutes after the game started. The Quaker players interfered with Inlay on a fair catch on the Pennsylvania 40-yard line. No. one picked it up and ran 25 yards to touch the ball, so Dixon, California, kicked off on their one-yard line. Penn's 14-yard line where he was forced out of bounds. California refused the penalty for interference and took the ball on the 14-yard line. Three-line plunges by John Young, California, shoved over the touchdown and Carlson kicked the goal.

California took the offensive in the second period and by a series of short passes and a 29-yard run by Inlay took the ball far into Quaker territory. With a touchdown in eight the game ended the second period with California on Penn's four-yard line. The Quakers came back with a reverse play and heavy line plunges by Field, Leath and Thomas carried the ball after receiving. Kieftoff on their one-yard line up the field to California's one-yard line. On the fourth down with a yard to go, Penn lost the ball on downs and with it a chance to tie the score.

Passes Checked.

The Californians were able to withstand the famous passing attack in the fourth period when they broke it up and left the Quakers wondering. Taking the ball on downs after breaking up several Penn overhead attacks on the California 45-yard line, the western team swung into an offensive once more.

The Californians on four bucks through the center of the Quaker line like a battering ram carried the ball from the 40-yard line to a touchdown. The last plunge of ten yards was made right through McGee, the famous all-American tackle of the Quakers. Carlson's goal kick for California added the 14th and final point of the game.
