

FLOODS SWEEP SOUTH; SNOWS COVERING EAST

List Of Dead And Missing In South Mounts To Ten Today

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—With the list of dead and missing standing at ten, railroad and motor traffic demoralized and a heavy property loss sustained, the crest of the flood, which has been acute in several southern states since Saturday night, today was believed passing.

In southern Georgia where the menace and damage probably has been greatest, many streams were receding.

No estimate of property damage was available.

Scores of towns throughout the southern portion of Georgia virtually were isolated.

SNOWSTORM IN EAST
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Another $3,000,000 snowstorm swept New York today, causing the marshalling of 417 plows and between 10,000 and 12,000 shovelers to keep the main thoroughfares open. The snow was approaching a depth of six inches before the full force was in action, shortly before daylight.

The work of removing the new fall was made more difficult by the fact that remnants of the last snowstorm which cost the city approximately $3,000,000, remained in some side streets, despite the labor of the street cleaning forces.

INVESTIGATION TO BRING SENSATIONS

situation and to arrange an orderly procedure if possible.

The open meeting was called for that purpose, but did not succeed and numerous suggestions were made and some difference of opinions arose as to how the body should proceed. Senator Johnson stood alone for sending broadcast throughout the state a call for anyone who had any charge to make against the prohibition department, and the enlightening to the representatives of the prohibition department and giving them a chance to refute. All other members of the committee were for first getting the records from Cleaver, and he was ordered to produce these for them.

To Check Records.

Cleaver's records and his record will be checked against records to be furnished by the district attorney's association. The latter have already been prepared for 1923 and Helgeson was requested to have them prepared for 1924. These will show the amount in fines and the number of prosecutions in each county for which the prohibition department is responsible.

Cleaver at first objected to producing his record or giving the names of his agents without the consent of the governor, declaring that the governor is head of the department. But he was informed by Chairman Garland that the committee would get them anyway. Cleaver said he would co-operate in any way he could.

"And do you know something about a gentleman named 'Weinstein,'" Harn asked.

"I certainly do," Herwig replied.

Glad to Tell.

He also said he would be glad to tell the committee a lot of other things.

"My cards are absolutely on the table," he declared. "The Anti-Saloon league is absolutely committed to the state prohibition department law."

He explained that the purpose of the department was to supplement the work of law enforcement in those counties where prohibition is not well enforced, not in the counties where it is enforced.

Klamath and Grant counties came in for some rough treatment last night. Governor Pierce declared Klamath county was utterly without enforcement of the prohibition law owing to the lack of sympathy on the part of the county officials, and that he and Mr. Herwig had paved the way there by holding a series of meetings with the result that conditions are much better. George L. Cleaver said that when his men went into Grant county they found one of the law enforcement officers drunk.

Session is Closed.

After hearing Cleaver, Governor Pierce, Herwig and Joseph Helgeson, Polk county district attorney, in an open session, the committee went into executive session.

The purpose of the executive session was to outline the scope of the Cleaver declared that his report was his opening statement in the probe.

Investigation Approved.

Governor Pierce told the committee he wanted the most careful investigation to be made, asserting "that we have nothing to hide." He promised a full accounting of his $4000 secret fund, allowed by appropriation. Governor Olcott, said Pierce, had $10,000 but used $23,000, while Governor Whytecombe had $10,000.

Pierce was asked if Herwig was a salaried employe of the prohibition department and replied in the negative.

"I don't want to be misunderstood," he said. "You will find two checks made out to Herwig, but these will be explained."

There was some air of mystery about this for Garland relief.

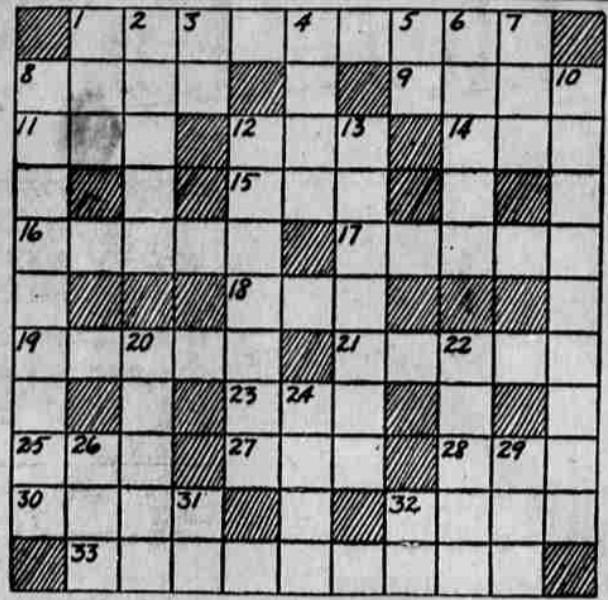

"I don't think it would be for the good of the service for these checks to be discussed publicly."

Attorney is Questioned

District Attorney Helgeson of Polk county was questioned at length. He said the district attorneys of the state had made no charges against Cleaver. He deplored the reading of the state prohibition law, which he said, divides authority between the prohibition commissioner and the

TODAY

Smith, and Ambrose Geary, all young, were put to death in the electric chair on Thursday night. They had murdered a woman. They died in the usual way. One told the small gathering that he was innocent, which he was not.

Geary, least concerned of all, walked to the electric chair smoking a cigarette, carrying in one hand a picture of a young woman, a crucifix in the other. He handed the crucifix to the chaplain, kissed the photograph two or three times and died without a word.

Lack of imagination enables young men to die in that fashion. Lack of imagination also makes it possible for them to commit murder.

And lack of imagination enables the public to follow the murderer's example and put him to a violent death.

Our government says the financial arrangement in Paris, too deep for the average man, will give to the United States its fair share of the German money, and, at the same time, will not tie us up in any way or make us responsible for German payments or anything else.

That's good news, and let us hope there is no "if" in it. The Europeans are clever gentlemen and their intense satisfaction with the settlement might make suspicious minds uneasy.

Thirty-five years ago Ogden Mills, very rich, built the Mills building in Wall Street, New York, ten stories high. It was considered a marvelous structure. Now the Equitable Trust company will tear it down and build a thirty-four story building in its place, to cost $12,000,000.

There is nothing unusual about the thirty-four story building. The interesting thing is the Equitable lease on the new building, which runs well into the next century, long before the lease ends the new building will be torn down.

By that time the flying machine will have replaced the suburban train, and all buildings will be done over to meet flying machine conditions.

And by that time our single tax man may have persuaded the world that the only trouble with our civilization is allowing individuals to own land.

MRS. FERGUSON IS INAUGURATED

this will not be a bad idea for others to adopt, even though their training and learning may be more than mine. I shall endeavor to make his administration a success by team work. There is so much to do that no one mind can bring relief to the people. What Texas needs more than anything else at this time is a strong pull, a steady pull, and a pull all together.

Spiritual Side Stressed

Progress in matters spiritual as well as material are to be strived for by the first woman governor of the state, she said.

"If the example can be set for a higher standard of morals and purity of life and conduct in public servants of the people, I shall feel my administration has not been in vain," Mrs. Ferguson continued. "Let us not forget that it is more glorious to lay treasures in Heaven than on earth."

The woman governor declared that many women will be invited to take an active part in the administration. To Mrs. Ferguson, her inauguration reports the final stepping stone of her determination to clear her family name from the stigma of her husband's impeachment. After his removal from office she urged in his efforts at a political comeback.

Badly Defeated

He tried to regain the governorship, but was overwhelmingly defeated. In 1920, he aimed higher and sought the presidency of the United States, running on the American party ticket. Two years later he ran for the United States senate and made a good race in the democratic primary only to lose in the runoff with Earl B. Mayfield. Early last year he again announced his candidacy for governor, but his impeachment barred him from ever holding office in the state, the courts held.

He and his wife made the race. She weathered two heated primaries and then defeated her republican opponent, although she ran far behind the rest of the democratic ticket. She made her opposition to the Ku Klux Klan the principal plank of her platform.

An honest man's word

More than three hundred years ago, Miguel de Cervantes said: "An honest man's word is as good as his bond." Advertisers must be honest men, if they would remain advertisers. Their announcements are signed. They must tell the truth in their advertising. For their own protection, as well as yours.

What would it profit a man to advertise "Pure, virgin-wool suits," only to have you discover they were shoddy? You would soon separate the sheep from the cotton. And you would never deal with that man again. And, further, you would tell all your acquaintances what a skinflint he was.

As a matter of business, if not of personal principle, an advertiser must tell the truth in his signed announcements. That's what makes the advertising columns of this paper such reliable guides to honest merchandise. The printed announcements are bonds between you and the advertiser.

Read the advertisements. Read them regularly. To be informed on the newest and best in everything. To save hours of shopping. To make the family purse do a bigger, better job. To get goods of known quality at the most attractive price.

You would not plan a motor trip without first consulting road-maps and guide-books. Is it logical to plan a shopping trip without first consulting the advertisements? Read the advertisements. Then go to the stores with your mind more than half made up.

A signed advertisement is, in effect, a sealed bond between you and the advertiser.
