The Thrill That Comes Once In A Lifetime

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—She was a cute little trick in a bright cranberry coat with gray squirrel collar and a jaunty green hat. Her shoes were of the latest style and her trim articles were accented in blue-colored silk. As I passed I turned to look at her face. She was 65 if she was a day.

He is a man of 60. He goes to the barber every day for shave, shampoo and manure. He wears the best of tailored clothes. I see him about the hotel lobbies often. He is always alone, standing apart from the crowd, wisely watching younger men with young women. He stands there for hours, speaking to nobody and nobody speaking to him.

Another man I know used to go to the Grand Central depot every night half an hour before the departure of the Cleveland limited. He would wait every convenience to see if he might find one familiar face in the throng. Cleveland was his home town. He seemed quite alone in New York.

During the summer and fall I would walk of an evening through Prospect park in Brooklyn and always I would see a middle-aged woman go out and they rarely have visitors. They seem to cling to each other to drive away loneliness.

Loneliness! That is the curse of New York. The centrifugal force of life here throws the lonely soul to the outer rim of the mad swirl. Let youth fade and romance become but a delirious phantom pursued by footless women and asinine men.

There is little home life here, comparatively speaking. Life is lived in motion, in color, in passion. It is lived in a constant go, go, go. It is the pace that becomes too fast for the step is broken, loneliness looms like the hand of doom.

Hotels are full of men and women living alone, men and women who once were "the life of the party" now sitting aside like wallflowers, grateful for a passing glance or an hour's visit with an old friend.

Farm Commission Works on Report

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The agricultural commission, having submitted its second report embodying recommendations for agricultural relief legislation, today began work on a third which deals with administration on existing laws affecting the farmer.

The second report will be made public by the White House Wednesday.

Cynthia Grey Says:

By CYNTHIA GREY

It doesn't take the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter to tell a man's fortune even to the color of his future wife's eyes. Anyone can do it without the help of cards, palmistry or the everlasting stars.

For example, if he admires small blond girls with baby blue eyes and a giggle, he is practically certain to marry a serious-minded brunet a half head taller than he is!

And such is Fate that if he is attracted by clever women, who talk in epigrams and read every book that's published, he will probably wed a beautiful dumb-bell who thinks that the Dardanelles are a vaudeville troupe.

Home Hints

WHEN frying fish, if the pieces are put into the hot fat with the skin uppermost and allowed to brown well before turning there will be no possibility of the fish breaking.

Keeping Linen

As you store your linen away in your linen closet, always put that which has been most recently laundered at the bottom of the pile so the pieces will be used in turn and the wear will be even.

Wash Dishes

Wash your dishes at least once a day, preferably after each meal.

Make It Sparkle

Wipe glassware when it is immediately taken from the soapuds without rinsing or draining it if you wish it to sparkle.

Do Not Rub

Do not rub soap directly on wool materials. Instead place the article to be cleaned in a heavy soapuds.

Good Dressing

A most delicious dressing for a chicken or turkey is made of apples and raisins. Pack them in as tightly as possible, having the raw apples cut in small cubes. They will be cooked but not to the point of mushiness by the time the fowl has browned.

Lost Economy

Many groceries deteriorate with long storing and the economy of buying in large quantities is offset by the lack of quality.

Use Leftovers

Use your leftover vegetables for salads as garnish, or for filling omelettes.

Canned Fruit

Use canned fruit for gelatine desserts, fruit salads and pudding sauces as well as for sauce.

Buy Good Bleach

Always buy a good grade of bleach as some of the cheaper kinds make rust spots on the clothes if the soap is not entirely rinsed out.

To Clean Furniture

There is no better way to clean upholstered or overstuffed furniture than by using the small upholstery tool on the vacuum cleaner.

Sear Roasts

It is well to sear a small roast by holding each part of its surface in turn on a hot frying pan. If this is done less heat is required in the oven

WOMEN WILL GIVE FARMERS AID

First Effort of Farmer-to-Consumer League to Be Aimed at Marketing Evils

By NEA Service, WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Woman will assist in untangling a mammoth tangle.

She will be prominently identified with the Farmer-to-Consumer league, an organization of men and women who desire to better farm conditions, and to solve the farmer's problems.

"For 50 years men have been unable to solve the farmer's problem—it is high time the women took a hand," says Mrs. Chester G. Mayo, secretary of the league.

"Farm organizations are older than labor organizations but women have had no part in them. And women have been the greatest sufferers through bad crops and foreclosures.

"Now the women are to have equal representation with men on the executive committee of the league.

"The first drive of the women," she continues, "is to be directed toward the root of all farm evils, defective marketing.

"Lean and fat years alike bring unsatisfactory results because the farmer's labors, even in the best seasons, are never justly rewarded.

"Seven and a half million dollars worth of farm products from one year, exclusive of livestock, cotton and tobacco, will sell to the consumer for $22,500,000. The spread between the producer and consumer is greater than in any other industry.

"This can be remedied, she says, "not by putting farms under government control, but by an organization controlled and managed entirely by farmers."

The league is backing the Curtis-Aswell bill, asking for a government loan of $10,000,000, to be used as a revolving fund in guaranteeing a just price for his products and guaranteeing a marked reduction in the price of food to the consumer.

Among prominent members of the league's executive committee are Frank O. Lowden, Illinois; Mrs. W. R. Edmondson of Alabama; Mrs. Asa C. Barrow of Kentucky; George G. Battle of New York; Col. I. T. Drayor of Texas; Mrs. Evelyn Harris of Maryland; J. W. Batcheller of South Dakota and S. G. Rubinow of Minnesota.

FORBIDDEN!

Chapter 71
"It all happened so suddenly," Tom Barney explained. "Of course it surprised me to find Kent Jr. alone, and then that fellow suddenly bolting down the street before I could collect my thoughts or get my hands on him!"

Kent, Jr. smiled up at Tom from over his glass of milk as though he was quite enjoying the story. She had not intended that I should catch her. She had expected to get away long before Kent and I returned from our trip up in Connecticut.

And then I remembered the man that she had spoken to that day on the park bench—and of what might have happened. Just the thoughts of what he had escaped, made me shudder.

Tomorrow—A Cross Examination
HARRISBURG, Jan. 26.—(Special.)—R. E. Meith, president of the Harrisburg Bridge company, has been here for a couple of days conferring with his foreman, Mr. Duff, relative to work on the bridge here. It is a plan, according to Mr. Meith, to begin excavating for the east side pier at once and to dig to a depth of about

"Well, all right, but tell us about him, won't you?" Tom agreed laughingly.

I shuddered and drew Kent, Jr. up closer to me. He was too friendly, and entirely too believing in the virtuosity of all men.

"He was a good man," he insisted again between bites of bread and butter.

"Tell mother, Kent," I entreated. "What did the man say to you?"

"He gave me some candy. Nancy said he was a good man, and would take care of me," he affirmed.

At the name, Nancy, we all started, and staved at each other. Kent jumped to his feet.

"Where is she, Babe?" he demanded, anger and fear darkening his features.

"She is gone Kent—gone," I answered. I was beginning now to comprehend all that had happened. I thought of Nancy's tears and agitation when I had come in suddenly and found her with her hat and coat on. And I remembered how quickly and eagerly she had hurried out to look for Kent, Jr. at my suggestion.

"Tell mother what Nancy said. Did she tell you to get with the man, dear?" I asked, turning again to the boy.

"Yes, Muvver," he said, shaking his golden head. "Nancy said I must be good boy. The man took me for a walk—only he have dirty hands, Muvver," he added a trifle doubtfully.

Fast remarks and acts of Nancy's were suddenly taking on a new significance. I turned to Kent.

"Here—take Kent, Jr. for a minute. I want to see about something," I told him rapidly, a thought suddenly flashing into my mind.

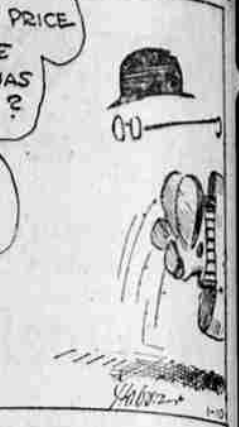

I went down the hall to Nancy's

80 feet. He is in hopes that when it is done the danger from floods will be over and that the false work will be erected again as far out in the river as the pier.

As soon as this is done the pier will be enabled to pull the steel piling which still surrounds the pier, which will be used again to form a cofferdam for the pier on the west side. While this is going on a steel will be at work on the permanent trestle construction on the west side. When the piling is completed a derrick will be used to construct a west pier. The west-middle pier which was nearly finished by last fall will be the last to be completed.
