SIX WITNESSES ON STAND AT SALEM

had about 3100 cases of liquor to sell. I told him to go ahead and get all the evidence he could. When I returned to Portland Potter and I went to a hotel where we met Weinberg. He said he had taken the liquor to Seattle, but wanted to bring it back to Portland and offered to pay me $5 a case to let him come in with it. Arrangements were discussed and as Potter and I got ready to leave, Weinberg tossed a $100 bill into my lap. "Take this, boys, and buy cigars," he said. Later I wrote up my report on this case and turned over the $100 bill to Dr. Linnville.

"What was your game to catch him?" asked Senator Hare. "Absolutely," answered Barker. "Where is the $100 now?" "Judge Coke has it in Portland," employed by State.

Asked in whose employ Weinberg was, Barker said this was only hearsay with him, but he understood he was in the employ of the state. He also said he had heard that Weinberg took a large quantity of liquor somewhere on the Columbia river highway and stored it in a barn.

Barker told the committee that he was suspended from the federal service on December 19, and he thought the offer of the $100 had something to do with it. In reply to questions by Senator Eddy, Barker stated that several men came from Washington, D. C., to investigate him and gave their names.

"Did that have anything to do with this $100?" asked Eddy. "Yes, sir," answered the witness. Questions asked by Senators Eddy and Garland brought replies from Barker indicating that while the federal department had cooperated fully with the Portland police department and the sheriffs of the state, the federal officers had no instructions to cooperate with the state department.

"After Weinberg gave you this $100, don't you think you should have informed Mr. Herwig that he had a scoundrel in his employ?" asked Garland.

"Well, I was told that Weinberg was here to get Senator Charles L. McNary and others on down the line," Barker explained that this was only hearsay that he had gotten on the streets of Portland.

Senator Taylor presented to the committee affidavits and statements from Unatilla, Union and Morrow county officials purporting to show lack of cooperation of the state forces with the local officers and that the work of Cleaver and his men in those counties has not been successful. There has been a cross-fire all the time, according to Taylor.

Frank B. Mitchell, legal adviser for the federal prohibition office was questioned closely about cooperation between his department and the state department. He said there was no cooperation between the two departments.

Mitchell said the federal department had instructions from Washington to the effect that enforcement of the prohibition law required that the department give its attention to big cases, such as smuggling and moonshining. "We were instructed not to waste our time on the bootlegger," he said. "When we get a moonshiner we cut off the supply from probably a dozen bootleggers in Portland."

Mitchell described what he termed "a very unhappy conference" that took place in the governor's office between himself, Dr. Linnville and the governor, following instructions from Washington to confer with the governor.

"In the course of our convention," said Mitchell, "Governor Pierce slammed his fist on the table and declared 'I'll teach these sheriffs to enforce the law. I'll make them toe the mark.'"

CASE BROUGHT FOR INSURANCE IS HELD

Oscar Vaughn today was given a verdict of $1000 in the case brought against the Woodmen of the World. The case hinged on the death of Enoch Vaughn, brother of Oscar Vaughn, who held a policy in the W. O. W. camp at Cottage Grove. Enoch Vaughn left home about seven years ago and nothing has been heard of him since that time. The case against the W. O. W. was brought on the assumption that the policy holder was dead. John S. Medley and Fred E. Smith represented the plaintiff, Hall and Lepper of Portland represented the defendants. The case was tried before the court without a jury by stipulation.

explain before the grand jury. Although the case pending in Montana also involves the Campbell land permits, it was brought under an entirely different section of the law, and charges specifically that Senator Wheeler accepted money to appear before the interior department after his election to the senate, as counsel for Campbell.

Orders in December Mr. Stone disclosed that orders that the new case go to the grand jury here had been given early in December after Assistant Attorney General Donovan had made a new examination of the whole matter. This examination was ordered by the attorney general, he said, in August.

Donovan's instructions, he continued, were to examine into the case as a wholly new matter. His report was made early in December.

"I reached the conclusion," Mr. Stone said, "that the facts in the case had a much wider scope than at first appeared."

Mr. Wheeler Enters Senator Wheeler entered the committee room in the midst of Mr. Stone's statement.

Senator Walsh, democrat of Montana, counsel for his colleague and a member of the committee was present from the outset. They listened while the attorney general read to the committee recent correspondence exchanged between himself and Senator Walsh, regarding the case.

The letters disclosed that Mr. Stone had granted a request of Senator Walsh that witnesses for Wheeler be summoned before the grand jury.

Liver Trouble Causes High Blood Pressure

Medical science knows that poisonous waste in our bodies would actually cause death in a few days if not eliminated by Nature's processes. Because it destroys these deadly poisons, the liver is our most important organ—the body's wonderful purifier. The liver prevents the formation of body poisons that cause diseases of the heart, kidney, blood vessels and are chiefly responsible for premature old age.

When the liver becomes weak, the poisons are sucked up by the blood and health is broken down. Physicians know that the liver cannot be regulated by drugs, but a safe Nature substance has been discovered which will at once increase the vital bile supply. The discovery is purified ox gall.

Get from your druggist a package of Dioxol. Each tablet contains ten drops of purified ox gall. In 24 hours the poison toxins will be removed. Your liver will be regulated. Blood purification will begin. Sallow skin will clear. You will feel so much better you will know you have found the cause of your ill health. Dioxol tablets are harmless, tasteless and cost less than two cents each.

These genuine ox gall tablets are prepared only under the name "Dioxol." If any tablet is offered you under another name, refuse it. Accept only Dioxol in the original, genuine package.
