

HEADLIGHTS AND SPOTLIGHTS MAY MEET REGULATION

STATE HOUSE, SALEM, Ore., Feb. 6.—Glamorous headlights and spotlights that dazzle and bob about will be regulated at midnight August 31, 1925, by a bill 294 is finally enacted as a measure favorably by the house roads and highways committee. The bill would call for the "eight" test of the United States bureau of standards for determining headlights. The standardization would mean that a certain amount of light would be distributed in front of machine at specific points, with the glare level avoided. Only one spotlight, so fixed as to throw its beam at a certain point on the right hand side of the car would be permitted. Such light would have to be so attached as not to be movable except with tools. The measure would also provide for stations where car owners could have their lights regulated so as to meet the requirements of the law. It would also provide that manufacturers of lenses and reflectors would be required to obtain approval of the secretary of state's office before putting their products on sale in the state.

BUSINESS BLOCK CHANGES HANDS

SPRINGFIELD, Ore., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Negotiations were completed and the deed made out in a Springfield realty deal yesterday, in which George Perkins and James J. Smith, both of Springfield, purchased a quarter of a block on Fifth and A streets from M. A. Chamberlain, who operates a sawmill southwest of Eugene. The consideration is not mentioned, but the property is regarded as of considerable value, including as it does two lots, each with 60-foot frontage on A street, and the two cottages on a total of 120 feet on Fifth. There are three houses on the site at present. A substantial payment, constituting an option and a preliminary negotiation, was paid some time ago.

STAMP CHECKING IS ROMANTIC

"Cupid's Cage" Is Place Where They All Fall; "Check" Replies Girl, And Love Is Kindled by the Magic Words.

Why wouldn't the couple look at the camera? Because they are in "Cupid's Cage," trapped, as it were, for romance and marriage. It's only an ordinary office cage but something has imbued it with romance until now it is legend that all who enter there single shall come out married!

By NEA Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—"Cupid's Cage" they call it in the San Francisco postoffice. Officially, it is the central accounting department—but romantically and popularly, it is more famous for its output of accounting records. For whoever has entered the cage single has come out married! It seems that the accounting department, handling remittances from 1700 western postoffices, must have two persons check the money and records. Usually, a man and a woman are assigned to the job. The man reads the figures. The girl says, "Check." And such prosaic exchange of words leads to casual personal remarks, and eventually to "I will" and "I do" at the altar. The why and the wherefore of this strange postoffice romance seems to have but one explanation. Postmaster John Power says it is "close proximity." "The girl and the man get used to each other," he says, "and marriage seems to be inevitable." Four times have unmarried folk been paired in the cage, with all the rest of the employees betting on how long they would hold out against the ultimate, and each time the ultimate has been the same. "Cupid's Cage" has become so famous throughout the western division that lone some single persons employed elsewhere are applying for the job in the accounting cage.

ADVENTIST STAND ON WORLD'S END GIVEN IN ADDRESS

COTTAGE GROVE, Feb. 6.—(Special)—"Seventh-day Adventists believe that the second coming of Christ is near at hand, but they are not responsible for setting any date for that event to take place. They are not time-setters, and have no sympathy with any movement that is advocating the return of the Lord on a certain day of this year," so declared Evangelist J. R. Patterson in a stirring lecture in the Old Arcade theater here last night in his answer to the question, "Who is Mrs. Margaret W. Rowen, and will her prediction regarding the coming of the Lord Feb. 6 of this year come to pass?" He emphasized the political, financial and social distress in the world as a sign of the coming of the Lord; also famine, earthquakes and pestilences in different places, inventions and general increase of knowledge, the increase of crime and lawlessness in its many phases, and said that while all these were signs, yet the greatest of all signs was the giving of the gospel to all the world. "To prophesy the return of Jesus on a certain day is nothing less than fanaticism," he said, "and such cranks bring reproach upon the gospel rather than help it. Jesus gave us the most definite prophecy of all concerning his return, when he said, 'And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come.' The organized body of Seventh-day Adventists does not go any farther than this prophecy in proclaiming the return of the Lord."

DISCIPLES READY FOR WORLD'S END

(Continued from page one) stood, she intends to remain in semi-seclusion, awaiting whatever the day and night of this, the sixth of February, may bring forth. Mrs. Rowen Reputed. Mrs. Rowen and her followers who call themselves the "Reformed Adventist church" had been repudiated by leaders of the Seventh Day Adventist church here and in the east. J. L. McElamy, elder of the Seventh Day Adventist church and one of the leaders of the faith in the west, declared that Mrs. Rowen had been excommunicated by the church because of her "pretensions" and her "claim to being a prophetess." Mrs. Rowen's only reply to this is a quotation from the gospel of St. Mark, chapter 13, verse 37. "What I say unto you I say unto all, watch." Mrs. Rowen late last night was reported to have left Los Angeles for an estate near San Diego, there quietly to "await the end."

The musical program for the dinner and session which will start at 6:15 p. m. will be in charge of David J. Jones. CAVES OF SOUTH YIELD MUMMIES, RECORDS REVEAL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Disclosure of the fact that on a previous exploration of the cave country in southwestern Kentucky, Floyd Collins, now entombed in Sand cave, had found a human skull and bones of a skeleton recalls the fact that mummies were found in the caves more than 100 years ago. Belief that a pre-historic race, antedating the earliest known Indians on the North American continent, has long been prevalent here and has been strengthened from time to time by discovery of what seemed to be evidence of that fact. Perhaps the most remarkable discovery was that of a mummy of a female, with an extensive wardrobe placed before her, made early in the nineteenth century. Old records here show that a "highly scientific gentleman of New York," one of the earliest visitors to the cave in 1813, saw a "relic of ancient times" which he noted in detail at the time. In digging salt petre earth, workmen dislodged a flat rock about four feet wide and as many long, his "published narrative" is quoted as saying, disclosing a square excavation about three feet deep and as many in length and width. "In this small subterranean chamber sat in solemn silence one of the human species, a female with her wardrobe and ornaments placed at her side," the narrative said. "The body was in a state of perfect preservation and sitting erect. The arms were folded up and the hands were laid across the bosom; around the body and next thereto were wrapped two deer skins. These skins appeared to have been dressed in some mode different from what is now practiced by any people of whom I have any knowledge. . . . Outside of these two skins was a large square sheet, which I judged from appearances to be that of the Linn tree. In its texture and appearance, it resembled the South Sea Island cloth or matting. "The color of the woman's hair was a dark red; the teeth were white and perfect. "The features of this ancient member of the human family much resembled those of a tall handsome American woman. The forehead was high and the head well formed."

DELICATESSEN PLANS MADE AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Ore., Feb. 6.—(Special)—Tentative plans for a delicatessen to be installed by Major M. B. Huntley in connection with the new Swartz and Washburne meat market are being considered at present. C. E. Swartz and R. A. Washburne recently purchased the O. B. Kessey building, occupied by Hall's Cash store between Fourth and Fifth streets on the north side of Main street, and will soon expend in the neighborhood of $1000 on repairs and installation of new equipment. Since the quarters are considerably larger than the market has had up to this time, it is thought that there will be room for the additional feature. Major Huntley is at present running the lunch counter in Obak's cigar store in Eugene.

COLLINS' FIANCEE LOSES ALL HOPE

(Continued from page one) laughing. They didn't know, they didn't even see this figure, nor did she see them. She held her eyes on the new-made shaft. She turned, finally, and in a moment was lost in the darkness. Her tears, her expression and her walk told plainly that her hopes are no more, that she feels the cave which Floyd Collins set out to explore will not release its grip until he dies. It has held him seven days. It has held out hope to him time and again, until it shattered them beyond recall when it closed the one avenue to the world outside. Were to Elope. "Floyd Collins and Miss Alma Clark were to have eloped today, but only a few of their friends knew the secret. One of them, a man, saw the girl at the shaft and saw the sudden change in her face. He understood and he turned his eyes as she passed him. "Others, of course, knew of the friendship and some might have known that the wedding day was set for March 2. But very few knew that Floyd Collins and Miss Clark had decided definitely to elope quietly today and return as man and wife. "It was said that objections to the marriage had been made and that the elopement was planned as a means of overcoming it. "And this may be why Floyd Collins wouldn't give up his fight for life when he knew the light seemed lost. It may explain why Collins kept courage when rescuers and friends were downcast. It may reveal how Collins endured torture with a smile at times through six days in the grip of a stone in the cave and it may show the power that kept alive that spark of faith he cherished."

The sawmill will be closed down tomorrow beginning the new plan of running only five days a week.
