ACTIVE GLANDS GAVE NAPOLEON FIGHTING FORCE

According to Berman, a noted scientist who has analyzed the action of the glands, Napoleon one of the greatest fighters of all history, owed his courage and fighting force to large and extremely active adrenal glands.

Not only have the glands an important influence on the mind and character of the individual, but they also largely control health, energy and vitality, and it is by maintaining the normal functioning of the glands that we may combat weakness and ill health, according to eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, prepared in tablet form, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen, for men and women, is obtainable at Allen's Drug Store and Red Cross Pharmacy.

Ill-Fated Underwater Boat Pounds on Rocks off Portsmouth, N. H., Where She Went Aground in Terrific Storm

Above is shown the ill-fated U. S. submarine, S-48, as she pounded on the rocks off Portsmouth, N. H., where she went aground in the terrific storm that swept the Atlantic coast. A crew of 46, five of them half-crazed, were taken off safely through heroic efforts of the coast guard, after being trapped in their tiny compartment aboard ship, and their lives endangered by the chlorine gas that swept the boat, generated by the water entering through the torn hull and mixing with chemicals aboard. At the left is Lieut. Com. Bray of the S-48 and on the right is Seaman Novarro, with the submarine's mascot "Beans," which he brought safely ashore. This is not the first time that the S-48 has met with near-tragedy. Back in 1921 she dived to the bottom of Long Island Sound, and fatalities were narrowly averted.

COMMISSION HAS INVESTIGATION OF PRICE MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Investigation by the federal trade commission of competitive conditions in a number of household utilities already has been carried forward by the department of justice in several cases to a point indicating possible action to prevent monopolistic control of prices.

Conclusions and indications in the several investigations already under way or contemplated by the department were reported by Attorney-General Stone in a letter to the commission last night. Of the half dozen commodities in the household supply industries discussed in the letter, aluminum was cited as one in which price control is provided. It is "practically complete control" of the supply of raw material from which aluminum is made, Aluminum company of America, the attorney general said, is in a position to control the domestic prices of sheet aluminum to the utensil manufacturer.

Refrigerators, washing machines, sewing machines, brooms and vacuum cleaners were the other household articles mentioned in the letter. Although certain practices of Washington machine manufacturers are open to criticism, the letter said, the government is not yet in a position to take definite steps against them. Investigation so far has shown no violations of law by the vacuum cleaners manufacturers or any recent or present violations in the sewing machine industry.

music. Prize fighting was not then our popular entertainment. We had no moving pictures. Talented actresses were not then our popular stars of the stage. We had no jazz music. The glorious old war songs of heroic memory and patriotic inspiration had not been supplanted by Captain Jinks of the horse marines, 'Hall, Hall, the Gang's All Here,' 'Yes, We Have No Bananas,' and similar jargons, and the grand plays of Shakespeare and plays of high moral import had not been supplanted by the vulgar and smutty vaudeville.

"His four wives, sitting side by side in the members' gallery, without cosmetic adornment, were the observed of all observers, as quiet and as a uncomplaining as four painted oysters in Lynn Haven bay. This was before Dr. Cook discovered the north pole and before Rev. Billy Sunday drove the devil out of Washington.

Stone was arrested by deputy sheriffs last night, under questioning by officers he declared repeatedly that he knew nothing of how the Martin sisters met death, and also maintained that he was innocent of a statutory charge brought against him last October, involving another young girl. He was held to answer on the latter charge but the case did not come to trial.

Investigators announced, however, that they had found witnesses ready to testify that they had seen Stone talking with the Martin girls shortly

"If we have some dry weather soon there is expected to be a big increase in incoming and outgoing shipments of fruit trees from Lane," according to George W. Mr. Taylor states that the shipments at present, all of which have to be inspected here, have been rather light as nurserymen have been unable to work outdoors to any extent due to the weather conditions. The inspector forecasts a big year in orchard planting for Lane judging by the number of orders being placed for fruit stock.

ROMANCE. You often hear people refer to the "dear old days of romance"—to the time when knight-errants roamed the earth to do honor to a lady's blue eyes. These folks say we are living in an age of realism! An age of "realism" where the human voice is hurled across the world without wires; where the temperature of Mars is taken more than thirty millions of miles away; where tons of steel and people ride easily and safely through the air or under the sea! An age of realism! Why, this is the most romantic of all ages! The advertising columns of this paper are full of romance—of the romance of men who have devoted their lives to bringing new comforts, conveniences and pleasures for mankind. Advertisements tell these stories, not with the romantic exaggeration of a jongleur, but with the calm, simple words of sincerity. Here is a firm that spent millions to develop a product that makes your baby comfortable. Here is a company that has labored fifty years to cut a single hour of toil from your day's work. Here is a man who has searched the Seven Seas to produce a new flavor for your dinner. Romance—this age is full of it. Not just empty romance, but the true romance of achievement, of progress, of the betterment of mankind. Advertisements tell you what the romance of business is doing for you. Read them
