LUMBER STOCKS IN COUNTY CUT DOWN

Lumber market in Eugene and Lane county has "got its back up" during the last two weeks, according to the current Crow's Pacific coast lumber index, copies of which were received by local lumbermen today. While from all appearances there is not a large volume of business coming in at the same time there is all that is needed to keep the mills in a comfortable position, the index says.

"Everyone has considerable cutting business on hand to carry them along until the early part of March," reads the report. "Stocks of yard items of all kinds are reduced to a minimum, in fact there is an absolute shortage of many retail yard items and in several cases wholesalers here have found it necessary during the last week to place orders of this kind with the mills outside Lane county in order to get delivery that they required."

"Inquiries has been much better than at any time since the first of the year, with every indication that the buyers are needing stock and are only holding off with the hope that they will be able to buy for less. There has been a slight improvement in the California rail business which has carried with it some increase in prices."

"The volume of new tie and bridge plank business has been very light of late, but fortunately the mills have had no difficulty in getting all of the small timber cutting they want. The general movement to curtail to a five-day per week operation is having a very great influence on Lane county mills, both on actual production and the attitude of the mills."

"With a large majority of the mills in the northwest now curtailing it is felt that the only thing necessary is to remain on this basis for a week or two in order to put the market in a healthy condition again."

Mills in Lane county now operating on a five-day, one shift basis, include the Anderson and Middleleaf Lumber company at Cottage Grove, Booth-Kelly, Springfield, South-Kelly, Wendling and Fischer Lumber company, Marcola.

CURE FOR RICKETS IS THOUGHT FOUND

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—Doctor Martha R. Jones, research associate of the department of pediatrics at the University of California medical school here, believes she has discovered a cure for rickets—that infant bone disease which causes knotted joints, curvature of the spine and soft and misshapen skulls, bow legs, and crumbling teeth. This became known today when the record of experiments and cures performed by Dr. Jones, during the past three years were recounted by the San Francisco Examiner.

The remedy for this widely prevalent disease, which medical authorities said exists in 30 per cent of this city's younger children and 75 per cent of those in New York, is simple. It consists in giving hydrochloric acid in small amounts in the patient's milk. Dr. Jones said that the discovery came from finding that acid reduced the maldy in rachitic puppies and that from this she formed the theory that the disease was caused by a preponderance of alkali in the system. Although physicians declare that hydrochloric acid is a "sure cure," Dr. Jones has gone further and insisted yesterday that rickets will be entirely prevented if the diet of expectant mothers is rich in mineral salts.
