DELIVING into the gaiety of social life with determined thoroughness last week and month past with some variety of entertainment forgotten or overlooked. Eugene's this week finished February in a perfect manner as the most important month of the year for entertaining. Offering as it does a number of the more colorful holidays February has more than its share of motifs and suggestions for the hostess.

Aside from the Lincoln and Washington anniversaries and St. Valentine's day as inspirations for entertaining, ways of colonial days are appropriate for any day of the month and are a study for many variations of entertaining.

And so a series of colonial teas, colonial balls, as well as some of the winter's larger bridge parties and receptions were distinctively February's.

Lenten days have now come with their gray cloud of quietness, and while society will not want for activity it will be somewhat abated in its strenuousness.

Next week will be busy with club work for both afternoons and evenings.

Outstanding of the social functions will be the reception for which Mrs. P. E. Snodgrass and Mrs. C. A. Burden have extended invitations. It will be held Saturday at the Osburn hotel.

Eugene friends were most pleased to welcome back Mrs. Murray Warner this week after her trip to the Orient. Out-of-town visitors were the honor guests for most of the past week's entertaining, and several informal affairs are being planned for others of the coming week.

Of interest in the musical circles will be the presentation of Florence Easton, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera company, who will appear in concert March 10 under the auspices of the University of Oregon. The concert series sponsored by the campus folk this year are far superior to those of previous years and are attracting many townpeople.

Of club and organization work in which every Eugene woman is greatly interested no more important activity has been undertaken in the past several months than that of the American Association of University Women in sponsoring a special series of movies for children to be presented once a week here.

A most attractive affair for members of the younger society group was the tea given Sunday afternoon by Miss Brownell Fraser, Miss Jannet Fraser and Mrs. Ross McKenna at the Fraser home. The guest list of forty-five or more included a group of college friends of the three hostesses.

Mrs. Glen Elkins and Miss Mae Gibson sponsored one of the week's interesting afternoon affairs, when they entertained for eight tables of bridge at the home of Mrs. Elkins Monday afternoon. Red carnations were used as decorations for the occasion, suggesting the observance of Washington's birthday. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. N. E. Barrett, Mrs. Charles Sigman, Mrs. E. J. Bartholmey, Mrs. Elizabeth Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Westerfield are now making their home in Springfield, having left at mid-week.

To spend several weeks sojourn in southern California Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hobbs and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thompson left Thursday by motor. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson had arrived in Eugene the afternoon before from Portland to join Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs on the trip.

Mrs. Fred E. Smith will entertain Home Science club members at her home Monday. A demonstration is to be given in cooking. The club is sponsoring a lecture to be given by Mrs. Juanita A. Tennison, of the International Silver company, at the chamber of commerce rooms March 10. Mrs. Tennison will talk on entertaining and table etiquette. All women of the city and the public in general are invited to come.

A bridge tea is being planned by the Security Benefit association for Saturday, March 7, in the old Knights of Pythias hall. Mrs. George Blair is chairman for the affair. Reservations should be telephoned to Mrs. Fred Chess, 1821-R.

Mrs. Chapman Gives Two Afternoon Bridge Parties
