DICKINSON BILL IS TERMED AS FALSE

gives four other men $10,000 a year to give advice which the head of the bureau of agricultural economics can use.

Declaring he "resented" the attitude of Mr. Taylor for abusing a member of our conference, Mr. Carey said he did not believe the bureau would have any control over marketing organizations.

Haugen Bill Favored

The Capper-Haugen bill was in line with the recommendations of the agricultural conference.

Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, expressed the opinion the bill would be a step forward.

"If you want to kid the farmers some more," Mr. Carey concluded, "give them this bill—some mush, a sugar-coated attempt to kid them along."

Senator Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota, also described the Dickinson measure as "advice" and declared, "we farmers are tired of having mush shoved down our throats."

Mr. Dickinson Speaks

Replying to Senator Kendrick, democrat, Wyoming, Mr. Carey said he preferred no legislation this session other than the Dickinson bill, which he said, would prevent enactment of conservative legislation later. Defend-
