

OREGON BASEBALL MEN DELAYED BY BASKETBALL TIE

University of Oregon baseball men, who were scheduled for regular practice this week, have met with delay because of the conference tie in basketball standings between Oregon and O. A. C. Coach Billy Reinhardt is mentor of both basketball and baseball, and since the basketball series will take all of his attention, the baseball men must wait for a little while longer.

The batteries have been out for two weeks and the pitching staff seems promising. Reinhardt will have six 1924 letter men back—Sam Cook, catcher and outfielder; Howard Hobson, third baseman; Douglas Wright, outfielder; Jack Bliss, catcher; Ray Williams and Herbert Brooks, pitchers. Hobson, Williams and Brooks are from Portland.

Of last year's second team Reinhardt will have Troutman, shortstop; Peterson, third base; Toole, outfield and Moore, shortstop. Of the 1924 freshman squad, George Mimsaugh, catcher; Dave Adolph and Harry Dotson, pitchers; Rex Adolph, first base; Jones, third base; and Frank Reinhardt, outfielder are expected to be out. Fred Harrison, who pitched for the 1923 freshman nine; Woods, pitcher, and Donald Husband, first baseman, who were not eligible last year, will try out for regular berths.

Oregon's schedule:

- April 24—Pacific at Eugene.
- April 29—Whitman at Eugene.
- May 4—Idaho at Eugene.
- May 6—Washington State at Eugene.
- May 9—Washington at Eugene.
- May 16—Oregon Aggies at Corvallis.
- May 18—Willamette at Salem.
- May 19—Pacific at Forest Grove.
- May 20—Washington at Eugene.
- May 21—Washington State at Pullman.
- May 22—Idaho at Moscow.
- May 23—Whitman at Walla Walla.
- May 29—Oregon Aggies at Eugene.

Champion Walker, He Willie Plant Beats Ugo

It took two decisive victories over Ugo Frigerio, champion of Europe, to have the real ability of Willie Plant, America's premier walker, appreciated.

Frigerio came to this country expecting to create as great a sensation as did Nurni, but found in Plant a walker who had it all over him. Plant represents the Morningside A. C. of New York.

The champion's training program was interrupted by a bone bruise on his left hand which he received in a fight with Bud Ridley at Vernon three weeks ago.

Bobby Barrett, Philadelphia welterweight meets Dode Herat, Seattle, in a ten round bout at Vernon tonight.

Eric Pedley, crack polo player, yesterday demonstrated that he can do something besides ride a horse, when he won the golf championship of Midway Country club, Alhambra, by defeating E. S. Armstrong, twice holder of the Southern California amateur golf title.

MISS WILLS RULES TENNIS KINGDOM

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—Less than four years ago, a sturdy young school girl, her pigtails flying and racket flashing, came out of the west to start the eastern tennis world and gave the supposedly invincible champion, Mrs. Molla Bjurquist Mallory a surprising taste in the national championship.

Today Miss Helen Wills, with the more mature poise that comes to a University student and champion, reigns supreme as queen of American tennis, indisputably at the top in her own land and recognized as the most formidable challenger for the world honors held by the temperamental French star, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen.

Following Miss Wills triumph in 1924, including victory in the Olympic, singles championship and decisive defense of the American title many critics asserted their belief in the ability of the American girl to vanquish Lenglen. The last change of a test between them last summer vanished when the French woman withdrew from the Olympics after her collapse at Wimbledon, but there is a possibility that they may meet and decide the question of supremacy this year for the American girl is planning another trip abroad to study as well as play tennis.

These two stars represent diametrically opposite types of the court game—Lenglen, dynamic, a flashing net artist, and unusually versatile, while Miss Wills, a cool and confident strategist, depends largely upon the tremendous pace and power to her shots.

A comparison of their ability is afforded through a mutual rival, Mrs. Mallory, but it offers nothing conclusive. Lenglen, dynamic, humbled Mrs. Mallory but at home the latter has met equally as decisive defeat at the hands of Miss Wills in the last two national championship finals.

Last season saw Miss Wills reach her greatest heights. She captured six major crowns at home and abroad. This season Miss Wills' main chance of conquest lies abroad, for her, with her two outstanding rivals, Mrs. Mallory and Miss Mary K. Brown, stand the crest of their careers, there seems little formidable opposition for the 19-year-old California girl.

WALTER HAGEN IS FITTED FOR CROWN

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—In a branch of competition where champions rise and fall with the consistent frequency of the tides, Walter Hagen occupies a niche apart in the sphere of golf. Undoubtedly the greatest of America's home bred professionals, this debonair and carelessly consistent star of the links looms as formidable as ever on the 1925 horizon as he turns his mobile sledge to the championship pitch on Florida fairways.

Hagen's name is coupled with that of the youthful southerner, Bobby Jones, at the top of the golfing bracket now, but even the brilliant Georgia stylist cannot match the consistency of his professional rival's record. Year in and year out, here and abroad, during the past decade, Hagen's achievements have no parallel in the annals of royal and ancient game.

Hagen has been fitted for every important open crown of golf in the course of his spectacular march. Twice holder of the American open title, the dashing product of Rochester, N. Y., lifted the British open crown and was only a stroke away from the winner a third time. He also captured

Vote is Taken on Track Meet Place

SEATTLE, March 3.—The Pacific Coast Intercollegiate conference is taking a vote by mail, it was learned here, on where its track and field championship meet shall be held this year. Oregon Agricultural college was awarded the event, but reported inability to prepare the former track, Stanford university and Washington State college were understood to be candidates to replace O. A. C.

Hagan and Thirteenth Hole Hoodoo

Remarkable Shot Executed From Bad Bunker

By JOE WILLIAMS

BRITISH golfers will never forget a shot Walter Hagen executed from an abysmal bunker at the thirteenth hole at Hoylake last summer when he won the title over there for the second time.

But before detailing the shot mention should be made that during the first nine holes of the last round Hagen had tossed away a hatful of strokes, every one worth a princely ransom. Now he found himself in a most desperate situation.

"How do we stand?" asked Walter as he turned his face to the wind on the homeward journey. "I want a 38. Well I shall have to hustle."

And hustle he did for the first three inward holes. Then came the thirteenth. Here he almost missed his shaggy shot to the green and the ball landed in the nearest bunker. "Well the great American is through," voted the gallery.

And so it seemed when the position of the ball was investigated. The English had a way of leaving their traps strangers to rakes. Hagen's ball was by no means in unexpected territory. Some one had gone along before.

And in passing a trademark was left behind. It was no bantamweight who had extricated himself therefrom. This was plainly evident. Hagen's ball nestled in a heel mark of terrifying proportions.

But Hagen's face, dark and tanned, gave no outward sign of displeasure. Quickly he made up his mind to play an "explosion" shot with backspin. A four would do no good. That meant the ball must not only be shot from the trap but dropped into the hole, all in one swing.

Getting a firm footing in the pit Hagen lashed the sand with great muscular violence. A sand storm seemed passing over the staid English landscape at the moment. Up came the ball and down it landed on the green four feet from the hole. It had found the line exactly and it rolled into the cup.

That was the outstanding shot in golf last year, greater for many reasons than even the spectacular iron shot Cyril Walker played through the wind to win the American title at Oakland Hills.

And, lest we forget, this shot of Hagen's came off at the thirteenth hole, which is, not always unucky.

Schafer has Best Chance at Tourney

CHICAGO, March 3.—Young Jake Schaefer, who in 1921 tore the 18.2 balkline billiards crown from the brow of the veteran Willie Hoppe, has the best chance of the six competitors, including Hoppe, to take the title in the international tournament here.

The veteran Hoppe, present champion, relaxed his grasp on his honors last night when he was beaten by Edouard Horemans, Belgian champion, 400 to 37 in seven innings. It was his second defeat, he also having succumbed to Erich Hagenlacher. Schaefer advanced his title claim in the earlier contest by making Kamekichi Suzuki, the Japanese, the

Sport Talk

THERE is an old adage in golf that champions seldom repeat. It has held true in the national open event, especially. And in most of the other big tournaments for that matter.

In the open classic no champion has been able to duplicate his feat of the previous season since J. J. McDermott did it back in 1912. McDermott blazed through the field to victory in 1911, winning a play-off with Mike Brady and George Simpson. He came back the following year to win again.

Down through the years goldfom has boasted some stellar title-holders in the open affair but none has been able to cling to the old laurels for more than one season in succession—not since the days of McDermott.

Billy Evans Says

By BILLY EVANS

RECENTLY Knute Rockne, famous coach of Notre Dame football, selected two All-American all-time elevens.

The selections were interesting because Knute Rockne made them. He picked only one Notre Dame player, the late George Gipp. He was named one of the backfield on his all-modern team.

I fear Knute Rockne has let his modesty get the better of his judgment. He didn't even mention a single member of his great team of 1924. Rockne is decidedly partial to Geo. Gipp. I have never once discussed football with the Notre Dame coach but that he said something complimentary about Gipp.

Rockne, not inclined to boast and rather shy with praise, has often told me that a greater player than Gipp never lived. It was unfortunate that he should die at the very pinnacle of his greatness.

Gipp, according to Rockne, didn't have a single weakness. With every physical asset, a keen mind, he was one of those players who seemed immune from injury.

Rockne's backfield selections will probably settle some arguments on that score, also start others.

Ed James Pfennig of Cornell at quarterback, Gipp of Notre Dame and George of Illinois as halfbacks and the great and only Jim Thorpe, full-back.

Rockne placed Eckersall on his team of old time stars who were in college prior to 1900. He rates Pfennig just about Eckersall's equal and honors him with the captaincy of the mythical team.

Pfennig, Gipp, George and Thorpe certainly comprise a great backfield. Harvard supporters may feel that Eddie Mahan has been slighted. However, in naming any all-star team certain differences of opinion are sure to arise.

"Gipp, George and Thorpe are players who 'come once' in a lifetime," says Rockne. No one is going to disagree with him on that statement.

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run-down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack of appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor.

"If I had only known—"

Two women went out to buy a certain expensive labor-saving device for the home.

One was greatly disappointed when, a few days later, they compared notes. She had bought the same product that many of her friends had owned.

The other woman had secured a greatly improved, new product—costing less, but of much more value.

"If I had only known there was a better one," the first woman said, "I would never have bought this old one."

"I had just read about it in an advertisement," explained the wise buyer.

Every day you miss good news of an improvement in different articles of merchandise—unless you read the advertisements. They tell you of practically every worthwhile invention—of every progress from the old to the new.

Willamette Loses Close Game, 36-33

SALEM, Ore., March 3.—The University of Southern California defeated the Willamette university Bearcats on the local floor last evening by a score of 36 to 33. The game was fast and close, with the southern players taking the lead in the second half, and holding it until the end, despite the desperate efforts of the Salem team. This is the last game of the season on the Willamette schedule.

BROCCOLI CROP IS STARTING SLOWLY

All Consignments so Far Are Destined for Portland Market

ROSEBURG, Ore., March 3.—Broccoli movement in the county is slow, despite perfect weather, and up to date there have been only four consignments to Portland. The all of this year's crop. The crop is so light that it is being found difficult to secure a full carload at a time, and several hundred crates have been taken to Portland by automobile truck. The market is paying between 70c and $1.50 per crate, depending upon quality.
