

DODGERS LINE UP WITH SAME TEAM

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 23.—(Special) Wilbur Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, coxaters last year to the finish, is conservative in discussing his team's prospects.

"We will start with about the same club that we finished with last fall," he said. "J. E. Cox, the outfielder we bought from Portland, bats and fields in a manner to make me believe he will add real strength to the team. My infield, consisting of first baseman Mitchel at short and Johnson at third, are working splendidly.

Billy Evans Says

By BILLY EVANS
AUGUSTA, March 23.—The remarkable popularity of Walter Johnson with fandom at large is already apparent in this fair city.

Washington and New York, on the other hand, offer a decided novelty and the home folks are awaiting their coming with bated breath.

When you ask an Augusta fan why he is looking forward to these games with so much interest, the reply is invariably the same, "I want to see that fellow, Walter Johnson."

After Johnson's great comeback in the last series, through the spectacular finish of the deciding game, there seems greater interest than ever in baseball's outstanding character.

The Augusta park seats 8,000 and it would be surprising if it was crowded on both days. The prices will be big leaguish, so rutch coin should be gathered here.

The event is being widely advertised, bright red and blue posters are everywhere announcing the coming of Washington, world champions, versus New York, National League pennant winners.

By the folks down here it is regarded as a spring world series, a resumption of the 1924 affair that apparently was once officially decided in favor of Washington.

The impression is that both clubs will present their regular lineups. If they fail to there is certain to be loud squawks from the cash customers.

If they do, certain veteran stars are in danger of having their play hampered before the season opens.

There are many angles to the series between the Giants and Senators that offer room for argument. It will be the last series of its kind; the American League recently banned such affairs.

THE NUT CRACKER

WILBERT ROBINSON says the modern pitcher does not warm up enough. This probably accounts for so many left-handers being half-baked.

Jack Dempsey has agreed to defend his title against one Martin Burke. We suppose the winner will challenge Jackie Coogan.

Willie Hoppe is no longer a champion but he has something to be thankful for. The scribes have quit calling him "the boy wonder."

Rube Lutzke of the Indians had 14 teeth extracted to improve his hitting. An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a double, is the Rubin's notion.

A ball player who hefts is sometimes more valuable to his club than one who is merely beefy.

It may be a terrible summer in many respects but the one consolation in the announcement that Carpenter will remain in France.

Young Griffio used to stand on a handkerchief and nobody could hit him in the face. We didn't know the old fighters ever used handkerchiefs.

Otis P. Sapp is planning on making a trip to Great Neck, L. I., this year. "I want to see the giraffes," he says.

There's a crocodile 473 years old in Tarpon Springs, Fla. It probably owes its long life to simple habits and total abstinence from rum.

Sport Oddities

GOLF, like practically all other sports, has its odd happenings and occurrences—little incidents which crop out during play—some humorous, some otherwise.

On the final day in the open tournament at Skokie, three years ago, Eddie Loos, a former Van Cortlandt Park, New York, caddie, had quite a peculiar experience while playing the second hole.

Loos' tee shot had gone wide but instead of landing in the rough or in a bunker, as is usually the case, it bounded onto a bench and stayed there. Eddie decided to play the ball from where it lay, however, and actually made the hole in four.

One of the oddest shots ever played at Palm Beach was that made by Edward Kennedy, Boston golfer, a few years back.

Kennedy's ball, when driven from the eighth tee, had struck the roof of one of the nearby breakers cottages, had bounced off into a drain pipe half way around the house, and had finally rolled down and out of the pipe to a good spot on the fairway.

The ball was well teed up for the player when he arrived to make his second shot.

At a woman's tournament in Indiana a while ago, a rather odd play came up.

It was in the semi-finals. Mrs. Cal Blackford, a prominent Hoosier player, lodged her third shot in a tree. Not to be outdone or lose a stroke she climbed the tree, finding the ball in a bird's nest. She then shot the pellet right from the nest. It landed on the green, thus enabling her to halve the hole with her opponent.

Perhaps one of the oddest bits of the unusual on the links happened

Aubrey Boomer, former French open champion.

Boomer, during an important match shot his ball into a sand trap. As he pitched out the ball hit the side of a bunker close by and then apparently disappeared. Search was immediately instituted for the elusive pellet but it couldn't be found. Finally Boomer put his hand in the pocket of his coat—and there was the ball.

It had rebounded after striking the side of the bunker and had dropped in without being noticed.

ALVITA RELIEVES KIDNEY TROUBLE SAYS DOCTOR

Dr. W. B. Armstrong, of Newport Beach, Calif., gives the following remarkable testimony as to the virtue of Alvita, the new discovery.

"There is an old gentleman visiting his daughter here; he comes from Indiana. He is 82 years old, and could not retain his kidney secretions more than half an hour, and was in a very bad condition otherwise. I advised him to use the Alvita Tablets. He used three boxes and got the fourth today. He is very much better in every way, and looks ten years younger."

Alvita is prepared in highly concentrated tablet form from the deep-rooted alfalfa plant, which by scientific analysis is rich in lime, iron and phosphates. Unlike drugs, Alvita is a vegetable remedy which has proved especially beneficial in building up weakened, run-down conditions, and in overcoming kidney, bladder and prostate trouble. No matter what you have tried, try this remedy of Nature now. A dollar buys a box at any drug store.
