Golfers to Invade Britain

Walter Hagen and Glenna Collett

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 11.—Walter Hagen is without a doubt America's greatest man golfer, to Glenna Collett goes that honor among the women.

These two super-golfers will invade England this year and hope to bring back with them Britain's two coveted titles, the British open and the women's championship.

During the winter Miss Collett has been tutored by Hagen in the best style of play for the English courses. Hagen regards her as the greatest feminine golfer in all the world and believes she has an excellent chance to win British honors despite the glassy field that will oppose her. She is due to sail on April 11.

usual in major league baseball by turning out five remarkable youngsters in Moore, Coyle, Wright, Yde and Kremer.

They were all real finds. Yde and Kremer, as pitchers, rated with the best in the league.

Moore got into 72 games, hitting .350. He was used at second, third and in the outfield. This season he is being groomed to take Maraville's old place at the keystone station.

In the case of visiting airmen, they may play upon payment of green fees.

A. C. Dixon, chairman of the construction committee, reported to the directors that all work on the second nine hole under construction, will be completed by June 1, and that the course will be turned over to the green committee on that date. From that time approximately a month will be required to allow the turf to become firm.

The directors voted into membership the first three applicants on the waiting list, all of whom had purchased certificates of membership from former members.

Hearty approval of the tournament schedule as by George McGill was expressed by every game Pittsburgh player.

Following were present at the meeting: George McGill, president; George B. Schaeffer, vice-president; Claire Lee, secretary; M. W. Starbuck, treasurer; R. W. Martin, R. S. McCready, G. W. Griffin, R. W. Pressing and S. B. Sigward, directors; A. C. Dixon, chairman construction committee.

to help the fairways and the greens in St. Petersburg a whole lot.

One of the extraordinary things about yesterday was that it faded into history without a new bantamweight champion being crowned.

Despite the fact that Chick Evans says there is no mystery about golf, no one has yet found out how Cyril Walker ever won the open title.

John McGraw's favorite song is "The One I Love Belongs to Somebody Else." . . . He sings it every time he sees Hornsby play second for the Cards.

The experts say Ruth is not hitting the ball as hard as he used to . . . but the experts seem to be hitting the pipe with all their old-time vigor.

A jockey by the name of Noe led all the riders at Miami. There was noe, noe in his name but yes, yes in his results, as the popular song might say it.

We have finally learned why Nurm is called the Phantom Finn—no one seems to have a ghost of a chance with him.

Well, anyway, none of our bantamweight champions ever retired because of love for their mummies. . . . They don't last that long.

The lady next door has decided to call her new chow Joe Kirkwood, because of all the interesting tricks he can do.

TRACK STARS OF OREGON TO FACE STANFORD TODAY

PALO ALTO, Cal., April 11.—A dual track meet between the University of Oregon and Stanford University was the attraction here this afternoon. Because of heavy rains yesterday it was uncertain how the athletes would find the field. A morning of sunshine was hoped for to avoid a repetition of the mudfest last Saturday between the track teams of Stanford and the University of Nebraska.

COUNTRY CLUB TO EXTEND PRIVILEGE

Upon payment of monthly dues, privileges of the Eugene Country club from now on will be extended to all ordained ministers of the gospel and to all commissioned officers of the United States army and navy residing in Eugene. Persons coming under this ruling may enjoy the privileges of the club without purchasing a club membership certificate.

This decision was reached when the club directors met in the regular monthly directors meeting. The new ruling giving membership to ministers and officers is a revision of an older ruling, officers having been granted at a previous time the use of the links upon payment of monthly dues. Upon written application to the secretary of the club, Claire Lee, a card will be issued to persons coming under this ruling.

In the case of visiting airmen, they may play upon payment of green fees.

A. C. Dixon, chairman of the construction committee, reported to the directors that all work on the second nine hole under construction, will be completed by June 1, and that the course will be turned over to the green committee on that date. Bressler Plays First

Daubert's Old Place is Filled

Rube Bressler (By NEA Service)

ORLANDO, April 11.—First base is the only worry of Manager Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds. The job has been assigned to Rube Bressler, handy man of the team. If he delivers it means much to the club's chances.

Bressler began his career as a pitcher with Connie Mack years ago. His ability to hit caused him to be converted into an outfielder and first baseman.

Golf Talk

PUTTING is the easiest part of golf when you watch somebody else do it. It seems so simple to the average player until he gets on the green. Then, unless he has practiced long and efficiently, he is bound to have trouble.

There is no secret to successful putting. I have had countless golfers ask me if there wasn't some little trick or formula to it. But there isn't. Many of them, no doubt, thought I was holding back something when I told them it was all with stroke, grip and stance.

The body must be held still in putting. Accuracy and a precise stroke are the principal features. If the body moves it means the ball will not be hit in the way the player intended when he lined up his shot.

The swing should be made low along the ground because an even swing, which is essential, can be made easiest that way. The action is mostly with the wrists and, don't forget, don't grip the club too tightly.

Junction Baseball Team is Winner

JUNCTION CITY, April 11.—(Special)—The Junction City high school baseball team defeated the Cottage Grove team by the score of 9 to 6. The game was played on the home field Friday and was hard fought from start to finish.
