Time Changes for Stages are Ready

Two huge Pierce-Arrow automobile buses have been purchased by the Pickwick Stage line, and will operate on a new time schedule the latter part of the month, announces Richard Shepard, manager of the Terminal hotel. The big stages will operate on an alternating two and three-day schedule, according to the new arrangements. Through this plan a stage leaving Portland at 7 o'clock in the morning will reach Eugene at approximately at 11:30 o'clock and Yreka, Cal., at 7 o'clock p. m. After an all-night stopover, the stage will proceed from Yreka the next morning, arriving in San Francisco the same evening. The California stage at present is taking three days for the trip, in three jumps—Portland to Roseburg, Roseburg to Redding, and Redding to San Francisco. The second stage will operate on the same schedule used at present.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY IS LAID IN JAPAN

"Abou San of Old Japan," a unique and interesting play of Japanese characters and settings, will be presented at the Eugene high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight, by the Tri-Y organizations of the school. The play is laid in the "empire of the rising sun," with cherry blossoms and gardens predominating.

Helena Barnett plays the part of Abou San, daughter of his majesty. Most of the Evening, jealous of the princess, is Katherine Winchell. Two of the court favorites are O Matsuka San (Pauline Lehman) and O Kiku San (Belle Hartwig). The duchess is portrayed by Margaret Edmondson. Comedy is furnished by Miss Henrietta Dash (Josephine Stiefel), an American news writer, and her black "mammy," Aunt Paradise (Margaret Thompson).

Other characters of the play are: Natsumi-no Mary Klemm Oki-no Jessie Winchell Umi, Sada, Kasa, little peasant maids. Theresa Young, Gladys McCracken, and Pauline Hammit.

Madam Masaga, proprietor and manager of the play Alice Clark One, maid of all work Ethel Rice Peasant girls Helen Pomeroy, Estella Johnson, Gwendolyn Miller and Dorothy Hallin.

Gladys McCracken as solo dancer adds to the beauty of the chrysanthemum fête.

The play is being coached by Mrs. Ruth Rogh and Miss Esther Pike.

PRaise VOICed FOR SELF-GOVERNMENT

Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, president of the Mills college, lauded properly conducted student self-government in her address this morning at the student assembly in the woman's building. Student self-government will make the great number of men and women attending colleges and universities more democratic and better fit them for public service, believes Dr. Reinhardt. They will also be taught humility by their contact with a great number of fellow students who will sometimes oppose them. Dr. Reinhardt also explained how power to solve social problems scientifically and a greater moral courage could be gained by self-government. A resolution of confidence to the family of Ogden R. Mills, a former student and football star of the university, who died at his home in Pauline Tuesday night, was read and passed by the assembly.
