SHRUBS STRIPPED FROM ROADSIDE

McKenzie highway is being rapidly stripped of its natural foliage and shrubbery by week-end visitors and picnickers from Eugene and vicinity, who drive up the highway on Sundays and bring back dogwood and other shrubbery by auto loads, reports C. R. Lockard, junior forester of the Cascade national forest, who returned from a field trip to McKenzie bridge today.

If the roadside continues to be robbed of its splendor every week-end at the present rate, it will be only a short time until it will be entirely barren of natural beauty, says Mr. Lockard. The Cascade will ask for federal regulations to make it a criminal offense, punishable by fine and imprisonment, to remove shrubs from inside the national forest if the practice continues, says Nelson F. Macduff, forest supervisor.
