Morale of Personnel Held To Be Low Since New Blockade Started

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—Internal troubles are proving handicaps to coast guardmen blockading New York's rum row...

Officers have refused to discuss the affair, but it is known that 19 men have been confined for varying periods of the county jail on Staten Island...

A far greater handicap is the prospect of a shortage of men in the fleet. Fully 30 per cent, it is said, will not re-enlist when their service terminates July 1...

The coast guard has found in the speedy rum running boat Cigarette, a foe which is all but invincible. Because of its vastly superior speed...

The present blockade is continuing effectively however, and reports indicate that within a short time, fewer than half a dozen ships will remain of the fifty-odd ten days ago...

Eugene Golfers win Over Salem, Corvallis Teams

The Eugene Country club won a decided victory over the Ilwaco Country club of Salem and the Corvallis Country club in the second leg of the Tri-City golf tournament played yesterday on the Eugene links.

By virtue of this victory the Eugene club is practically certain of winning the Tri-City cup to be awarded the club showing the largest collective score at the end of the three scheduled matches.

The matches yesterday resulted in a score of plus 68 for the Eugene club, plus 11 for Corvallis, and minus 70 for Salem.

The women members of the Eugene club were equally successful in their matches. Mrs. Harold Grady, Mrs. Colin Dymont and Miss Mary Perkins registering victories over Mrs. C. Dillingham, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Olinger, all of Salem.

Yesterday's tourney was one of the most successful and most colorful ever witnessed on the Eugene links. The tournament players from Salem and Corvallis were accompanied by many others who added to the throng which crowded the links and clubhouse throughout the day.

A dinner was served at noon to approximately 150 persons, and tea was served to a large number throughout the afternoon. A considerable number of spectators were present.

SALEM, Ore., May 18.—State officials and employes make cigar money under the state law which allows a mileage rate of 10 cents a mile, for trips on state business for one town to another, according to persons who have been investigating state records.

The statistics that have been compiled show that Edward F. Bailey of Junction City, member of the state house and loan commissioner, made a trip from Junction City to Salem and return, for which he charged the state $11.60 for the 116 miles. This was March 16. On March 23 he made the same trip and the same charge again while on January 23 and 24 he made a trip from Junction City to Portland and back, charging the state $21.80 for it, the total distance being 218 miles.

State Tax Commissioner Earl Fisher is cited as having put in a bill of $2.10 on April 3 for a trip from Salem to Dallas and back. He could have made the trip by stage for $1.50 round trip. He put in a bill of $10.50 for a trip to Portland and return, for which railroad fare would have been $2.50. On April 22, Fisher drove from Salem to Oregon City and back, 77 miles and turned in a bill of $7.70.

Forester Takes Trip. E. A. Elliott, state forester, the records are said to show, on March 10 and 11 went from Salem to Portland by way of McMinnville and return to Salem, a distance of about 140 miles, for which he charged the state $14 for automobile expenses. For a trip from Salem to Portland and back on March 24 and 25 Elliott charged $11.

Similar statistics have been compiled relative to trips made by the following: J. A. Elkins, examiner for the state corporation department; Frank S. Ward, secretary of the state board of pharmacy; Della Pearson, registered nurse with state board of health; W. G. McLaren, member of state parole board; E. G. Hickman of LaGrande, connected with state highway department; C. P. Smith of Seaside, employe of state game commission; W. C. Colburn of Portland, member of state house and loan commissioner; William A. Aird, of state house and loan commission; W. K. Johnson of Tillamook with the state fish commission; J. E. Cassidy of the Public service commission; W. G. Beattie, Oregon Normal school; Carl D. Shoenaker, state fish commission.

Council fire ceremony, to be held in camp every evening, will be a special feature, says Mr. Clark. It will be in the form of a general assembly, with stunts, songs, awards and talks. A court of honor ceremony will be held every Saturday night.

The campsite will be selected for its background for nature study and outdoor program. Qualifications essential will be timber for fire identification and timber cruising, open territory.

DEBTOR REPLY AWAITED WITH INTEREST RIFE

America's Demand to Have Europe Pay Claims is Drawing Attention

France is Held as Keylog Of Jam And Hope Felt Solution is Near

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Washington government is awaiting with interest some word of the reception accorded in the nine European debtor nations to the news that this country desires to arrange funding settlements without undue delay.

Meanwhile there is speculation as to which will be the first to submit a proposal. France, whose debt to the United States is the largest of the lot, is regarded as the hub of the situation and it is known that officials would welcome an opening move from that quarter.

If the means of conveying this government's desires to the foreign capitals have been varied they have lacked nothing in force and definiteness. In every case the debtor nation has been given to understand in an unmistakable way that Washington believes funding arrangements should not be further delayed.

PARIS, May 18.—(AP)—The action of the United States in requesting funding proposals from its European debtors, was foreseen in France and answered in advance, it is said, in official circles, but the ministerial declaration made after the cabinet meeting last Saturday. This was to the effect that Finance Minister Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand had been charged with the task of studying the inter-allied debt question with a view to its settlement.

ROME, May 18.—(AP)—Italy is entitled to have lenient treatment in the settlement of her war debts, Tommaso Tittoni, president of the senate and foreign minister declared yesterday in a speech at Vittorba. The occasion was the unveiling of a monument to men killed in the World War.

Signor Tittoni pointed out that Austria owes Italy heavy debts for war reparations and expenses of occupation but that Italy has received no payments whatever.

William C. Shepherd

DEAN STRAUB WILL ADDRESS CLASS AT LOCAL GRADUATION

Dean John Straub of the University of Oregon has been selected as the speaker for the commencement address to the graduating class of Eugene high school, it was announced today by David John Jones, principal of the school.

The commencement exercises will take place in the First Christian church auditorium the evening of June 12, and Rev. Frederick G. Jennings, chairman of the school board, will present the diplomas to approximately 150 students who will be graduated.

Baccalaureate services will take place at the Methodist church Sunday evening, June 7, at which Rev. H. W. Davis, Y. M. C. A. secretary at the university, will deliver the sermon. A special program of music is also being prepared for this program, it is announced.

Work of June 8 to 12 will be a busy one for the class of '25 at the high school. This is traditionally known as "senior week," and this year it is marked by a full calendar of activities. Senior day is to be Wednesday, June 3, at the high school auditorium, and lunch will be served at the Anchorage. The senior play will be May 28 at the Heilig theater, and will be entitled "The Toy Maker."

Presentation of diplomas at the commencement exercises will mark the end of school for the present semester, and the final event on the seniors' high school program.

State University Gets Law Library Hon. W. D. Fenton, for many years one of the most promising lawyers of the state, and whose funeral services were held in Portland today, leaves a widow, Katherine Lucas of Mountmouth, an aunt of Mrs. Alberta S. McMurphy, 262 Wilamette street.

Justice Fenton had accumulated during his many years' practice a law library considered by many to be the finest of its kind in the state. Since his protracted illness, this library was presented to the University of Oregon in memory of his son, Kenneth Lucas Fenton, who was a law partner of his father until his death a few years ago.

Judge Fenton was 72 years old, and also leaves three sons, two sisters, and five brothers. He was buried in the Riverside cemetery at Portland.

SHEPHERD PUT ON TRIAL ON CHARGE OF SLAYING BOY

CHICAGO, May 18.—William Darling Shepherd went on trial alone today charged with the murder of his millionaire foster-son, William N. (Billy) McClintock, with the prosecution indicating that it would ask the death penalty.

Charles C. Falman, head of a school of science, who was indicted with Shepherd and confessed that he instructed the latter in the administration of typhoid germs and supplied him with cultures, believing that Shepherd planned to kill young "Billy" was granted a separate trial on motion of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. Falman, who said Shepherd had promised him a reward of $100,000, which Falman said he expected to receive if Shepherd obtained "Billy" million dollar estate is slated to be the star witness of the prosecution.

STATE BOARD OF CURRICULA HEARS CLAIMS

Dean Sheldon Speaker For University Supports Recent Brief

State College Has Tendency To Extend Work Under "Service Courses"

PORTLAND, Ore., May 18.—(Special)—That there is an apparent tendency at Oregon Agricultural college to extend, under guise of permissible "service courses," until its activities duplicate those of the University of Oregon was the contention advanced today by Dean H. D. Sheldon, in presenting before the board of higher curricula the case of the university in support of its brief asking that the encroachments of the college be curbed.

For the college, Professor Hector MacPherson contested Dean Sheldon's points, and declared that the university had shown audacity in presuming to dictate to the board of higher curricula, and in attempting to dictate also as to what students of the college should be taught.

Dean Colin Dymont, of the university, announced that he and Dean M. E. Smith, of the college, had reached an understanding on some of the points on which the university had based its protest concerning the teaching of the arts and sciences in the college and that they will file joint recommendation for the future control of those subjects.

Under ruling of Dr. C. J. Smith, chairman of the board of higher curricula, only one speaker for each institution was allowed to present the case for his side fully. Other speakers, this afternoon, were to be limited under the ruling. It was announced that no decision would be given by the board on the merits of the case today, but that it would be taken under advisement.

The FLAPPER WIFE

(Continued) A few minutes after the curtain had gone down on the first act an usher came into the box. He gave Gloria a folded sheet of paper. "You are Miss Gordon, aren't you?" he asked. Gloria nodded.

"Gloria dear, it's good to see you again. Can't you run down to my dressing-room for a minute or two? The boy will show you the way, if he doesn't, he's signed 'Stan'." Gloria took her gold pencil from her bag.

"I can't come. I'm not Gloria Gordon any more. I'm married," she wrote on the back of the note Wayburn had sent up to her. "Then she hesitated. Should she send it? Or should she run down to see him?"

After all, would it be so very wrong to see Stanley Wayburn in his dressing room for five minutes? Well, and what if it was wrong? Dick would probably never hear of it anyway.

And Gloria longed to see Wayburn... if only to dazzle him with her new splendor. To show him that even if he hadn't wanted to... very her, another head had... a man who could afford to give her fur coats and diamonds and Parma violets in the middle of winter.

side his room that had a tin star tacked on the door. "Stan!" she breathed. Before she knew what was happening she was in his arms. The smell of the Turkish cigarettes that he always smoked struck her nostrils as he kissed her again and again. At last Gloria pushed him away. Her cheeks were scarlet. "You shouldn't have done that!" she cried. "I'm married." "So that's it!" Wayburn said. His eyes swept her from her $50 hat to her shoes with their silver buckles. "When I saw you up in the box I wondered what you were using for money this year... Who is the millionaire you've married?" "Richard Gregory, the lawyer," Gloria answered. "Ever hear of him?" Wayburn nodded. "I didn't know he was as darned rich," he said. "Oh, we're not rich... just comfortably well off," Gloria told him. "We've a darling little house and an automobile and a maid. I have everything I want, really." "I'll just bet that address down. I'll be out some day soon to see you, to have a quiet talk over old times," Stan told her. He wrote Gloria's address in a (Continued on page seven)
