

WALL STREET MAY HAVE FORD GROUPS ENTER BIG DEALING

NEW YORK, May 19.—The connection of associates of Henry Ford with a New York bond house was generally held in financial circles today as meaning the manufacturers entrance in Wall street. Yet from Detroit came a denial that it had any significance. The newly organized Guardian Detroit company, opened for business yesterday in the Equitable building on Broadway, near Wall street. One of the directors is Ernest Kandler, vice-president of the Ford Motor company.

The Guardian Detroit company is announced as an investment branch of the Guardian Trust company of Detroit of which Edsel Ford, Henry's son, is a director.

The Guardian Detroit company has taken over the municipal bond business of Kean, Higbie company of Detroit and New York who will continue in business as underwriters.

The New York Tribune says: "Henry Ford has hung out his shingle in Wall street. The man who denounced, defied and dispensed with America's most important financiers has opened up an office in their stronghold."

In a denial that the Ford interests are entering Wall street, Stewart L. Pittman, president of the Guardian Detroit company, said in Detroit: "There is no truth in the statement that Ford interests are making this move. Both men (Edsel Ford and Kandler) held similar positions with the Kean, Higbie company before its incorporation into the new company."

five secretary of the Lane county chapter of the American Red Cross. "After June 7 such applications will not be accepted unless filed within two years from date of lapse or cancellation," says Miss Norton, "with the final date of June 2, 1936 for any application for reinstatement of term insurance." She urges any Lane county veterans coming under the provisions of this act to take advantage of it and restate their insurance promptly.

STIR CAUSED WHEN EVOLUTION TALKED

hibiting the teaching of evolution in Tennessee's schools.

John T. Scopes, high school teacher and coach of the Dayton football team, is the central figure of the war. While the crafty general responsible for the court action is George W. Rappleyea, 50, manager of the Cumberland Coal and Iron company, a "rabid" evolutionist.

Scopes, to test the law, will admit that he taught his high school students from "Civic Biology," a text book adopted by the state text book commission appointed by the governor himself.

The entire book deals with evolution and somewhere near the end the Darwinian theory is summed up as follows: "We have now learned that animal forms may be arranged so as to begin with the simple one called forms and culminate with a group which contains man himself."

Rappleyea, learning of the text book, induced Scopes to become the victim of a court action.

The good people of Dayton were shocked.

Nine-tenths of them had never heard of the evolutionary theory until they read of the law in their weekly paper. At first they were strong for the law.

But now when it involved Scopes. He was the star teacher of the school. And he was the football coach whose team had held Chattanooga off a comparatively low score.

At the same time they will remain unshaken in their belief that man sprang from Adam and Eve and not from the missing link.

And, doing both, they will take out their spite on Rappleyea, for it was he, they say, "who began it all."

One day recently, Scopes actually had to step in to prevent several of his indignant friends from way-laying Rappleyea and giving him a beating.

Money to test out the law is plentiful.

On a drug store window is posted a list of men and women who offer to pay the cost, whatever it may be.

There are 60 names, and the list grows daily. On the list are names of liberals from all parts of the country, from Morris Hillout and the American Civil Liberties union in New York to Maynard Shipley and the American Science association in San Francisco.

Town folk are not interested in the reports that an array of nationally known individuals including William Jennings Bryan will come here to be lined up against a prosecution and defense.

Monkey and snakes, but good football players, have been scarce around town, and may never be another year on Scopes.

New Schools Of Eugene Studied By Medford Board

The members of the school board of Medford accompanied by J. A. Cross, member of the Medford city council, spent yesterday in Eugene, inspecting the two new school houses here, and discussing school matters with Eugene officials and members of the board here. Both the Roosevelt and the Wilson school houses were thoroughly inspected, and the visitors made notes on the many features of the two structures.

The city of Eugene is fortunate to have such excellent buildings, the visitors said, and was also lucky that satisfactory sites were found with no difficulty. At Medford the selection of a school site was difficult and a large expense to the city. A new high school is to be erected there soon.

"Eugene can well be proud of the new buildings," says O. H. Jones, clerk of this district, "for they are already being studied by school officials from other districts as models."

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 19.—Dr. Paul B. Jenkins, in a sermon at Immanuel Presbyterian church here declared, "It is said of Kent Cooper, the wonderful new head of the Associated Press, that his friends consider him 'the most inquisitive man in America.'"

"To him it is simply life itself 'to know,' to find out things, about anything and everything, and then literally to tell the world," he said. "And he is right about it, and that is exactly the kind of man the world needs and wants. For no man can tell how largely, what little, gradual, year by year, intellectual advances America makes due to the intention and attempt of that great organization to have our newspapers give us accurate and exact information."

EDUCATION NEEDED ON SHEPHERD JURY

ing on circumstantial evidence. The defense made prominent the testimony of friends as to Shepherd's character.

A venireman was asked by Shepherd's counsel if prejudice would result in the juror's mind if Shepherd does not act as a witness in his own behalf. Shepherd and his wife, after their first affectionate greeting were not permitted to remain together at the opening of the trial. She was given a seat across the aisle. Both expressed gratification that the trial was under way and Shepherd hoped it would be hurried through.

Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancee of young McClintock, who waited at his death bed with a license to wed him and who was given an $8,000 annuity in his will, returned yesterday from the Pacific coast to testify against Shepherd.

The disappearance of Robert White, an important state witness, was revealed today by First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman who expressed himself as perturbed. He said detectives reported that White, a former employe of Faiman's university of sciences, by whom the state hoped to show that Shepherd had visited the school, had vanished last Friday and that his wife and two children also had disappeared.

Omaha Opens War On Obscene Books

OMAHA, Neb., May 19.—Action against the sale of "obscene" magazines to high school students was started by County Attorney Healy yesterday when he referred to federal authorities complaints of high school teachers that periodicals containing salacious stories and obscene pictures had been found in the school. The magazines in question can be obtained at almost any news stand, County Attorney Healy said, but there is no state law under which the distributors can be prosecuted.

"Such magazines, in my opinion, are doing more to break down the morale of the children than anything else," Healy said. "They are the curse of the age. They print suggestive stories which are not fit for anybody to read, let alone high school children of tender age. If there was any way I might bring prosecutions in these cases I most certainly would do so."

America Held far Ahead of England

LIVERPOOL, May 19.—(AP)—The Very Rev. William Ralph Inge, dean of St. Paul's, who returned here today from his visit to the United States said his visit had convinced him that America, both materially and spiritually, is far in advance of Great Britain.

American "hustle" which tends to irritate some Britishers, the dean found to be "mostly pose." He described the American pronunciation of the English language as very much like our own, when spoken by educated classes.

He said that he had "stuck to prohibition for three weeks" and was out sorry to return to his own cellar. "I told them that in America," he added.
