

COOLIDGE CONFINED TO WHITE HOUSE

House proper. Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, whom he had summoned to a conference earlier in the day. Sitting up, he talked with the senator for 10 minutes on a point relating to international matters.

There had been no previous outward evidence of illness, though it was indicated that Mr. Coolidge had been feeling the effects of the increasingly hot weather of the capital. Mr. Coolidge went to the office at the usual hour, but soon after he had decided to go back to the White House and lie down for awhile.

Only Three Callers

It was said that none of the engagements on today's list were regarded as of an emergency character and that the president and his advisors agreed they could be put over easily until next week.

In all there were but three callers on the list for today, Saturday usually being a day of few conferences.

Senator Jose Del Carmen, the Dominican minister, called at the White House to present Señor Don F. Ederico Velasquez, vice-president of the Dominican republic, but they were unable to see Mr. Coolidge. One of the other cancelled engagements was with a group of visiting police chiefs.

Health Has Been Good

Ordinarily Mr. Coolidge's health has been more robust than is ordinary for a man of his years. He scarcely has missed a day since he entered the White House. For some years, however, he has suffered slightly from throat trouble and has consulted specialists periodically on that account.

Recently he has applied a diet more liberal than usual to the duties of office, working long hours and omitting many social engagements. Last year he went with Mrs. Coolidge to the circus, and when circus time came around again a week ago, a box was reserved for him but only Mrs. Coolidge of the White House occupied it.

The hot wave that has been sweeping over a good part of the country hit Washington with smothering force late last night. From his desk today when the president reached his desk the sun was beating down mercilessly on the south windows of his office.

Because of the high temperatures and humidity of Washington in summer, plans already have been made for setting up a summer house next month at Swampscott, Mass.

There were some indications that he also had felt a touch of indigestion, but all information of an official character was withheld pending consultation of the examination by physicians.

In addition to the day's special engagements, the president's daily reception to delegates of visitors also was cancelled. Recently these delegations have been unusually large. Yesterday he shook hands with six hundred.

Mrs. Coolidge was out walking when the president was taken ill. When she returned soon afterward she found him under care of his physicians.

CANOE FETE SHOWS BEAUTIFUL FLOATS

Offering jewels and dainties, a Maxfield Parrish painting, old legend and story characters, such as Jason and the Golden Fleece, Janice Meredith, and Winkly, Blinkey and Nod, and even Columbia and her ship of state.

There were four points on which the decision of the judges were made: originality, and the expression in relation to its setting. The second point was composition, made up of three elements, balance, rhythm and harmony. Thirdly was the color scheme, on which emphasis was placed, and lastly was artistic excellence and its aesthetic qualities. Each point counted one-fourth. The first prize, which was unanimously decided to the judges, was a silver cup. The prizes for the fete were: Miss Maud Berns, head of the normal arts department; Dean Walker, director of the loan fund and student adviser; and Frederic K. Dunn, of the Latin department.

Pleasant Hill High Wins From Walker

Pleasant Hill high school defeated Walker at Pleasant Hill Friday by a score of 5-1. The game was a pitcher's battle between Humphreys of Pleasant Hill and H. Beuston of Walker. Humphreys struck out 14 men, winning the straight in the ninth inning. H. Beuston struck out 10 men.

All of the scoring was done in the ninth, fifth and sixth innings. The game was played in one hour and 25 minutes.

Pleasant Hill has lost but one game this season. Walker won from them in a game played on the Walker diamond, here.

Medieval France Setting for Prom

Medieval France in the reign of Louis XI furnishes the motif for the decorations of the Junior Prom, the closing event of June week-end to be given in the armory tonight. The decorations will be strung in costumes of the fifteenth century. A feature here will be given by Delbert Faust and associates during the evening.

When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them

No. 9

Question: Why does Buick use a one-piece front axle?

Answer: For safety and strength and care-free service. The Buick type is a one-piece, drop-forged I-Beam. There are no brazed or welded parts to break off. In case of accident it can be easily straightened without the necessity of replacement. You can depend on a Buick axle.
