

MAYOR PARKS URGES THAT VOTERS STUDY ISSUES ON BALLOTS

Citizens of Eugene are urged to study the issues to be presented to the voters at the school election to be held on June 15, and at the city election June 30, by E. B. Parks, mayor. "The matters coming up at both elections are of vital importance to the city," says Mr. Parks, and the measures are essential if the city is to function properly. Whether a voter is in favor of the projects or not, he should familiarize himself with them, so that he can cast an intelligent ballot."

At the school election, June 15, a member of the school board will be elected, and two projects, one for $15,000 for an athletic field for the city schools, and the other for $10,000 for additional equipment for the new junior high schools, will be put on the ballot. So far John T. Evans, 1925 Alder street, is the only candidate for this place. Mr. Evans is a member at present, and will seek re-election.

Athletic Field Proposed
An athletic field which can be used as a practice field by the high school, and for contests between schools of the city, is badly needed. Several sites that would be suitable are available, if the purchase price is authorized. It is stated, Two of these sites are on South Willamette street, the most favored being the one now in use by the high school athletes. The $10,000 asked for the Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson junior high schools is needed for additional equipment. More students than were at first contemplated will be enrolled next fall, it is said, and more equipment will be necessary. It is also desired to install steel lockers, articles which are necessary, it is stated.

Fire Apparatus on Ballot
The main issue on the city election June 30 will be the bond issue of $25,000 for fire equipment. A mistake idea is abroad in the city, officials believe, concerning these bonds. The bonds are not for additional equipment, but for payment of apparatus already purchased and in use, it is pointed out. The new engines are absolutely essential to the city, it is stated, and should be paid for as soon as possible. This project failed to carry at the last election, although it was voted at a previous election that is now involved in courts due to the litigation against the University auditorium project.

Two other measures, both relating to assessment of cost for city improvements, are to be put on the city ballot, it is announced. The judges and clerks for polling places are to be announced later, it is stated. Polling places will be as follows: District number one, Public Library; district number two, Armory; district number three, Hampton building; district number four, city hall.

SOCIETY AND CLUBS

By MARIAN LOWRY

Members of the College Crest Community club and friends to the number of one hundred and seventy-five or more gathered at the clubhouse of the organization last evening for a strawberry festival and dancing and card party. The affair was one of the larger social events of the year for the club and proved a very interesting and successful one.

One of the very charming traditional services for university women will take place tomorrow morning when the junior women entertain the senior women at the annual senior breakfast. The affair is sponsored by the Young Women's Christian association of the campus. The breakfast this year will be given at eight-thirty o'clock in the Woman's building. Miss Margaret Boyer, president of the campus Y. W. C. A., is to be toastmistress for the occasion; Miss Ellen McEllen will speak in representing the junior women; and Miss Mary Jane Hathaway is to speak for the senior women. Short talks are also to be given by Mrs. Virginia Judy Esterly, dean of women; Mrs.

Clara Fitch, and Miss Florence Manowan. A musical program has also been arranged. Miss Eloise Buck is chairman for the breakfast.

One of the gala events of the year for a group of university students will take place tonight when the staff of the Emerald, the student daily, holds its annual banquet at the Woman's building in the sun parlor. The event marks the end of Emerald work for the year. Between one hundred and twenty-five and one hundred and fifty are expected to be at the affair this evening.

The picnic luncheon which members of Domestic Art club were to sponsor Monday at the home of Mrs. A. L. Ingalls has been postponed until a later date.

Miss Dorothy Dickey has returned to her home in Eugene to spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. Marion L. Dickey. Miss Dickey has just completed a year's teaching as director of music in the schools at Gresham.

Conquering ambition seems to be to have a dress suit, and it deals in amusing detail with his frantic attempts, his untiring efforts, his grim persistence, and of the almost heart-rending failure which marks the result of each attempt.

The outcome of the story is not the type which is suspected from the first paragraph and evident beyond interest at the end of the second chapter, but it is one which after the play is over, makes one say, "It had an ideal ending."

Leading roles are being taken by Gordon Stearns as the ardent young man, Lyndall Elliott as the wonderful girl, and Lora Buchanan as the mischievous sister. The play will be repeated tonight.

Senior Cass Wins Audience at Heilig In Charming Play

Excellent characterizations, and a well timed, interesting plot combined to make the "Toymaker" one of the best plays to be presented here this year. The Eugene high school senior class, working under the competent direction of Mrs. Norman Christy, and with the stage artisty of Eunice Zimmerman, put on a production at the Heilig last night that will be long remembered, and which was well received by a large audience.

The play was one of tender sympathies, of a boy's love for a girl, of an old toymaker, who, no matter what happens, says, "we'd better smile." The girl, the mayor's daughter, was charmingly played by Opal Robertson, who at all times was sincere and winning. David, son of the toymaker, was the role aptly given to Lawrence Parks, who portrayed the character of a boy suddenly grown into a man with real native ability.

Carol Eberhart, as the Toymaker, did one of the finest pieces of character acting seen on the Heilig stage this year, but none. He remained the lovable old man at all times, and his acting was excellent. Ruth Hodson, as Marr, his wife, was also very commendable. These two different parts were outstanding in the performance.

Others in the play who displayed genuine thespian ability were Ray Oglesby, who took the role of a raff, big hearted sergeant; Lester Olson, the boy's friend; Addison Brockman, the poet; the children, Helen Barnett and Hershel Honey; Scott M. Blinn, as the Clerk; and Marvin Schrader, the stranger.

"Arkansas Joe" is Interesting act On Carnival lot

Many quaint and curious characters about at the Snapp Brothers' Carnival show, but one of the most interesting is "Arkansas Joe." This old fellow, who looks to be about 70, and really is, brings forth strange melodies on a "fiddle" of his own making. "Joe" invented the instrument himself, he says, and many of his melodies were inspired by the night winds whistling around his lonely cabin in the hills of Arkansas. The odd musician has long gray whiskers and hair, which he admits he takes off on hot nights. He is a genuine Arkansas cracker, however.

Other oddities in the tent with Joe are the man who sticks hatpins through his cheeks and arms, a corps of dancing girls and a genuine fire-eater. The circus, which has as a feature a seven-year-old boy acrobat, attracted crowds last night. The boy is aptly called "The Human Dynamo" for he can do a variety of acrobatic and tumbling feats. Wild animals and several riding acts are also included. The carnival will continue tonight, and will close tomorrow evening after a successful run.

INSURE WITH HENRY TROMP

TREATMENT GIVEN FOR GARDEN SLUG

Eugene gardeners who are bothered by garden slugs should begin their control practices early, warns O. S. Fletcher, county agricultural agent. These little pests reproduce in large numbers, and ruin hundreds of dollars in garden crops annually, he says. In a way they are almost poisonous.

"In planning a campaign for controlling slugs it is advisable first to clean up all trash, crop remnants and debris upon the premises," says Mr. Fletcher.

"This will usually need to be supplemented with more direct methods to destroy the slugs remaining. Repellents, dusts, and in fact most of the materials commonly used and generally recommended in literature are at best but temporary value under western Oregon conditions. A combination of a repellent applied directly to the plants and an attractive poison bait scattered on the soil has given the best results.

"Bordeaux mixture 4-4-50 sprayer on the foliage of plants is distasteful to slugs and is eaten by them only under stress from lack of other food. The recently developed commercial dry bordeaux may be dusted over the foliage. Liquid bordeaux gives, perhaps, a little better control, but the powdered form has the advantage that it sticks better on smooth, waxy foliage like that of cabbage. With dry bordeaux it is not necessary to purchase expensive equipment; it may be readily applied by shaking through a coarse sack or cheese-cloth bag. It would probably be economy to use a dust gun when comparatively large areas are to be treated. In conjunction with the bordeaux application on the foliage as a repellent a poison bait should be used.

Calcium arsenate 1 part by weight to 16 parts of chopped lettuce is readily eaten and is highly toxic to slugs. In case lettuce is not available, cabbage, kale, clover, or other succulent leaves may be used. The bait should be scattered in small heaps at frequent intervals over the infested area.

"Spraying or dusting plants with bordeaux mixture combined with placing of a calcium arsenate and lettuce bait on the soil has been in our tests the most satisfactory means of controlling slugs. The treatment may need to be repeated once or twice at seven to ten day intervals until the slug infestation has been reduced to a minimum.

M'KENZIE ROAD IN GOOD REPAIR

McKenzie highway roads are in splendid condition all the way to Belknap springs, it was reported today by Edward L. Kimball and Gerald Garner, who returned from a motor trip to the various resorts on the highway.

"With the exception of a small stretch of road approximately two miles long just the other side of Nimrod that is a little bumpy, the road is in fine shape," says Mr. Garner. "Reports that the highway is impassable above Nimrod are all wrong, and the road is now in good enough shape that Eugene motorists, vacationists and summer picnickers may reach all the summer resorts above Nimrod."

The scenery at this season around Cascade resort and Belknap is well worth a motor trip especially for this purpose, it is reported.

The best advice we can get from the largest growers on the strawberry supply is that the strawberry season is fast closing. From what they say strawberries are now priced at their lowest, and that now is the time to buy for canning purposes.
