RAIL OFFICIALS AT KLAMATH FALLS

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., June 3.—Officials of the Hill and Southern Pacific lines were here today investigating local conditions in connection with their plans for entry to Klamath county and central Oregon.

Hill line officials here include L. C. Gilman, vice-president of the Great Northern; C. A. Hart of Portland, general counsel; A. H. Heageland, Great Northern consulting engineer, P. E. Thian, assistant chief engineer for the Northern Pacific and A. J. Witchell, chief engineer for the Oregon Trunk.

J. H. Dyer, general manager of the Southern Pacific arrived here from San Francisco with a party of engineers and other Southern Pacific officials.

Neither group would discuss the situation, other than to say they were here to investigate conditions generally.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., June 3.—Although no definite decision has been made A. M. Collier, newly elected president of the Klamath county chamber of commerce, favors a general vote of the membership on the question as to whether or not support should be proffered more than one of the railroads now seeking to enter Klamath county.

A special committee will be announced next Tuesday and the question of a general vote on the railroad situation will be left with it.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The Coronada Coal company today asked the supreme court for a rehearing of the case in which it recently held that the National and International organizations of the United Mine Workers were free of blame for damages growing out of the Arkansas coal strike of 1914.

They Meet Again

Farnell Walton and Mrs. Alice Risley

SOLDIER AND NURSE OF 1863 REUNITED

(By NEA Service)

JOPLIN, Mo., June 3.—The light that burned in the eyes of a brave young soldier and a pretty little nurse sixty-two years ago is still shining.

In 1863 Farnell Walton, a federal soldier, was severely wounded. He lay in an army hospital at New Orleans and his life was despaired of.

He didn't seem to care if he lived or died.

But one day he met a pretty nurse, Miss Alice Farmer.

And Walton began to want to get well. Miss Farmer would talk with him by the hour. His desire to recover did what the medicines could not do.

Walton got well and went back to his regiment. The two never saw each other.

Then it was 1925. There was a state encampment G. A. R. veterans here. Walton was discussing old times with Mrs. Alice Risley, national president of the Women's Relief Corps.

He told her of Alice Farmer, the pretty nurse.

"That was my name before my marriage," said Mrs. Risley. And then came mutual recognition.

No, there's no romance of the story book kind. Both are happily married.

But they have agreed to meet at the annual encampments as long as both live.

An elaborate display of roses, in spite of the hard winter season, is to be seen at the annual rose show of the ladies' auxiliary of the chamber of commerce in the chamber rooms today. Waddell display; group of six, first prize of $3 to Mrs. W. F. Wendt for Frau Karl Druschki roses; second of $2 to Mrs. Jess Darling for Caroline Testout specimens. The prizes for single roses were awarded after much deliberation: First, $1.50 to C. H. Hales for Hadley rose; second, $1, to Mrs. William Preston for Rhea Reid. Five honorable mentions were named: First, Golden Emblem of Mrs. Mary Wallace, second, pink LaFrance, Mrs. Mary Wallace; Isabel, of C. H. Hales; Mme. Waddell, of Mrs. B. B. Brundage; Imperial Potentate, Mrs. Elizabeth Kerns.

"We consider the display very fine," said Mrs. Harris, "considering the fact that nearly all the bushes are new growth this year."

The exhibit will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening.

Shriners Sing of "Unusual" Rain

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 3.—(AP)—A June rain, "most unusual," according to all Angelenos despite the broad grins of visiting nobles, forced the abandonment of the Shrine program for today in the Coliseum.

And to rub it in, squads of the gaily garbed host tramped the sloppy streets chanting: "In June it never rains, they say:

"It never rains they say;
"In June it never rains, they say.
"But it rained like —— today."

Motley Flint, director general of the Shrine pageant, came back at his jollying friends, with the announcement that the scheduled parade will be held tonight even though it showers pitchforks.

Portland Zoning Plan is Illegal

PORTLAND, Ore., June 3. — A zoning ordinance recently adopted by popular vote in Portland, fixing certain districts as exclusively residential sections, was declared unconstitutional today by Circuit Judge Robert G. Morrow. City Attorney Frank S. Grant announced that an appeal would be taken and that the case may be carried to the United States supreme court.

Judge Morrow held that since the property involved in the case upon which the plaintiffs sought to establish a creamery, was worth less as residence property than as the site of a creamery, the zoning law, which prohibits business buildings in the district results in partial confiscation, and is therefore unconstitutional.

Rainier Speed Trap Reported

PORTLAND, Ore., June 3.—The Oregon State Motor association today through Joseph E. Dunne, president, announced that a speed trap had been in operation at Ranier, on the Lower Columbia river highway.

"The trap, as conducted last weekend, was set on a long straight stretch of road near Delena," said the announcement. "Two county officers paroled this stretch and kept in hiding until the motorist had passed. Even if he were exceeding the speed limit only slightly, he was arrested and $10 bail was demanded. He was then instructed to report later to Justice of the Peace Herman at Rainier, but was given to understand that if he failed to report nothing further would be done about the matter.

"The Oregon State Motor association frowns upon this sort of procedure," continued President Dunne, "and will do everything in its power to break down any such practice. With the thousands of visitors who will be traveling to the beaches this summer, it would be an injustice to allow such practices to continue."

JAPANESE ARE NOT ANGRY AT AMERICA

The Japanese people as a whole, especially the ruling class, do not seem to bear any grudge toward America because of the recent anti-legislation. This is the opinion of Harvey Wheeler of the Security Savings and Loan company who spent 14 years in Japan, returning to Eugene a few months ago.

"The newspapers were bitter for a while," said Mr. Wheeler, "but there were very few demonstrations when the American immigration bill went into effect on July 1 last year."

Nagoya, where he was living, was well policed, and special officers were detailed to guard Americans in the country. "One came to our house twice a day, but there was never any trouble," he added.

"Then you think there is no bitter feeling between the United States and Japan as far as the ordinary Japanese citizen is concerned?" he was asked.

"I do not think there is," was the answer, "but you cannot always tell what a Japanese is thinking. He is always polite."

Character Is Told

Asked if he had found the Japanese vindictive by nature, Mr. Wheeler replied in the negative.

The possible menace of a Russian-Japanese-Chinese alliance came up in the discussion. Mr. Wheeler is not inclined to believe in the "Yellow Peril" bugaboo. The War party, which has influenced Japan for so long is dying out, and the Civil party is coming into power. The Japanese are a peaceful people and not in favor of war.

"The ordinary Japanese look down upon China, and under the surface, I belive they have little use for the Russians. Of course, as I said before, you can't tell what a Japanese is thinking. If the opportunity ever comes to fight against America it would be hard to say what would really happen."

Voting Is Limited

The suffrage in Japan is limited to those who pay a certain amount of taxes. This requirement represents a fairly large sum of money to the ordinary citizen. Public opinion is expressed in mob action. When a public official does something against wishes of the people, a mob invades his office or home and tells him so.

"Japan is very sensitive about her place among the world powers. After the passage of the immigration bill in the United States, the Japanese papers held up America's act as an insult to Japan's dignity. It seemed to be this that rankled most.

For a number of years, Mr. Wheeler was an instructor in the Mission Middle school at Nagasaki, in the southern part of Japan. Later, he went to Tokyo as an instructor in Boyama Bakwin, a mission college. At the time of the great earthquake there, he was in buisness in Nagoya with a large American importing and exporting company.

America Is Good

"Up until 1924, every Japanese boy had an ambition to come to America some time or other. Our country was looked upon as a land of opportunity," said Mr. Wheeler. "American books are used in all the schools in teaching English, and the young Japanese is brought up on the same ideals as the American boy. It is hard for the Japanese boy to realize that now he cannot go to America."

"Theoretically a Japanese girl is as independent as an American girl, but actually she is still bound in many ways by tradition," Mr. Wheeler said. "When we first came to Japan it was fairly easy to get good servants; but when girls can go to work in the factories, it is much more difficult to find any who are willing to do housework."

One of the most difficult things for the Occidental mind to comprehend is the custom still common in Japan which permits a Japanese girl to enter a "brothel" in order to rescue her family from debt or to support her brothers in school. The family is held above personal honor or chastity.

Divorce and marriage in Japan are extremely simple matters. A declaration before the proper official fulfills all the requirements in either case. Divorce is very common especially among the upper classes.

Industry Is Topic

In discussing the industrial situation of the country, Mr. Wheeler mentioned the advantage Japan possessed in water power due to the steepness of the land. While this is a handicap to agriculture, the intensive system of cultivation they practice offsets this disadvantage.

"Agricultural conditions are not good," reported Mr. Wheeler. "The work is all done by hand. The land is not adapted to the use of the big American machinery and since there are so many people in Japan there must be something to give them work."

There is little rotation of crops. Rice is grown year after year. This is another handicapping feature of the agricultural situation in Japan.

"Labor is not cheap in Japan," asserted Mr. Wheeler. "Before the war, carpenters were getting one yen a day—about a half dollar. Now they get three and four yen a day but the cost of everything else has gone up."

Car Turns Over; Nobody Injured

SALEM, Ore., June 3.—An automobile accident that was freakish in that no one was hurt, considering the nature of the mishap, occurred on the Pacific highway near Brooks today.

A car driven by Charles Pierron of Bremerton, Wash., with whom were Mrs. Pierron, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woods of Portland and an infant child of the latter, skidded from the right to the left side of the wet pavement, toppled into the ditch and overturned on its side. F. A. Beard of Salem, chanced to witness the accident. He rescued the party by opening the door of the sedan on the upperside as the car lay on its side in the ditch.

A pianist playing a brilliant number will touch as high as 1000 keys in a minute with one hand.

Mrs. Walzalsky Mrs. Smith

A little Polish boy, without telling his parents, changed his name the first day in an American school. He had a fine Polish name, but he was in America, in a new world, and he wanted a name that would symbolize his great change.

European women, upon coming to America, quickly revolutionize the manner of things they buy for their tables and their homes. An authority has estimated that foreign-born women ask for goods by their advertised names within two weeks after they have begun housekeeping in America.

They are quick to sense that in the new world the good things are advertised, and that unknown goods in unknown stores are likely to be of unsatisfactory quality.

As the European woman quickly learns, American advertising is for the buyer's protection.

An advertised product bears a proud name. It has a reputation to uphold
