FLOPPY HATS, FILMY FROCKS FEATURE SUMMER FASHIONS

Flamboyant Colors About to Have Their Inning, According to New York Fashion Authority

Two of the Newest Summer Outfits.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS (NEA Service Writer) NEW YORK, June 12.—Flamboyant colors are about to have their inning, for all these are featured in the new summer styles.

"Summer dresses are lovelier this year than ever before," says Henri Bendel, New York style authority, "because they strike so high and individual a color note."

"We have finally overcome our inhibitions against the use of bright colors for day frocks and have consequently achieved more stunning effects than ever before. Black or navy blue have been the accepted colors for the day, and white or pastel shades for evening."

One of the most interesting frocks I saw displayed in the model photographed with the wide sash. Revolutionary? This is of coral colored cotton voile with insets of lace dyed the exact shade, mounted over a slip of navy blue satin. The sash too is navy blue.

BANKS OFFER WOMEN CHANCE

Number Will be Greatly Increased in Ten Years, Noted Woman Banker Says

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS (NEA Service Writer) NEW YORK, June 12.—The number of women bankers in the United States is certain to increase greatly in the next decade.

This is the opinion of a woman who has made an outstanding success in banking. She is Mrs. William Laimbeer, now in charge of the women's department of the National City Bank, one of the largest banks in the country.

A short time ago her ability attracted so much attention that the bank abandoned its long-established policy of filling important executive positions with men.

Mrs. Laimbeer, 12 years ago, was a widow with three small children. Her first business enterprise was canning fruit in her country home to sell in the city. Since then she has made steady progress in the business world.

She predicts a great expansion in the women's departments of banks within the next ten years. "And the logical persons to develop these are women," she says. "When you consider that nearly 40 per cent of the depositors of the United States are women and that 75 per cent of the savings account depositors are women, you will realize the opportunities banking now affords women."

But Mrs. Laimbeer warns that an executive position in a bank is still difficult for a woman to attain. "You must grow into it from the inside by several years of hard work, gain it through influence or must have such a reputation for yourself in some other line of work so that a bank will seek you. Possibly the last way is the most usual method of entrance."

"A woman is valuable to a bank in the proportion that she can bring in and develop business and new accounts," she went on to say.

"I would never advise a woman to go outside her own environment to get her start. She can do best in her own community where she knows people and conditions. There are excellent opportunities for women to develop women's departments of the smaller banks of the country, particularly those in rural districts. At present

STRAIGHT TALK TO JUNE BRIDES

Cynthia Grey Tells Girls Who Are Marrying This Month Things For Their Own Good

By CYNTHIA GREY THIS is a straight talk to June brides . . . to you thousands of girls who are marrying in this month of moonlight and magic and mating.

You are sure that nothing in the world really matters but love, aren't you?

And you are more than certain that marriage is just love, aren't you?

But it isn't. It is love . . . plus a good many things!

Love is sweet, but it wouldn't do for a steady diet any more than chocolate or sugar or any other cloying sweet. It's like the frosting on the cake. There must be something solid and wholesome underneath to give it substance.

There must be understanding and sympathy and teamwork.

Love doesn't bring absolute understanding of the loved one. Men and women belong to two wholly different worlds.

It's not easy for a wife to understand her husband.

When yours telephones you a couple of months from now to tell you he's going to stay downtown for supper with "the boys," the chances are that you will be hurt.

You will think that your husband no longer loves you, or else that he is a gay dog and you are just finding him out.

Neither is the case. Your husband is only returning to his normal life that was interrupted by his honeymoon with you.

And this return is inevitable. A normal man needs his man friends just as you need your girl chums to go shopping with.

So don't "bawl out" your husband when he spends all Sunday afternoon playing golf with that bore, Jim Biffer. If you have tried to understand his preference for Jim and can't, let it go at that.

Then, suppose that some night when you are all dressed up in your raspberry crepe to go out dancing with the Browns, your very own husband comes home with a headache.

They often do this. And usually the headache is a real one!

But it's not easy to sympathize with a husband on an occasion like this. Very often the bride will doubt that her Best-Beloved really has a headache.

Don't make this mistake. Once a man thinks that you don't believe him, you have destroyed your greatest power over him and that is your touching confidence in him.

The thing for you to do in a case like this is to bring out the ice-bag and the hot-water bottle. Put the one on his fevered brow, the other at his feet . . . and telephone the Browns that you'll have to go dancing with them some night next week instead of this one!

Money is another important part of married life, as many a June bride discovers along about October when it's time to lay in the winter coal and pick out the fall suit!

She knows that her best-loved has no money, and that he'll pay her bills cheerfully for her very good reasons. But she who is tempted to wonder how many gorgeous dresses and cufflink stockings he can buy after the rent is paid, and the grocer and butcher have been appeased?

Then there is the all-important question of privacy. Because you are a man's wife, you have no right to be with him like his shadow . . . at all times.

There are men who cannot share when anyone else is in the room with them.

There are men who do not like to be disturbed by chatter while they are reading the morning paper. As an old popular song once pointed out: "There are times when one wants to be alone."

Respect your husband's rights as a person. Give him time to himself. Do not open his letters. And if he doesn't tell you all about his affairs, do not cross-question him about them.

There are things concerning a man's business that he very often doesn't care to discuss with anyone . . . not even with you! Remember that his thoughts are his own, at all times! And keep yourself attractive and interesting.

A man can love a woman who has "crow's" feet and wrinkles, so long as the wrinkles are the upward tilting ones that come from laughter.

He cannot fall to be interested in a woman who is interested in him and in the things that interest him.

Last of all there is the question of children. No woman has a right to marry unless she intends to have her babies. Bluntly speaking, that is what marriage is for . . . for the onward march of the race.

The woman who has her family is helping civilization. And not only that, but she is binding her husband to her with ropes of steel. Only the abnormal man feels anything but pride in the woman who has made him the head of a family of healthy, wholesome babies.

CURLED COG FOR HATS Curled cog is very much in vogue in Paris for hat trimming, particularly for the small turbans that seem to be polished on the head.

TO MAKE FERNS GROW Keep your ferns in a deep container because their roots extend far in the earth.

HAVE WIDE STREAMERS Many of the new hats have wide streamers or veils about the crown that also wrap about the throat and have one loose end that falls below the waistline.

A Personal Note

Wearing a shirt for four or five days simply isn't done. Wearing one for months without cleaning is unthinkable. But doesn't your suit or overcoat pick up just as much dirt? You know what one day does to a shirt cuff. Why not make a habit of having your outer garments cleaned with the same regularity you have your undergarments cleaned?

LARAWAY'S

Music Is The Fourth Essential!

What is the thing most essential to the human race after food, shelter and raiment?

MUSIC—Music enables us to give expression to feelings and ideals which we could never express in any other manner. It is the outlet of the finer things way down deep within us.

MUSIC is something everybody needs and enjoys. But unless you realize that fact you're apt to go without it—to come home at night to a silent house, lifeless, dreary; or if not silent, then filled with the innumerable sounds of restlessness, of disquiet, while there is a pervading atmosphere of what-shall-we-do-now?

Every Family Should Have the Means of Producing Good Music

The Gulbransen Registering Piano, the Victrola and Brunswick Phonographs, the Knabe and Fischer Ampico Reproducing Pianos have all made it possible for those who are not skilled technically to know as much of the beauties and benefits of music, and to enjoy it as fully as the trained musician.
