By MARIAN LOWRY
COMING and going in unexpected continuity that holds an interest not unlike the fascination of the highways and roads that bring them, scores of visitors keep the social monotony in gladness mood. With a luncheon or tea or bridge party, and sometimes two planned for each day, the past week came as the initial greeting that Eugene annually gives to a host of old friends and new ones who journey here and nearby by vicinities for their summer vacations.

Of special interest of this week's affairs was the tea given Tuesday by Miss Elma Hendricks and Mrs. Ruby Goodrich for Mrs. Chester Starr (Norma Hendricks) of Kansas City; the tea given Wednesday by Mrs. Elizabeth Kerns and Miss Maude Kerns; the summer session reception given last evening for the faculty and students on the campus; and the party given this afternoon by Mrs. Charles Taylor.

And now the Fourth of July. For the coming week will bring a rush of plans for the great summer holiday. Although Eugene has made no schedule for a celebration, no one here this year can but spend a most pleasurable day. While hundreds will flock to nearby cities observing the day with special programs, others are welcoming the two-day holiday by arranging for week-end motor jaunts to all parts of the state, and particularly to the seashore and the mountains. And on the day itself it is doubtful if a single knick pine ground will fail to serve a huge patronage.

Of particular interest of June weddings was that of Miss Mary Lee Sullivan and Lyle T. Kelling which was a very simple event solemnized Sunday morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's Episcopal church. Rev. Frederick G. Jennings, pastor of the church reading the service.

Pink roses, snow spray, sweet peas and Canterbury bells formed a lovely setting at the altar.

The bride wore a tasteful costume of blue and tan silk with a small hat to match.

Miss Dorothy Applegate of Portland was maid of honor, and Sam Brough was best man.

After the ceremony Mrs. Ella T. Johnson entertained at a breakfast party at her home for Mr. and Mrs. Kelling and Miss Applegate and Mr. Brough.
