RADIO ACTIVITY BANISHES HUBBY TO CHICKENHOUSE

(By NEA Service)

OMAHA, June 27.—Back in the palmy days when Rome was a nine o'clock town and they blew out the street lights in Athens promptly at midnight, it was the unwritten law that the husband was boss under his own roof.

He might be an awful bust among his fellow citizens, but when he got home his word was The Works.

Now all of this has changed, and Mr. A. H. Barrett, local tailor, has just discovered it.

Mr. Barrett, however, has discovered the way out.

As a result, the family chickens have been cast adrift and the foot of the family has taken over their coop.

But this is getting ahead of the story.

It all started when Mr. Barrett became addicted to radio.

Radio is a fine thing if a man knows when he's had enough.

But it's an insidious habit if it gets a hold on you.

Mr. Barrett took to making his own sets. First he built a crystal set. Then he made a one-tube set. Then he acquired another tube.

Then sinful pride set in and he built all kinds of sets.

Now up to this point Mrs. Barrett had looked on radio as slightly lowering, but on the whole harmless. The first half dozen sets were all right with her.

But pretty soon it got so that she couldn't take a step without tripping over a trailing wire. There was radio for breakfast, for dinner, for supper, radio in the watches of the night and radio in the broad daylight.

So Mrs. Barrett drew the line there. Then she told her husband to toe it. The radio must go.

It did. So did Mr. Barrett.

He exiled the chickens from their coop in the back yard and moved in himself.

A few hours work with broom and brush and the coop became a comfortable little cabin. There all the radio sets were installed in all their glory, and there also did Mr. Barrett set up a bed and a small cook stove.

Now the coop is his home. In it he eats, sleeps and radios.

Mrs. Barrett is not allowed in. Mr. Barrett makes his own bed and cooks his own meals. He even sweeps occasionally.

And nobody has a word to say about his radio.

WHERE RADIO BUG RULES ROOST

This is how A. H. Barret, Omaha tailor, solved the radio problem. When his wife objected to radio in the house he moved to a back-yard chicken coop, radio and all. Above he is shown listening in while he eats supper. Below are a camera study of Barret and a snapshot of the front of his coop.

WEST WINDS BRING RELIEF FROM HEAT

late yesterday afternoon. The temperature during the afternoon reached 94, five degrees less than the previous day. Prospects today were for another day at least as warm as yesterday. All forest fires were down this morning, according to the forestry office.

HOT SPELL BROKEN

MEDFORD, Ore., June 27.—The extremely hot spell in Medford appears to be broken, according to the local weather bureau. The minimum this morning was 58—two degrees less than yesterday. At eight o'clock today the mercury had only reached 68, while yesterday at the same time it had reached 75.

Campers Get Fire Permits for Trips

Eight camp fire permits were issued today from the office of the Cascade national forest to the following: C. C. Meyers, 200 Twelfth avenue west, to build a fire on the Willamette highway; J. C. L. Wooley, 1240 Beach street, for McKenzie and Blue River districts; D. B. Robinson, for the south fork of the McKenzie; Harry Devereaux, for Lost Lake and McKenzie highways; Thomas Billings, Wendling camp 35, for the McKenzie; John Sankey and Harry Jones, Springfield, for the McKenzie highway and Burns vicinity; F. C. Bachelder, 708 Fourth avenue west, for McKenzie.

Three permits were issued yesterday: C. F. Bridges, Los Angeles, for McKenzie; T. R. Powers, 1635 Thirteenth avenue east, McKenzie; and Mrs. George Upton, Turlock, Cal., for Belknap springs.

POET IS FOUND IN COUNTY JAIL

In Paul B. Williams, an 18-year-old youth in the county jail on a burglary charge, fellow prisoners discovered a real poet, according to Donald Young, named by Judge Skipworth to represent the prisoner. After talking with the young man, attorney Young found him to be a profound thinker, possessed of a good education, and a keen faculty of imagination.

Williams was arrested in Eugene during the Sunpp brothers' carnival here, when he stole food from an ice-box in a local home.

"I haven't any alibi," was his explanation. "When a man's hungry it just dulls his ideas of right and wrong, that's all." He walked from Portland without food.

Cell mates in the county jail find the boy an interesting conversationalist, and frequently gather around him to listen to his unique views of life. He writes poems on request, and after investigating their context and the youth's methods of writing, Attorney Young declares he is convinced they were original.

Two of the boy's poems, given to Mr. Young by a prisoner, are as follows:

Smiling Skies

Dear Woman of the laughing eyes,
You are to me the summer skies
That warm the earth beneath their feet
With gentle, kindly, loving heat.
That cheers my spirits from despair,
And make my thoughts a daily prayer
That you will smile, and never know
The winter's ice and sleet and snow.
Oh summer skies of truest blue,
Sincerest thanks I give to you.
Let me remain beneath your eyes,
Just kiss me gently, summer skies.

Deaf and Blind

In their hearts the fools have said,
"There is no God." And so are dead.
For they with ears who never heard
God's promise in his spoken word.
And though with eyes that cannot see
Their God who waits so patiently—
They die, e'en though they live.
As much as mortal life can give.
For after death the birth begins,
And he who loses now will win
Eternal Life through the death
Of Him, who with his dying breath,
Upon the cross, forgave the thief
And saved us from eternal grief.

* * *

Yes, dead are they for evermore
Who never meet their God, before
They reach the End, which is the Start;
And never from this earth depart.
But stay within their earthly clay
Until the coming judgment day.

* * *

The youth will be released, Judge Skipworth has ordered, and paroled to his mother, Anna Wulff of San Francisco.

Work Progresses For Natron Route

Work is being rushed by the Southern Pacific on the Natron cutoff, according to David Auld, vice-president of the United States National bank, who returned this morning from 15 miles above Rail Head where he went with Theodore Knudson, sub-contractor under Henry and McFee at camp number 9. Two shifts keep the heavy construction work going, Mr. Auld says, with 3000 men employed. Blasting continues from before daylight to midnight. While he was there Mr. Auld saw one large blast which made between 50,000 and 75,000 yards of rock.

Lecture Course to Be Repeated Here

Announcement of the repetition of a short lecture course in Parent-Teacher work under the auspices of the University of Oregon this summer has been made to Parent-Teacher workers and educators interested in the Parent-Teacher association.

This course will be given by Miss Francis Hays, field secretary for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Eugene will have the opportunity to attend this course Monday, June 29, at the Y. W. bungalow. The meeting is to be called at 3 o'clock and is given in connection with the summer school work. Miss Hays is well known in Eugene. The public is invited to attend. The university is giving a reception at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Woman's building for Miss Hays and Mrs. George Perkins. The public is invited.

SMUGGLERS TAKEN WITH RUM CARGO

MOBILE, Ala., June 27. — While customs officials, prepared to remove a huge cargo of seized liquor from a captive schooner to a storage warehouse here today, 23 men arrested aboard that vessel and several smaller craft faced preliminary examination on charges growing out of the sensational booze haul in which the coast guard cutter Saukee rounded up seven boats about 20 miles west from Southwest Pass, La.

Nearly 6000 cases of alcohol and assorted whiskey constituted the liquor cargo, a majority of which was carried by the schooner, the Marion Adams ,a British registry vessel of 99 net tons.

Six small boats found in the vicinity of the schooner were also taken captive.

The hall marked what is believed to be the largest seizure made by a single coast guard vessel, since the beginning of the rum blockade along American coasts several weeks ago.

SECRETARY NOT COMING

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said today he probably would be unable to accept the invitation from the governor of Oregon to attend the ceremonies at Portland on July 3, accompanying the turning over of the historic battleship Oregon to the state.

"Robinson Crusoe," the famous "classic" for boys, was translated into Latin by a French professor a century ago.

FRATERNITIES FOR SCHOOLS ARE HELD NOT PRESENT NEED

High school fraternities have no place in the modern high school where a well-defined, carefully directed social program is carried out, declared Dean Marion Brown, of Oakland university high school, of Oakland, Cal. Miss Brown has made a special study of this phase of high school life, and is regarded as a leader in high school social work in California. Miss Brown was on the program of the state educational conference held here this week-end.

"High school fraternities filled a need before there was any attempt to direct recreation and social phases of high schools," says Dean Brown, "but at present, where they exist, they are nothing but luke-warm imitations of college fraternities. They tend to produce snobbishness, and do little constructive work."

Attempts to stamp out high school secret fraternities are meeting with some success in California, where there is a state law against them, says Dean Brown, and it is hoped that their extinction can be accomplished.

Dancing in schools is a much discussed question in California at present, says Dean Brown, who declares herself wholly in favor of supervised high school dances. "We are supposed to teach the young people social behavior, and since dancing plays a large part in the modern social program, the place to teach proper methods of conduct is in the school," says the dean. "If the students are carefully guided in dancing, as well as in other phases, they will not be likely to make mistakes that often lead to embarrassment and trouble later."

A wholesome, well rounded program, that includes club activity and dancing is recommended by the dean for every high school. This should be taken in hand by an expert who understands individual case problems as well as general social phases, she points out.

CLUB PRESIDENT IS EUGENE WOMAN

Mrs. Lucinda Richardson, 338 Eleventr avenue west, Eugene, was elected president of the Oregon State Local Club Leaders' association during the two weeks short course for boys and girls club workers which just closed at Oregon Agricultural college, reports Arnold D. Collier, Lane County club leader. Mr. Collier was president of the organization last year.

More than 60 leaders were present from all parts of the state for the meeting. Those from Lane county were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Plank, Irving; Mrs. Mary Coldron, Irving; Mrs. M. G. Kelso, Irving; Mrs. Richardson of Eugene, leader at Santa Clara; and Mrs. Ada T. Wilson of Eugene, leader at Dunn.

Lane county boys and girls covered themselves with glory in the various judging contests, according to Mr. Collier.

Barbara Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hansen, 784 Lincoln street, was one of the 10 girls who made perfect scores in the bread judging contest, which gave her the right to enter the open contest for all prize-winners of the state. Barbara placed second in this contest or second out of 250 girls from all parts of the state who competed.

Hazel Poindexter of Eugene made a dress costing less than $1.50, and displayed in the style show—one of the first shows of the course. Her dress won third place out of entries of more than 250 girls.

Twenty-one boys and girls from Lane county were present for all the sessions, and the entire delegation returned yesterday evening, full of enthusiasm for club work the coming year, and praises for the hospitality of Oregon Agricultural college.

Leon Edmunson is Jailed by Sheriff

Leon Edmunson is in the county jail again, as the result of a bench warrant, issued today by Judge Robert Tucker of Portland, presiding in Edmunson's case. The motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Tucker, and as Edmunson was out under $2500 bail pending the decision on this motion, the Portland magistrate issued the warrant again to bring him into court.

Edmunson was sentenced some time ago to six months in the county jail and a fine of $500 on each of three liquor cases.

L. A. Thomas, 56, is Dead at His Home

L. A. Thomas, 56 years old, died at his home, 550 Seventh avenue west, today. Besides his wife Mrs. Minnie Thomas, he is survived by four sons, Marvyn, Fred, Gustave of Eugene, and Vearl of Corvallis, and by one daughter, Mrs. Mildred Bowersox of Salem. Mr. Thomas has lived here since last November, coming here from near Junction City.

Arrangements are being made at the Veatch chapel to ship the body to Corvallis for funeral services. The date will be announced later.

JAMES G. HAMMOND ARRIVES FOR VISIT

James G. Hammond, former Eugene resident but now secretary-manager of the chamber of commerce of New London, Conn., has arrived here to spend a two-weeks vacation visiting with his mother, Mrs. F. A. Rankin.

Mr. Hammond expressed himself as astonished at the great growth and delevolpment in evidence everywhere about Eugene. He left it a straggling country town and has returned to find a city, he said.

Mr. Hammond is a younger brother of Major General Creed C. Hammond, head of the national guard bureau of the United States army. Prior to the time when he became associated with the New London chamber of commerce some six years ago, Mr. Hammond was associated as manager and leading man of a theatrical company in which his wife, known to the stage as Sarah Turner, was the star. Miss Turner, Mr. Hammond said, will again head her own company at the opening of the coming season

LANE COAST ROUTE GRADING BID PENDS

PORTLAND, Ore., June 27.—Advertising for bids for 35 miles of construction work on the Roosevelt highway was ordered late yesterday by the state highway commission, the proposals to be opened at the July meeting.

Twenty-three miles will be in Curry county, from Pistol river south to the California state line to connect with the Redwood highway. The route will run through Brookings, and will open Harris beach, one of the most rugged and picturesque sections of the Oregon sea coast.

Bids will also be opened on six miles of the highway in Lincoln county, between Siletz bay, and Rock creek, which will complete the highway in Lincoln county, north of Newport.

The commission also advertised for bids for grading six miles of the highway in Lane county north of Florence. Lincoln county has appropriated $30,000 for this work and the cost will be met on a 50-50 basis.
