Charlie Chaplin is Now Proud Daddy; Infant Weight 6 3/4 Pounds
Luxury Marks Nursery Ready for Arrival of New Heir to House

By RUSSELL J. BIRDWELL (NEA Service Writer)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 29.—(AP)—A Charlie Chaplin without a limber cane, without a duck-shuffle or oversized shoes, monopolized film-doms' limelight today.

He was Charles Spencer Chaplin Jr., weight 6 3/4 pounds, born at the Chaplin mansion here just before breakfast yesterday.

His mother, who was formerly the elder Chaplin's leading woman and who became the comedian's wife at the little Mexican town of Ensenada last November, was said to be resting comfortably.

His father gave no interviews to the press, but his great-grandfather, William Curry, divulged that the famous film-portrayer of comic embarrassment had paced the floor and nibbled his finger nails like countless other expectant fathers and had exclaimed when the babe finally was shown to him:

"It looks like me."
The attending physician, Dr. James F. Halloran, who also helped Mrs. Chaplin into the world about 17 years ago, described her son as "one of the most perfectly formed babies I have seen."

Charlie Chaplin, famous film comedian, and his 16-year-old wife, Lita Grey, both wanted a boy, according to close associates of the film pair.

Chaplin and his wife had already set the stage in their 40-room mansion in Beverly Hills to welcome the infant into the world. A large and immaculate nursery, fitted with every luxurious concomitant that wealth can buy, has been arranged in the Chaplin home, the spacious ground of which adjoin the Pickford-Fairbanks estate.

Spend $3500 on Layette.

All of the baby's wardrobe had been purchased. A few weeks ago, Lita Grey Chaplin, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lillian McMurray, spent $3500 in a single day at an exclusive clothing store here, buying a layette for her coming child. Her purchases included everything from trundle beds to rubber nipples and milk bottles.

One of the physicians who ushered Lita Grey into the world 16 years ago, had been engaged to deliver her baby.

For a while, according to close friends of the Chaplins, the possibility of going away to some quiet place for the baby's birth was discussed. This idea was recently abandoned and it had been decided that a room in the Chaplin home would be converted into a hospital delivery sanitarium where the baby was born.

After the baby is a few weeks old it is likely that Chaplin and his wife and child will go abroad on a belated honeymoon trip.

Chaplin, a slight, nervous little fellow whose bushy hair is turning gray happily looked forward to the event that made him a father.

Known to his intimate associates as "the jonesiest man in the world" Chaplin's first child died the tragic death that did his first marital trouble, which was with Mildred Harris, who was the baby's mother.

One of those who will go from here is J. W. Richardson, who headed the Red Cross relief in the tornado-stricken towns of the middle west.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company has received a message from its manager at Santa Barbara. The manager states that no fires have broken out but that brick buildings have either been demolished or badly damaged along State street. The telephone exchange was not destroyed but badly shaken, necessitating the walls being propped.

Santa Barbara Historic Place

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—(AP)—Santa Barbara, seat of an old Franciscan mission, dating back to 1782, is one of the famous watering places of America. Its beautiful situation, partly encircled by hills and mountains has given it the name of the Montezuma of America. It is 207 miles from San Francisco and 104 miles from Los Angeles.

Santa Barbara has been long noted for its big tourist hotels, and its mild climate, both of which features drew thousands of visitors annually from all over the world. Early reports said that most of these hotels had been damaged or destroyed.

Santa Barbara has more claims to fame than its tourist attractions. It is in the midst of a vast citrus fruit area and flowers grow there in tropical luxuriance.

Its present permanent population is estimated at approximately 25,000, this of course, being greatly augmented in the summer season. This season is now at its height there.

The business streets are at sea level, but the beautiful residential districts are on high hills overlooking the ocean. There is a pretty harbor and yachting has supplanted swimming and fishing as the sport of residents and tourists.

SLIDES ON HIGHWAY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—One report received by the Southern Pacific company here said that seven lives had been lost at Santa Barbara. Another message to the same company round house at Santa Barbara fell in, crushing several locomotives. Many slides were reported along the highway.

BAKERSFIELD HAS STORM
BAKERSFIELD, Cal., June 29.—(AP)—Appreciable earthquake tremors were felt here at 6:45 o'clock this morning. Houses and buildings swayed slightly during the short duration of the shock, less than a minute. No report of any damage being done has been received here yet. Sunday afternoon at about 3:30 o'clock, a heavy thunderstorm lasting but a few minutes, occurred here drenching the hot earth with rain. Effects of the deluge were more apparent in the mountains. One instance an old settler near Granite Station awakened to find his home surrounded by water.

QUAKE DEATHS AND DAMAGE REPORTED

Others reported dead: William Matthews, laborer, killed in his automobile by wreckage from the California hotel.

B. Santer, killed in a State street garage.

Dr. James Angel, dentist, killed in his office in the San Marcos building.

Patrick Shea, gardener at the St. Anthony's College.

Two unidentified Mexicans and Chinese.

Miss Carter, maid, killed in the Arlington hotel.

The injured were removed to the Cottage hospital.

Naval reservists aided peace authorities in establishing lines of control around the ruined area.

All traffic into Santa Barbara was halted at the outskirts of the city.

Relief Work Started

Relief stations were opened in the city hall.

At noon when the first telegraph wire to the outside world was obtained, the list of dead was 12, although the toll will be greater, it is feared, when some of the fallen walls are removed, as it is thought several persons were trapped in the debris.

Scores of persons were hurt, although most of the injuries were of a minor nature. The city is without power or gas. The water supply of the city was badly damaged.

Sheffield reservoir, which is the immediate source of the city's water was demolished, but the flow from the main dam high in the mountains seems unchecked.

The San Marcos building, the largest office building in the city, was practically demolished. The north wing of the four-story structure fell in a tangled heap and it is feared that several persons are dead under the piles of brick and plaster.

Mission is Wrecked

The ruins of the Santa Barbara mission, queen of the California missions, testifies to the second visitation in a century, the structure not long ago having been reconstructed from the ruins of an earthquake in the early part of the nineteenth century. There were many Catholics at bars to the north and Colton to the east all reported to the Southern Pacific dispatch here that they felt the tremors. No reports of damage came into the Southern Pacific offices here.

The earthquakes were felt in an unusual degree of severity at Majave and Lancaster, Antelope valley, a hundred miles north of here, according to operators of the Los Angeles bureau of power and light systems.

The center of disturbance seemed to be in Los Angeles and to the north, preliminary telephone and telegraph reports indicated. Ventura reported that the movement was severe there. Clocks were stopped by the tremors in Los Angeles. El Centro reported that the tremors were not felt in Imperial valley.

Western Union and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph wires west of Ventura in the direction of Santa Barbara went dead in the earthquake and an hour later the companies reported they were not able to establish communications with Santa Barbara.

MAN ARRESTED FOR SMOKING IN FOREST

Arrested for smoking on Salt creek, an unidentified tourist is being brought in today by Ranger William M. Reinhardt, according to a telephone message from that district received this morning from Oakridge by Nelson P. Macduff, supervisor of the Cascade national forest. The man will be taken before United States Commissioner E. O. Immel for a hearing.

This is the first offense of this sort reported in this season to the Cascade office. As far as is yet learned no damage was done in this case, though last year a cigar stub thrown out by a camper in a private camp ground burned 75,000 acres in the Angeles national forest, according to Mr. Macduff, and cost the government $200,000. A deer hunter in southern Oregon, setting a fire to hunt deer, caused a conflagration which cost one man his life.

A rigorous policy of fire prevention is being pursued by the forest men.

"It is not right to permit the carelessness or willfulness of one man to endanger the lives and property of hundreds of others," Mr. Macduff said.

This sign, painted in large letters on banners across the new 1000 gallon triple-combination American La France fire pump, and the new city service truck, was brought to attention of business men and housewives in residence districts this afternoon by the sounding of the fire siren.

The purpose of the ballyhoo stunt was to call to people's minds the fact that they will vote tomorrow to pay for fire engines already bought, instead of for new equipment, stated Fire Chief Nusbbaum.
