'BEN HUR' ONE OF BEST OF FILMS

"Ben Hur," one of the most famous of books, has put in a mighty powerful bid for honors as one of the most famous of motion pictures. The Heilig theater, where the production is scheduled for a full week's run, was packed Monday night for the opening of the picture.

The acting in the picture is wonderfully well done, but even the splendid acting is eclipsed by the mighty theme of the story. Ramon Novarro and Francis X. Bushman as the two great rivals, Ben Hur and Messala, and their parts are extremely well done.

Climaxing in the historic chariot race, the production carries a tremendous power. Though the picture is a very long one, time flies so rapidly because of the tense situations and the interesting theme that it becomes but a short while from the start of the show until its termination.

The musical score of the original road show presentation is being played at the Heilig this week. The same stage settings also are used. The production is one of the greatest, and certainly one of the most interesting to view, of all time.

By MARIAN LOWRY

A VERY romantic story of San Francisco in the days of departing Spanish estates; of a weird Chinese underworld; of hard-boiled, moneymaking, typically fiction type of Americans and their crudeness; all arranged in remarkably beautiful settings, "Old San Francisco," now playing at the McDonald is a fantastic but nevertheless entertaining picture.

With a story book prologue the picture begins, showing an ancient family of Spain come to America in the reign of Philip and landing at the Golden Gate where they secure a land grant. Down through the centuries the story speeds until just preceding San Francisco's earthquake and fire. And speaking of earthquakes it would have been much better for the producers had they left out the scenes where they attempt to show what an earthquake is like. Imaginations cannot be taxed so, especially when so much movie stunt stuff is included.

Dolores Costello makes a fashion show of the picture, wearing some very lovely costumes as a Spanish senorita.

And we ought to include the remark that the closing titles and pictures show the loyal Californians at work in advertising.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances the appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

bearing out the best traditions of our service.

ALFRED A. GRANT,
1st Lieut., Air Service, U. S. A.

This faded letter now in the war department files bears the following endorsement:

HEADQUARTERS
FIRST PURSUIT GROUP
Air Service, American E. F.
September 18th, 1918.

To: Chief of Air Service, First Army, American E. F.
1. Forwarded, recommending approval.
H. E. Hartney,
Major Air Service, U. S. A.
Commanding.

Major Hartney evidently wasted no time as his endorsement bears the same date as does Grant's recommendation.

For once, "military channels" failed to keep up with the march of events. Luke's promotion was granted, but, alas, to late. His appointment to the grade of First Lieutenant was made on November 6th, 1918. The unclaimed commission was revoked more than a year later on November 11th, 1919.

On November 3rd, with the German armies in flight and the end of the war only a few days away, Captain Grant wrote another letter. Still without news of Luke's fate, he turned over the leaves of the missing flyer's record and came to a decision which few officers are ever called upon to make. It involved an additional honor for Frank Luke. The armies of the world have many decorations which are given in recognition of valor; medals are a part of war, and the soldiers and sailors of the United States won their share of such decorations in 1917 and 1918.

The Supreme Award

There is one decoration which is never given except under the conditions of the most extraordinary heroism. Only ninety of these medals were won by Americans in the late war and only one was awarded to an aviator. That award was made at the suggestion of Captain Grant as set forth in the following letter—

HEADQUARTERS
27th AERO SQUADRON, A. S.
First Pursuit Group,
American E. F.
November 3rd, 1918.

From: Commanding Officer.
To: Chief Air Service, First Army, American E. F.
(Through Military Channels)
Subject: Recommendation for Medal of Honor.

1. I recommend that Second Lieutenant Frank Luke, Jr., Air Service, U. S. A., be awarded the Medal of Honor for gallantry in action and for exceptionally meritorious service under the following circumstances.

2. Twelve of the most noteworthy examples being:

(a) August 16th, 1918, he attacked a formation of five enemy machines, bringing down one. Vicinity of Failly.

(b) September 12, 1918, he attacked an enemy balloon at 8h9 in the vicinity of Marieulles, destroying it.

(c) September 14, 1918, at 10h00 assisted in destroying a balloon near Boinville.

(d) September 14, 1918, at 17h25 he succeeded in destroying a balloon in the vicinity of Buzy which was being protected by eight Fokker machines.

(e) September 15, 1918, between 17h05 and 17h25 he succeeded in destroying two balloons in the vicinity of Boinville and Bois d'Hingry.

(f) September 15, 1918, at 19h50 he destroyed an enemy balloon North East of Verdun and Chaumont.

(g) September 16, 1918, between 19h03 and 19h15, he destroyed an enemy balloon near Reville and assisted in destroying one near Romagne-sous-les-Cotes.

(h) September 18, 1918, between 16h40 and 17h05 he destroyed two enemy balloons in the vicinity of Labeauville and single-handed destroyed three enemy planes in less than ten minutes.

(i) September 26, 1918, he attacked, with two others, a formation of five enemy planes and succeeded in destroying one while being attacked by two others. This was at 17h55.

(j) September 28, 1918, at 6h05 he destroyed an enemy balloon near Bantheville.

(k) September 29th, 1918, between 17h05 and 17h12 in the vicinity of Avecourt he destroyed three balloons single-handed.

3. The next of kin of this officer is Frank Luke, Sr., 2200 West Monroe Street, Phoenix, Arizona.

4. Lieutenant Luke joined the squadron July 26, 1918, and was reported missing in action September 29, 1918.

RADIO NEWS

A REAL southern "jubilee" of negro spirituals and orchestra selections was in store for radio listeners-in on the General Motors series of family parties Monday night, when Frigidaire corporation had charge of the program. Artists on the Frigidaire program included Harry Burleigh, negro baritone and composer, principal soloist St. George's Episcopal church in New York; the Hall-Johnson singers; symphony orchestra under direction of Roderic Graham; band directed by Edwin Franko Goldman; and Joe Green's novelty orchestra. Deems Taylor, note musical authority, declares the Hall-Johnson singers make the best presentation of negro spirituals of any vocalists in the United States. Mr. Burleigh, widely known as a vocalist, has been termed "the father of spirituals." His best known composition, "Deep River," was a part of Monday night's program.

BEAVERBROOK IS GIVEN SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The man who masqueraded his way into the hearts and the pocket books of many women under the bogus name of Lord Beaverbrook and other aliases, Monday was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for grand larceny.

Arrested in Philadelphia in June, 1926, he gave his name as Robert Whitman. He was arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Rose Burken, who testified at his trial last month that he had secured $80,000 worth of jewelry from her and vanished.

Mrs. Burken said she later recovered some of the gems from Mrs. Virginia Cameron Martin who testified she had married "Lord Beaverbrook" after a whirlwind courtship featured by gifts of jewelry which later turned out to be Mrs. Burken's.

A few hours after the marriage, Mrs. Martin said, the man vanished, taking with him $34,000 in money and securities. Police said that his princely gestures and smooth phrases, used in practicing a slogan, "treat 'em like queens," had permitted the "lord" to lead many wealthy women to the altar and leave as many more waiting at the church.

Scout Idea Began In Constabulary, Says A. H. Tyson

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 21.—(Special)—How the Boy Scout idea originated from the South African constabulary through Baden Powell, the "father of scouting" was told at a joint meeting of Springfield troops 11 and 12 Monday evening by A. H. Tyson of Eugene, who served in the same regiment with Mr. Powell during the Boer war.

Mr. Tyson, a brother of W. P. Tyson, Springfield scout commissioner, said that following the war the constabulary was founded with the British government designating Powell's regiment to be formed into the police. Powell at that time originated the system of honors and awards which he later, upon his return to England, adapted to boys' organization.

They spent 25 years in Wallowa county, and some time in the Rogue river valley, coming to Lane county three years ago.

Mrs. Miles is survived by her husband, by her mother, Mrs. Mitchelltree of Fresno, Cal.; by three sisters; and by three sons, W. B. Miles, Vancouver, Wash., W. A. Miles, Lebanon, Ed Miles, Walla Walla, Wash.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Salem at noon. The Walker-Poole chapel of Springfield had charge of arrangements.

WIFE SAVERS?

The CLOCK on this range keeps you out of the kitchen

YOU can prepare dinner, place it in the oven of this electric range, and then forget it until meal time. You do not even have to go out to the kitchen until everything is ready to serve.

Just set the clock at the hour you wish cooking to start. The clock automatically turns on the current. When the oven reaches the right heat, the thermostat turns it off. No current is wasted, as cooking is finished by stored heat, as in a fireless cooker.

The Clock is the Cook

Meats retain all their savory, nourishing juices—vegetables their valuable mineral content—and portions are larger than usual, for no moisture is lost from this oven.
