GIRL ALONE

CHAPTER XXXIII Sally's sapphire eyes blazed at the man she knew only as "Van," but since they were veiled with a new scrap of black lace to replace the one lost in the storm, the nonchalant New Yorker did not appear to be at all devastated by their fire.

"Thank you for saving my life," she said stiffly, but the man's mocking, admiring attention was fixed upon the deliciously young, sweet curves of her mouth, rather than upon the tone of her voice.

"I wonder if you know," he began confidentially, leaning lightly upon his inevitable cane, "that you have the most adorable mouth I have ever seen? Of course there are other adorable details in the picture of complete loveliness that you present, but really your lips, like three rose petals..."

"Oh, stop!" Sally cried with childish anger, her small, red-tipped foot stamping the platform. "Why are you always mocking me, making fun of me? I've begged you to let me alone..."

"Such ingratitude!" the man sighed, but his narrowed eyes studied at her delightedly. "If you weren't even more delicious when you're angry, I should not be able to forgive you. But really, Sally Ford—his voice dropped carelessly on the name, as if to remind her that she shared her secret with him—the way you persist in misunderstanding me is very distressing."

"I'm not mocking you, my dear child! I'm mocking myself—if anyone. It recurs to me continually that this is an amazing adventure that Arthur Van Horne, of New York, Long Island and Newport is so sedulously engaged upon. To paraphrase your own delightful defense, I'm really not that kind of man. I assure you I'm not in the habit of making love to show girls, no matter how adorable their mouths may be!"

He smiled at her out of his narrowed eyes and with his quick, quizzical mouth, as if he expected her to share his amusement and amazement at himself.

"Then why don't you let me alone?" Sally cried, striking her little brown-painted hands together in futile rage.

"I wonder," he mused. "I make up my mind that I'm a blighter and an ass and that I shan't come near the carnival. I accept invitations enough to take up every minute of my last days in Capital City, and then—without in the least intending to do so—I find myself back at the Palace of Waters, humping myself before a pair of little red-sandaled feet that would like nothing better than to kick me for my impudence. Do you suppose, Sally Ford, that I'm falling in love with you? There's something about you, you know..."

"Please go away," Sally implored him. "It's almost time for my performance. Gus is bally-hoing Jan now and I come next."

"As I was saying when you interrupted me," Van Horne reproved her mockingly, "there's something about you, you know."

"She must be awfully good here," Sally whispered, fright widening her eyes behind the black lace.

"Oh, I think Courtney's here on political business. The Barra has always rather fancied themselves as leaders among the Wall Street makers of presidents. He's hobnobbing with my cousin the governor, and Enid is probably amusing herself by collection Americana."

"She must be awfully good," Sally whispered, adoration making her voice lovely and wistful. "She brought all the orphanage children to the carnival yesterday, you know..."

"Yes," Van Horne shrugged, arching his brows quizzically. "I confess I was rather stunned, for Enid doesn't go in for personal charity. Huge checks and all that sort of thing—she's endowed some sort of institution for 'fallen girls' by the way—but it has never seemed to amuse her to play Lady Beautiful in person. Of course, she may be nursing a secret passion for children, and took this means to gratify it where her crowd would not rag her about it."

"Hasn't she any children of her own?" Sally asked. "But I suppose she's too young..."

EUGENE HOSPITAL EMPLOYEES FROLIC

An informal party was held by the staff of employees of the Eugene hospital at the McChesney and Washburne auditorium. A program was put on for the pleasure of the 40 or more who attended. The principal features of the program were a musical wedding directed by Mrs. LaVeda M. Sheridan. The cast was as follows: Bride, Dr. Winnard; Groom, Rosina Zimker; Best Man, Dr. Edmond; Flower Girl, Frederick Anderson; The Flapper, Dr. Neal; The Preacher, Dr. Bartie; Father of the Bride, Charles W. Walker; Mother of the Bride, Dorothy Burd; Another Sweetheart of the Groom, Joseph Hines; Chief Musician, Theodoris Ramser.

Other numbers were as follows: One act comedy, by Dr. Winnard as Father Time, attended by his physician; aesthetic dances by the Misses Helen Neal and Eva Charlet; solo by Miss Wilma Black; artistic sketches by Dr. Norton; raffle race, Mrs. Winward, Edmond, Neal and Norton; Jim Lawson, a series of humorous aspects of his recent southern trip.

The rest of the evening until midnight was occupied with dancing. Another similar occasion is being planned for the near future.

Funeral Rites for Mr. McCulloch Held

Robert McCulloch died at his home 1370 Alder street Thursday, following a long illness. He had resided here since 1891.

He was born in Keeler, Van Buren county, Michigan, where he lived with his parents until he was 11 years of age. He then moved to Gleno, Minn., later moving to the western part of the state. Wood Lake, Minn., where he was married to Elizabeth McCormick in 1891. To this union two children were born, both dying in infancy. He leaves his wife, one sister, Mrs. Mary Hanna and several nieces and nephews. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Funeral services were held Saturday, April 21, at 2 p. m. at the Vatch funeral home, conducted by Rev. J. Franklin Haas of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Interment was made in the I. O. O. F. old cemetery.

Old-Timer Present For 'Days of '49'

An old-timer, Cy Noble, was persuaded to come to Eugene for Saturday only, a feature of the "Days of '49" celebration, sponsored by the Eugene post of the American Legion. During the afternoon "Cy" drove about Eugene with a pack train similar to the one with which he came across the plains during the gold rush of '49.

The Legion show was given Friday night and a large attendance was reported. It will be repeated Saturday night. The show is given to raise money for the American Legion drum corps.

Shows will be opened at 7:30 and the program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

Woman is Injured In Auto Accident

Mrs. Holly E. Moore, 1313 Oak street, was slightly injured and badly shaken up in an auto accident at the intersection of Thirteenth and Oak streets about 1:15 o'clock Saturday when the sedan she was riding in with Mabel Storm collided with a light touring car driven by Ernest Hill of Chelalis, Wash.

The sedan was going south on Oak street and the Hill car east on Thirteenth. Neither car is said to have been speeding. Mr. Hill with his wife and family were on their way to California. Neither car was badly injured, the left front fender of the Hill car being bent in and the back right fender of the sedan also bent.

LUMBER CO. BUYS RUTH-ROBERTSON POWDER COMPANY

The Twin Oaks Lumber company, 669 High street, announces it now has one of the most complete lines of building material and explosives in Lane county, having recently taken over the Ruth-Robertson Powder company as addition to their building material service.

They now have the painting, Mast-ling, and building supplies along with their other lines.

John J. Rogers, formerly of Billings, Mont., has purchased the interest in the business held by T. J. Seufert, Sr., and will have complete charge of the purchasing department of the company.

E. N. Robertson of the Ruth-Robertson Powder company is associated with the business as office salesman. The company is maintaining a fleet of five delivery trucks. A year ago the company finished its modern building material store, assuring storage and delivery of stock in the best shape, regardless of weather conditions.

The office force now is as follows: John J. Rogers, purchasing department; L. C. Scharf, sales department; C. V. Culp, bookkeeper; E. S. Robertson, office salesman; T. J. Seufert, Jr., yard manager; H. B. Becker, truck driver; Lloyd Terry, truck driver; S. E. Maharry, truck driver.
