

SPRINGFIELD GIRL WINS PRIZE WITH ESSAY ABOUT WOOD

Powerful arguments for building Lane county homes out of Lane county's chief product, wood, are contained in the essay with which Miss Laudelle Williams, a junior in Springfield high school, won the first prize in a contest conducted by the L. L. clubs. Miss Lombard is the teacher of the English class to which Miss Williams belongs. The prize winning essay follows: Why Lane County Homes Should be Made of Wood

"My Head Used To Pound!"

"Every day I used to have a pounding headache and queer dizzy spells. I would go to bed at night 'all in,' yet I couldn't sleep on account of my nerves. I would get up in the morning a wreck, with a terrible taste in my mouth and my tongue all coated. I really believe I was on the verge of a collapse when a sister of mine wrote and told me to try ox gall, saying that she had the same trouble on account of sluggish liver and that ox gall fixed her up fine. On her advice I began taking Dioxol tablets and in an unbelievably short time the old headaches and nervousness had disappeared and I was feeling 100 per cent better."

When the liver becomes weak or sluggish it fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in food waste. These poisons spread throughout the system, causing a toxic condition which in turn causes high blood pressure, stomach disorders, kidney trouble, rheumatic headache and "nervous." Natural ox gall extracted from the liver of the ox is recognized as the finest tonic for the human liver. It is a natural liver stimulant and through its action on the liver literally rejuvenates the entire system. The pure, genuine ox gall is to be had in dainty, tasteless form in Dioxol tablets. Each tablet represents 10 drops of pure ox gall and cost less than 2c. Genuine Dioxol has picture of ox's head on package. On sale at all good drug stores. Special Agent, Stevenson's, Inc.

JUST LIKE A MAN!

When the girls at Western State Teachers' College in Kalamazoo, Mich., gave a masquerade party recently for coeds only, a mere man crashed the gate and copped the prize for the best costume. The gate-crasher is Claudia Colial, athletic director of a Nileas high school and former Michigan intercollegiate mile champion. The costume shown here is the one which attracted the eye of Mrs. Bertha Shean Davis, dean of women, as the most striking on the floor, but when she called Colial up to be awarded a prize, he ran. He later admitted the hoax.

About 1,200,000 persons all over the United States are on payrolls and are depending almost entirely on this industry. As we have just learned that lumbering is the chief industry in Lane county and is practically where we get all of our money from why shouldn't we have enough faith in lumber to build our homes of wood? If we don't buy and use our wood why should others? Lumbering is a prosperous industry and it is our duty to buy our share. The truth is, there is a charm and a dignity about a well built wood house that cannot be imitated. Wood is perhaps difficult to explain but it is something that is living and has a soul that is found in no other material. Perhaps the first thing we think of in building a home is comfort. Wood is a natural insulator against heat and cold which assures us great comfort the year around. A wood house is much easier to heat than a mineral material house, and will not hold the dampness like one of brick. We also know that a house of wood is much less expensive in beginning and end because you can repair and rebuild a wood house for less than you could brick or cement. Beauty is another thing we all want. The more completely wood is used, the more you will be impressed by its traditional beauty. Enter a home where you are welcomed by a wood staircase, a fireplace trimmed of wood and you will sense the very atmosphere of hospitality. One beauty in wood is, it can be carved and shaped into many different styles and varieties while other materials have only their one shape. Wooden homes have already proved their durability and will last for ever with a good cement foundation. We have no severe weather in Lane county that requires stronger houses than wood. Furthermore, in case of fire a wooden structure will hold its shape much longer than another material house. Many of our fires are started on the inside and in nearly all cases we find wooden trimmings. As for shingles, cedar shingles are the oldest building materials, having been in constant use for nearly three hundred years, while the composition shingles cannot be proved by years. For the many reasons we have just discussed, and as we are depending almost entirely on lumbering we should have enough faith in lumber to build our Lane county homes of wood.

DR. G. O'B. D'BAR HONORED BY LANE MEDICAL SOCIETY

Dr. George O'B. DeBar, for more than 23 years a member of the Lane County Medical society, was honored by that organization at its meeting Thursday evening at the Osburn hotel when an honorary life membership conferred upon him. Dr. DeBar, who is 79 years old, went to the meeting Thursday evening with intention of paying his dues and resigning from active association with the group, but his fellow physicians, for the first time since the organization was founded, about 40 years ago, conferred an honorary life membership in recognition of his long service to the society.

Dr. DeBar has practiced in Eugene for 27 years. He had a distinguished career in South America, previous to that time, and received a medal from the Venezuelan government for important work there in pursuit of his profession. It is the same honor recently conferred upon Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Dr. Carl H. Phipps, president; Dr. Carl H. Phipps, president; Dr. C. Stannard, secretary; Dr. George P. Winchell, treasurer; Dr. W. B. Neill is the outgoing president. Dr. J. H. Wetherbee gave an interesting talk illustrated with motion pictures on his trip to China, Siam and the Philippine Islands.

4 LIGHTED TREES PLEASE EUGENEANS

More and more the residents of Eugene are illuminating Christmas trees of the out-door variety, adding much to the beauty of the city during the holiday season. At the E. T. Findtner residence, 1231 Willamette street, two little fir trees in the front yard, one on either side of the front porch, are beautifully illuminated each evening. The Charles A. Wintermeier home, 1865 Alder street, has a giant fir situated on the roof of the pergola, where he can see a beautiful illuminated Christmas tree. The tree is larger than ever before. Dr. H. W. Titus, 214 Thirteenth avenue east, has a large fir growing in his back yard and this is an annual decoration on Thirteenth avenue east, when decked with colored lights.

JUNCTION CITY SEAL SALE IS COMPLETED

The first complete report on Christmas seal sales to be made by a Lane county center was received Friday from the Junction City branch of the county health association.

The 1928 returns made by the branch was $61.65. This represents a steady increase since the branch was first organized in 1925, when seals amounting to $48 were sold. The 1926 return was $78, and that of 1927, $87.40. Mrs. W. C. Washburne is chairman of the Junction City branch. The education of the people of the community so that they know the purpose of the seal sale and what the money issued for, as well as good sales organization, is responsible for the fine showing of the Junction City branch, said E. O. Immel, president of the Lane County Health association.

Returns from the county schools are still coming in and most of them show increases over the 1927 sale. Health association officials are anxious to have all the reports in by Christmas day, so that the report to state headquarters may not be held up. Schools reporting in the last several days are: Maroon Union high, No. 5, $1.35; Danabo, $6.28; Westlake, $5.07; Silk Creek, $4.68; Maple, $3.34; Star, $2.77; Twin Oaks, $3; Fiddle Creek, $2.57; Clear Lake, $2.50; Wildwood, $2.35; Camas Swale, $1.39; Loran Union high, No. 2, $2.58; Nimrod, $1.87; Idleyville, $2; Oak Hill, $1.53.

LANE POULTRY MAN VISITS CALIFORNIA

A brisk season in the coming hatchery months is anticipated by poultry raisers in Lane county, according to a letter received from Phillip A. Gent, of the Gent Brothers Poultry farm, who has recently completed a three months tour of California in the interest of poultry raising. That Oregon was superior for poultry raising was the impression received by Mr. Gent during his tour in California, where he visited the chief poultry centers in the state. The Petaluma district and the country adjacent to Los Angeles were the "stricts" most interesting to Mr. Gent, according to his letter. "This season we expect to hatch out about 75,000 eggs, an increase from 50,000 last year and 25,000 the year before," said the letter. "This increase has been made possible since we established our Newtown Giant mammoth equipment."

At Petaluma the party on the tour saw the west's largest hatchery, the Mast Hatch Incubator company, with a capacity of 1,800,000 eggs. Several other large hatcheries located at Petaluma were visited. The tendency there has been toward quantity rather than quality, reports Mr. Gent, who says that many of the poultry men of California are now realizing their mistake and are sending to Oregon for their stock. Oregon has conducted the industry along more scientific lines and the influence is being felt among the poultry men of the country, it was said. "The average Oregon flock is more profitable than the average California flock despite the fact that they have a better and more substantial market than the Oregon people," said Mr. Gent.
