GOOD FUTURE SEEN FOR LANE DAIRYMEN

A very promising future for Lane county dairymen is predicted by V. H. Davis, owner and manager of the Cloverleaf dairy, who says that those who are in a position to raise their own feed and keep the quality of their products at a high standard are certain of a ready market for their produce.

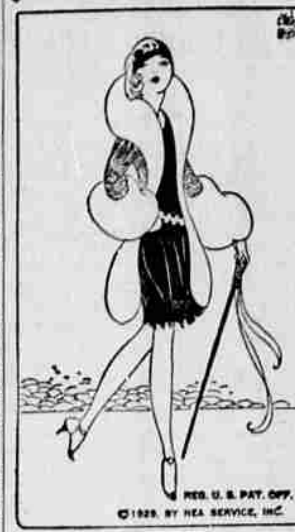

"Lane county, with its mild climate and freedom from extremes of temperature, together with its ability to produce large amounts of leguminous hay on the acre, is an ideal place for economical milk production," said Mr. Davis. "There will always be a ready market for milk products of high quality as people are becoming more and more interested in their food value."

Mr. Davis graduated from the University of Missouri in 1921, and came west as an employee of the U. S. department of agriculture. While in northern Washington he was attracted by a bulletin advertising Lane county, and he came to Eugene in 1923.

He was first connected with the Eugene View dairy and after purchasing the Terpening place, located about half way between Eugene and Springfield, he changed the name to the Cloverleaf dairy.

Mr. Davis was secretary-treasurer of the recent Lane county cow testing association, and owned one of the herds that produced more than 300 pounds of butterfat yearly. He is at present secretary-treasurer of the Lane County Dairymen's association.

BIG BUSINESS IS PATTED ON BACK

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company believes morals shape "big business," and dishonesty is scarce enough to be news.

The recently appointed unofficial American member of the committee of experts named to consider Germany reparations, spoke for the pulp of the Park Avenue Baptist church last night on "What Is Right With Business."

"Our big business is no longer plotters any longer," he said. "Exploiters no longer own the big concern. Bankers no longer own them. Their shares are spread from one end of the country to the other. Broadly speaking the vast organizations of skilled hands and the roads are reasonably safe."

The danger today, Mr. Young believes, comes not from bad men in business or bad principles, but from the difficulty of applying right principles to complicated situations. Our greatest risk is the mistaken judgment of good drivers where the traffic is heavy and the signals are complicated.

"By and large, looking over the quarter century with which I have been familiar I am pleased with the rapid progress which we are making toward the right in business," he said. "We are not perfect and never shall be, but we are training our young men with a sense of their great responsibilities and we are profiting from their experience from our own mistakes."

by the assessment on contributing industries. The Portland labor council, according to members of the commission has approved the proposed increase.

Senator Joe Dunne of Multnomah county has introduced a bill that would make the membership of the commission five instead of three, one member to be a woman and one to be the state insurance commissioner who would serve in an ex-officio capacity. In addition to his salary as insurance commissioner the latter would also receive half the salary of an accident commission member.

NO MORE "FLATFEET" PROVINCE, R. L. Flatfeet, the characteristic of a "cop" since the Irish first started running a police force, will eventually be doomed. Policemen of this city, who pound the pavements for many weary hours, have been treated by a foot specialist, so designed that the specialist can point out faults in their walking. This remedied, the cops are able to avoid flat feet.

Who Will See That Your Will Is Carried Out?

IT IS IMPORTANT—highly important—that you should make a will.

It is just as important that you leave the execution of that will to the person or institution best qualified to administer it.

A generation ago it was the custom to leave the execution of a will to a relative or a friend. But the relative or friend often proved incompetent and sometimes dishonest.

Nowadays, it is recognized that the best procedure is to leave the execution of your will to the trust department of your bank.

The Bank of Commerce maintains a well qualified and experienced trust officer. If you are interested, he will be glad to explain to you the operation of the trust department.

the men's guns away from them.

Then came the exciting time of the affair. After a flinty battle in which the men were thoroughly cowed the boys forced them, at gun points, to walk back twelve miles through the snow and timber to compare their foot tracks with the ones left in the snow. When they arrived the tracks fitted perfectly, even to the length of the mauls on their shoes, and when the men saw that the coats were against them they admitted the theft and gave the boys back their traps and canoe.

The two young trappers have been trapping up the McKenzie all of this school year, once on every Sunday and some very valuable skins of all kinds have been the rewards of their labor. One of the best prizes was a large bear skin which the boys brought back to Eugene with them.
