MABELLE'S PRINCE

Nothing so nice as a dyed-in-the-wool American with our dyed-in-the-wool ideas about marriage as to hear that since Louis of Bourbon, cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, has issued the ultimatum to Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey that he will marry her after all, unless she increases his lot to a guarantee of one thousand dollars a month for pocket money, and a home befitting his station in life.

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"EMOTIONAL balance." I do wish we could find terms that sound less technical. But that word "emotion," like "complex" and "impulse," has come to mean, as we will have to make the best of it. After all, it only means "feeling."

The "balance" part is a little more complicated. It may be simpler if we think of a sea-saw, one end down, the other in the air. Some children go down in the depths of fear, or discouragement, or some other "emotional" unhappiness, and some rise up on the crest of some excitement, or joy.

That isn't a good thing. Usually it is the other way, however, the glow follows the thrill, which is worse still. Leveling the Emotions

It is the duty of parents then, we suggest, to try to strike a happy medium and act as a steadier to the emotional sea-saw.

One of the old philosophers wrote, "It is better to avoid excitement, joy and complaining grief. That means to live as nearly to a happy level as possible."

Most Children That Way All children have their moments of discouragement, and unhappiness without any apparent cause. Sometimes it is physical, as from illness; sometimes it is nerve rag or reaction after fatigue, intense excitement, or strain. Usually it is obscure. No matter. Try to get him to snap out of it, not by words but by getting him something interesting to do that will keep him quietly occupied mentally and physically.

Friendship Club Letters To Mary Jordan

The perplexing questions of heart and home discussed sympathetically and sensibly by a Lane county woman.

Broadcast from Eugene Radio Station KORE on Wednesdays from 5 to 5:30 P. M.

By MARY JORDAN WHAT shall one do if one's beau strays off and gets engaged to someone else?

Dear Mrs. Jordan: What would you think of a girl who just deliberately stole your best boy friend from you? My chum did that thing and brags about it. I am just sick over it. I care so much for him and he did care for me. He didn't see how she planned it and set out to get him. He is not suspicious by nature. I hear they are engaged and it seems like I can't stand it. Shall I tell him what a cat she is, or shall I let him have about it. I am just sure she doesn't care especially for him—just did it to spite me.

Answer: I think if your beau was such a dummie as to leave you for a woman who is simply after his scalp, that you are well rid of him. Try to forget him, and look about for a young chap with a brighter mind and more perception of your own qualities, if you find that your young man is actually gone for good and has got himself engaged to the other girl.

While it is perfectly true that sweet young men get "taken in" by designing ladies, it is equally true that after all, no man has to be dragged where he is unwilling to go—at least not in these emancipated days. And if he is not smart enough to get himself disentangled, you better have lost him sooner or later, anyway.

I know it is hard to forget when you had cared for this young man, but after a little time elapses, you will be glad to be rid of both the false girl friend and the weak-kneed boy friend.

A girl friend really doesn't want the young man you can be sure she will not lead him to the altar, and then he will probably come crawling back to you. But if you are a free-spirited young woman with ambition and gumption, you will probably discover that a man lost, is after all, one man lost. You better get busy about there still being fish in the sea is still true.

Cottage Grovellers

COTTAGE GROVE, July 13.—(Special)—Robert Stewart and Wilbur Spay of the Mountain States Power Co. have been practicing playing baseball lately. They will go to Medford Saturday to play for the Mountain States Power Co. Sunday. The team is composed of 11 men from the company which begin at Albany for this district.

MEAT LAYON and "cold cuts" come into their own in summer-time. The care of these foods after cooking is important if they are to remain attractive to the last morsel. They must be kept very cold and well covered to prevent drying. With these two simple precautions there can be no food spoilage and waste.

Small families will find cottage ham, Canadian bacon, corned beef, calves' tongues and small meat loaves fitted to their needs. Large families will make use of large hams and beef tongues. These smoked and salted meats can be prepared well in advance of the time of their serving and can be used down to the last bit.

Serve Them Hot or Cold Meat loaves are good served hot the day they are made and are equally as good served cold. Veal and Veal Loaf One and one-half pounds lean veal, 3 slices fat salt pork, 1 egg, 1/2 egg yolk, 1/2 cup cracker crumbs, 1/2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 1/2 teaspoon powdered thyme, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon ground nutmeg. Put veal and 2 slices of salt pork through food chopper. Beat egg and yolk until light. Add seasoning and cracker crumbs to meat and mix thoroughly. Add beaten eggs and milk; mix and shape into a loaf. Put two slices of the pork in a baking pan and put the loaf on top of them. Put remaining slice of pork on top of loaf and bake two hours in a moderate oven. Serve hot or cold.

beef and commonly used for hot loaves, but lamb makes a delicious loaf and seems to be seldom used. Veal and lamb broths are excellent in jelly loaves. These jelly loaves are distinctively summery and delicate and can be made most attractive and festive looking by clever garnishing.

Another worthwhile addition to the refrigerator is a dish of cold boiled potatoes. Creamed, in a salad, old-fashioned fried, hashed brown, au gratin or lyonnaise—these dishes are all prepared with cold boiled potatoes.

Fish, canned or fresh, is good in jelly loaves. Canned fish is a valuable summer standby for it can be quickly and easily used in souffles or scalloped dishes.

Molly Burnham, just out of college, walked into a Boston newspaper office, asked for a job and got it. In a few years everyone in the country had heard about her. She wrote a play, and then another, and then a famous novel. She seemed always to be in the newspaper headlines. But the world did not know all about Molly Burnham. It did not know that she had lost in love. Read the story of Molly Burnham, the heartbreak and triumph of her career, in
