THE WORKING WIFE

Everyone has read, at some time in the last few years, of firms which refused to hire men whose wives were working outside the home. Usually the reason given was that it wasn't fair for two out of one family to be earning incomes while in other families the men were out of work, or that it was bad for the home for a woman to work outside it.

The first reason, when analyzed with reference to economic principles, proved specious. The second one has been refuted in a majority of cases by the fact that the homes and children of business women have been found to be as well kept and cared for as those whose sole interest is in the home. The business woman who amounts to anything develops an executive power which enables her to surmount the difficulties of her double job.

The last reason is the queerest. Would it show "personal pride and the fighting spirit" for the man who married a competent music teacher to insist that she stay at home doing the washing by hand instead of allowing her to do enough of the work she loved in order to pay the laundress and buy electric household machinery?

Or, granted that it shows personal pride and fighting spirit for a man to work himself to the bone to support a wife in semi-idleness and a style to which she is not accustomed, is it really desirable, for the man's own home, for his children, for society in general, including the office for which he works, that his wife should become a parasite?

All the economic and social adjustments of the new era are difficult. No blanket rules can be made to apply to all cases. For this very reason it is the more important that solid thought be employed than superficial sentiment.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

A small town that has been working out a program for a permanently beautiful city has limited the height of business blocks on its two main thoroughfares. No building may be higher than twice the distance from its base to the middle of the street. This limitation prevents the shadows of the buildings on either side of the street from blotting out the sunshine and the light from the lower floors, or from the sidewalk, on the other side. This plan may be scorned by the thoughtless as hopelessly "small town stuff," but it is good stuff just the same.

In the old days slow transportation made living near the business center a necessity for the majority of any population. The skyscraper and the yardless dwelling followed inevitably as space-saving devices. Rapid methods of transit have changed all this, and there is no more need for the developing town of today to ape the city skyscraper and blot out its own sunshine than there is for copying the city slums or any of the other evils inherent in overcrowding.

HARMLESS CAMPFIRES

From widely separated parts of the country the news dispatches are now bringing reports of forest fires. Small towns are imperiled, many acres of timber are being destroyed; human life, vegetation and wild game are menaced; financial losses of varying amounts are certain.

good time for pressing the education more persistently and forcefully than usual. First of all there is needed adequate provision for fire prevention, fire detection and fire fighting. The public and private funds expended in such work are investments of the soundest sort. But there can hardly be enough protection if there is not at the same time a developing public consciousness of individual responsibility.

From now on a regular army of vacationers will be going forth on picnics and camping trips. They will build countless campfires. Nothing but pleasure will result from these fires if the campers know their business, choosing a suitable spot for the fire, watching it while it burns and putting it entirely out when they are through with it.

While the powers are proceeding to investigate Turkey, with regard to the atrocities, may we not suggest that what that bird needs is to have the stuffing knocked out of it!

"What is conscience?" is the query propounded by an exchange correspondent. With many persons thus obsessed it is an abiding fear of being found out.

"Sanity League is Located in Salem," says a news headline. It has a large field for home service.

their all night vigil, continued their cruise, keeping a sharp lookout for additional bodies. Day break this morning found hundreds of parents, children and relatives still standing vigil at the docks at City Island, awaiting the arrival of police boats which during the hours of darkness had searched the waters of Long Island sound for additional victims of the terrific storm.

Frail Buildings Crushed Huge trees in Central park were uprooted and tossed across the driveway.

In Brooklyn lightning struck a street car and knocked six passengers unconscious. Electric signs along the White Way seemed special targets of the cyclonic wind. A huge sign extolling the virtues of automobiles tumbled from its moorings, toppled onto a skylight, carrying a smaller sign, which in its plunge started a fire from disconnected wiring.

TRAIN IS TRAPPED BY FLOOD

200 Passengers Rescued from Cloud-burst's Swirling Waters SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 11.—Torrential rains which swept Syracuse and central New York early today reached the proportions of a cloud-burst in the city and trapped and bound New York Central passenger train, with 200 passengers in its swirling waters. All were rescued. The damage was roughly estimated at $250,000.

The rainstorm, accompanied by a high wind, continued three hours, the deluge covering business and residential districts with water from six inches to a foot deep. Only one fatality was reported. The waters rampaged into the lowlands, covering the New York Central tracks east and west of the tunnel under the Erie canal, through which trains pass for a distance of half a mile. The Western New York Express comprising 19 cars, which left New York last night appeared just when the rainfall was heaviest. It was halted amid the rising waters. Passengers, including men and women, were rescued, and transformed them of the situation. They took their plight philosophically, and at no time was there any sign of panic.

Later the train resumed its journey westward. The passengers included Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neil, Denver.

side of him to prevent a sudden bolt to the sidewalk. With the camel came a vehicle that apparently was a cross between a velocipede, wheeled chair, birchbark and a motorcycle. Dusky Oriental in barbaric garb and wearing Korean straw hats escorted the vehicle, which bystanders said might have come from the desert of Arabia.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The Mystic Shrine of the nation passed in its joyous golden jubilee, assembled today long enough to lay the cornerstone of one of the six hospitals for crippled children that the shrine is building in various parts of the United States.

Ernest Catts, imperial potentate of Savannah, Ga., presided at the ceremony, using a gold and silver trowel that had been presented to him by Islam Temple of San Francisco.

The speakers were Governor W. D. Stephens, Mr. Catts, Mayor James Rolph and W. Freeland Kendrick, Philadelphia, a past imperial potentate. Mr. Kendrick is credited with being the father of the idea of shrine hospitals for crippled children.

MISS HUGHES BECOMES BRIDE OF GOTHAM MAN

C. L. WADDLE WEDS DAUGHTER OF SECRETARY OF STATE

Beautiful Little Bethlehem Chapel of Episcopal Cathedral is Scene of Impressive Ceremony

WASHINGTON, June 12.—In the beautiful little Bethlehem chapel of the Episcopal cathedral of St. Peter and Paul and in the presence of most of official Washington and the diplomatic corps, including President and Mrs. Harding, Miss Catherine Hughes, daughter of the secretary of state and Mrs. Hughes, and Mr. Chauncey Lockheart Waddle of New York, were married late today. It was the first cabinet wedding of the present administration.

The little chapel was simply decorated with flowers on the altar. The marriage service was read by the Right Rev. Alfred Harding, bishop of Washington, assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. S. Abernathy, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, which the secretary and Mrs. Hughes attend.

The secretary of state gave his daughter's hand in marriage. Her two small nephews, Charles Evans Hughes III, and Stuart Hughes, served as train bearers. The two matrons of honor were Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., and Mrs. Ralph Dunlap, of Akron, Ohio, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Elizabeth Kirkland of Nashville, Tenn., served as maid of honor.

Mr. Gerald Fessenden Beal of New York City was best man for Mr. Waddle. The wedding gown was of white backed satin, embroidered in pearls with lavin sleeves of silk net. It fell in a graceful line at the hem. The court train of satin was also embroidered in pearls with a shoulder-pan of net reaching from the shoulders. The long veil of net hung from a coronet of pearls.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE THEATRES TODAY Rex—Special production, "All for a Woman." Charles W. Hawley in Wurlitzer concert. Musical Prologue: Rex Weekly Review and Topics of the Day.

Castle—William Farnum in "Shackles of Gold," a three-day run at the Castle theatre. "The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing." Coming attractions—Hoot Gibson in "Bear Cat"; Harry Myers in the fifth adventure of "Robinson Crusoe"; Constance Talmadge in "A Primitive Lover"; "The Prodigal Judge"; Fricella Dean in "Wild Honey."

"All for a Woman," an Associated First National production, which began a three-day run at the Castle theatre yesterday, is a thrilling story based on the French revolution, produced in a masterful manner and enacted by a cast of extraordinary brilliancy. The story relates the part played in the revolution by Georges Danton, who is portrayed by Emil Jennings, famed for his characterization of heroic roles. Allied at the start with Maximilian Robespierre, the head of the hard republicans, he is "The Friend of Terror." Danton becomes sickened by the constant blood-letting and deserts the clique, denouncing it as an enemy of the people.

This is the last day the big William Farnum picture, "Shackles of Gold," will be shown at the Castle theatre. Farnum is at his best in this fine production. Don't miss this one if you are looking for a real entertainment of the highest order.

Hoot Gibson in a brand new characterization is coming to the Castle theatre tomorrow, when he offers fans a fine city characterization of "The Singing Kid" in "The Heavens." The story of a new type, and has been cast excellently. Harold Goodwin and Lillian Rich are among those who support the star.

Constance Talmadge's next, release through the Associated First National Pictures, Inc., is "The Primitive Lover," an original story by Edgar Selwyn, adapted by Frances Marion. It is her first picture since moving to the west coast.

3 SMUGGLED CHINESE IN TOW OF ALERT OFFICIAL

THREE CELESTIALS NABBED AT PORTLAND BY BONHAM Were Landed at Oregon Metropolis From British Steamer Gorjistan, Now Held for Deportation

PORTLAND, Ore., June 12.—Details of the operation of a ring which has been smuggling Chinese into the United States have been obtained by R. P. Bonham, inspector in chief of the local immigration bureau, who said he had unearthed the evidence in the cases of three Chinese held here for deportation. Bonham charged that the organization has a central office in Hong Kong where Chinese wishing to enter the United States have paid large sums for transportation.

The three Chinese were smuggled into the United States at Portland through this ring on the British steamer Gorjistan, said Bonham, who added that two of the celestials paid $2,000 each and the other $1,150 for the ring's protection. Were Bound for New York According to information received by Bonham five Chinese were in the smuggling deal. They deposited their money with the organization in Hong Kong, and through a member of the crew of the Gorjistan were brought aboard that vessel, with the promise that they would be landed in New York.

The vessel, however, was diverted and after stopping at Havana came to Portland. Three of the Chinese decided to risk landing here, while two of them remained on board the vessel. Bonham captured one of the Chinese at the union depot here, another in a Chinese lodging house, and today rounded up the third, who was working on a hop ranch in a remote section of Marion county below Salem.
