

Food Department Store a Summer Convenience

It's a positive shame to have to do anything at all in summer, isn't it? It's foolish, at any rate, to do more than is really necessary, and that is where this food department store enters to make your summer more enjoyable. Our service is perfected to such an extent that one phone call is enough to bring everything you need to your door—just call 246.

A Variety of Beverages in Our Ice Box

Attention is focused upon thirst-quenching beverages that are cooling and satisfying, and we have them a plenty—Welch's Grape Juice, Calapooya Water in all flavors, Diamond "A" Loganberry Juice (a Eugene product), Malted Milk-Mix, Porto, a concentrated product in several fruit flavors for making punch, and Rainier.

Peaches and Apricots Are Coming In

Although it isn't quite peach time, we have a fine shipment of early peaches and some apricots, too. A few peaches or apricots on the table are a pleasant reminder that the very best of the summer fruit season is here.

Raspberries and Cream Tomorrow Morning

Doesn't that sound good? A big dish of fine Red Raspberries covered over with thick cream and some sugar—could there be a finer dish offered at any meal? Loganberries are in, too—long, thoroughly ripened loganberries are quite a treat in themselves.

Picnic Service Is Popular

You would be surprised at the large number of people taking advantage of our picnic and camper's service. We add some new ones to our list every day. They all compliment us upon the packing, saying that their orders are delivered to their camping places in perfect condition.

What Meat Cutting Service Means

Quite a long while ago we announced that we had obtained the services of an expert meat cutter, Mr. Cook, and since that time our customers have enjoyed a perfect meat service. Just tell us how you wish to cook meat for the next meal and Mr. Cook will send you the correct meat cut. In this way you will never be disappointed in the meat you order.

In Our Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Department

Cantaloupes and watermelons are here. String beans, new peas, new potatoes, green peppers, lettuce, green onions, radishes, rhubarb and tomatoes.

Yes, Our Bakery Has It

Our bakery is complete to the last detail and our bakers are experts. In addition to about a dozen different kinds of bread we make all kinds of cakes, pies and a large number of fancy pastries.

CHURCH CONFERENCE HELD

RELIGIOUS SURVEY DISCUSSED BY LEADERS

Committee to Be Named to Make Report on Recommendations at Meeting Planned for September

Under the supervision of the Community Council of Religious Education at the Christian church yesterday, an all-day conference was held, concerning the social and religious conditions of Lane county communities lying outside of Eugene. This conference was based upon a survey made by Rev. J. D. Boyd of Portland, and checked up by Rev. John D. Rice of Portland.

As chairman of the Council of Religious Education, Frank Eberhard of Eugene presided at the conference. The conference was opened by Dr. Anthony, who gave a bird's eye view, so to speak, of the situation, with particular reference to rural work of the county as a whole. He stated that twenty-four counties out of the 3,000 in the United States had been selected to be checked up and written up, and that Lane county was one of these twenty-four. Among the vital topics touched upon by Dr. Anthony in his address were the following:

Objectives which might grow out of this discussion.

Lane county as part of a larger group.

Do we know what to do for this county?

Geographical unity.

Finding an unoccupied territory and deciding who should be assigned to this territory.

What special industrial groups are there in this county and what is being done for them?

The program of Christian education and what it means to the Sunday school.

Who are your leaders? Men and women who would be valuable to the cause?

A program of Christian cooperation.

Present survey compared with that of six years ago.

Dr. Rice of Portland then presented in a detailed way the facts gleaned in the Lane county survey, which completed the morning session.

At the afternoon session a committee consisting of Rev. C. E. Dunham, Rev. Wm. Moll Case and Rev. Wm. J. Large, made a report based on the information presented, with a recommendation that a committee of five members, representative of as many denominations, be appointed to make a thorough study of the facts that had been presented, and work out a program; this program to be presented at a county wide conference to be held in Eugene in September, on the second day of the county fair. This date was chosen as it was considered by those present to be a good time to secure a better attendance from the outlying districts. This committee of five members was to be appointed by the chairman of the conference. The appointment of the different members, however, was reserved for later consideration.

PAGEANT TO BE ELABORATE

ONE OF THE LARGEST PRODUCTIONS OF KIND PRESENTED

Children of Daily Vacation Bible Schools Take Part in Elaborate Spectacle

One of the largest productions of its kind ever presented in Eugene, will be that one presented by the daily vacation Bible schools in Eugene, in the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, July 2 at 8 o'clock. This pageant entitled "The Light of the World," was first presented in the Imperial theatre, Tokio, Japan, in 1920 and consists of five scenes. It opens with the prophecy of the coming of the Messiah and the prophets. Then follows the scene of the manger of Bethlehem with the Madonna, the angels, shepherds and the Magi kings with their attendants who come to adore the new King.

Isaiah describes his vision and directly following, the Spirit of Christianity lights her torch at the cradle and goes out to find followers of Him who is the Light of the World. While the pageant choir sings, the followers come in one by one, light their torches from Christianity's and go out to get others to consecrate their lives. In the last scene all these ambassadors return with their groups singing. After the last group has taken its place, the entire group of some four hundred children will close the pageant singing the anthem, "Praise Ye the Father," by Gounod.

The performance is under the direct supervision of Mrs. W. M. Case, assisted by the combined faculties of the daily vacation Bible schools. Many elaborate costumes, pageant and antiphonal choirs, entirely of children's voices, together with the special lighting effects which have been worked out will combine to make this an impressive and worth-while one.

PHOTOGRAPHER SELLS OUT

A. C. READ, CAMPER CAMERA MAN, QUITS BUSINESS

A. C. Read, campus photographer, who has been engaged in the photo business in Eugene for the past four years has sold his property including store and home on Thirteenth avenue east, between Alder and Grand streets, and will probably not engage in the photograph business again in Eugene although he states that he has not yet formulated his plans for the immediate future.

Mr. Read is well known to all University of Oregon students who have attended the local school for the past four years and hundreds of samples of his camera activities occupy prominent places in the memory books of many students who have desired to retain some pictorial memento of the scholastic events of their campus days.

The Thirteenth avenue property has been owned by Mr. Read for the past two years. A. T. Silvers of the Peterson and McCully company made the deal.

RACEWAY IS TAKEN OVER

SWIMMING PLACE IS RENOVATED AND REPAIRED

C. G. Smith and D. T. Bayley, well-known students of the university, have taken over the Anheuser Raceway, in years past a very popular swimming place, have lately made a number of improvements in it in the way of building a new chute, fixing up the locker rooms so that valuables will be safe, putting in new spring boards and otherwise putting the resort in condition for enjoyable swimming.

It is expected by Mr. Smith and Mr. Bayley to repair the concrete swimming tank later on in the season so that children may swim there with safety.

HUMANISM SPAETH'S TOPIC

TREATMENT OF MEN AS IF THEY WERE THINGS DEPLORED

Speaker at University Pleads for Reconciling of Two Divergent Schools of Thought

Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, professor of English literature at Princeton university, delivered the assembly lecture at the university yesterday morning, making a plea for more humanism in science and more science in humanism.

The speaker took his text from Emerson: "There are two laws discrete, not reconciled—a law for man and a law for things. The one binds town and fleet, but it runs wild and doth the man unking."

To the clashing of these two laws Dr. Spaeth laid the World War, "Science enslaved to the service of war," he quoted, "is science committing suicide." The science he defined as humanism, and the law for things, science. Not reconciled, they involved humanity in the late war, according to the speaker.

"What I like about the engineer," said the speaker, "is that when he has a bridge to build he does not begin by making a speech about it. He makes his blueprint first. Then he assembles his materials and his equipment, and eventually he has a bridge. Then when the flood comes, he does not have to go to and talk to the bridge and beg it to be 100 per cent bridge. He just remembers who built the bridge. If it's built right, it will stand. But if the engineer treats his men as if they were of reinforced concrete, he has a strike on his hands."

It is the duty of the universities, Dr. Spaeth contended, to reconcile these two conflicting schools of thought—to make science more humanistic and give humanism the benefit of scientific method.

Dr. Spaeth last evening was the guest of honor of the Principals' club at dinner at Friendly hall. In a short address he advocated not only that as much as possible be done for the sub-normal student, for whom he expressed great sympathy, but that full opportunity be given the superior normal, to the end that democracy be not menaced by the threats of mediocrity and that ideals of excellence may survive.
