Mrs. Linton Tells How Helpful Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is at This Period

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for twenty years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 133 Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

PAVING HALSEY STRETCH

WORK OF SPREADING HOT STUFF WAS BEGUN THURSDAY

(Special to the Register)—The paving of the Pacific highway from Halsey to Harrisburg was begun Thursday morning at eight o'clock when the Scandia company began the laying of the hot stuff on the eight-and-a-half-mile stretch. Enough material had been hauled here to the Halsey end and where the paving is being started for a mile of pavement.

Two of the highway department's inspectors are here and will keep an exact check of the paving work, taking up samples of the paving mixture every evening and sending it in to be tested in the highway department's laboratory at the head office.

Good progress has been made the past week and Jake Marzuth has been given supervision of the company's rock crusher. It is still questioned whether the plant can turn out enough sand to supply the demands but this will be remedied by receiving shipments of sand from Eugene. It may be, however, that when the shovel gradually cuts down into the gravel bed the sand supply will increase.

STUDENT INFUX TAXES GERMANY'S UNIVERSITIES

Steps Suggested to Stem Tide of Foreigners

CROWDED BY OUTSIDERS

Enrollment in German Universities Has Shown Increase of 30 Per Cent. Since the War

(Correspondence of the Associated Press)

BERLIN, June 25.—Accommodations at most of Germany's universities and technical high schools have been so severely cramped since the war by increasing enrollments that steps are being suggested for stemming the rising percentage of foreigners. Students from abroad are estimated to constitute 25 per cent of the total enrollment.

A teacher in the movement to restrict the foreign influx states that in his lecture room he has noted from 50 to 100 non-Germans, made up principally of Hungarians, Rumanians, Russians, Hungarians, Yugoslavs and South Africans. He declares the preparations of these "outsiders" frequently is insufficient and that their conduct often "leaves much to be desired." While emphasizing the need of some curtailment in the enrollment and favoring action against foreigners to this end, he observes that caution should be exercised to avoid political or diplomatic embarrassment through too stringent procedure.

Enrollment Is Heavy

Enrollment in German universities as a whole has shown an increase of 30 per cent since the war and that of the technical high schools has been more than doubled. Just before the war there were 45,000 university students in Germany. At the armistice the aggregate jumped to 50,000. There has since been a slight falling off, the summer of 1921 registering 47,117. Technical high schools of the country were banding 12,000 before the war. In the autumn of 1920 their students numbered 22,276 and last winter 23,514.

While the knowledge that the war resulted in a greater greed for learning in the younger generation, rather than causing demoralization and frivolous living, has proved a disturbing factor in that "kultur" studies have suffered declining fascination. Compared with the figures for 1914, the present statistics for university students show a decrease in the number of students in the departments of law, medicine, philosophy and philology. Medicine, the most popular in 1914, also has proved less attractive, although dentistry students have more than doubled and there has been a slight increase in chemistry. The would-be physicians now number 15,110, whereas in 1914 there were 16,948.

Political economy heads the list in the numbers of university students enrolled and in percentage of enrollment. This branch has 17,714 over 1914. This branch has 17,714 at work, as compared with 18,516 in the last pre-war year. The study of law comes next, with a registration of 14,334, as compared with 12,440. Mathematics alone has 5,129 enrolled, against 1,307 before the war. There are 3735 in mathematics and physical science in these schools and 2,811 in constructing engineering, as compared with 1,514 and 2,157, respectively. Mining and smelting have registered a gain from 576 to 1,234. Architecture alone, in the technical schools, has shown a decline, the enrollment dropping from 1,119 to 1,011.

Of 23 universities mentioned in current statistics only four have shown a smaller enrollment than in 1914. This complete list includes Frankfurt, founded in 1814, and now having 4,847 students, and the universities of Cologne and Hamburg, both founded in 1819, which have enrollments of 4,107 and 3,660, respectively. The largest registration is in the University of Berlin, with 17,714, as compared with 15,110 in 1914. Munich has increased from 6,626 to 8,984 and Leipzig from 5,650 to 5,660. Of the four having more than 4,000 students before the war, only Bonn suffered a decrease, from 4,514 to 4,043. Würzburg had the greatest percentage of increase, its enrollment rising from 1,605 to 2,307.

Big Ship Heavily Insured

The greatest insurance ever written in the American market for a single ship has been taken by the American Marine Insurance syndicate. The syndicate, which was created more than a year ago, to provide a market capable of carrying $2,500,000 risk on a single American vessel, announced that 77 members have accepted an insurance of $2,000,000 on the Leviathan on her trip from New York to Newport, Rhode Island. The giant liner also is insured for $2,500,000 while under repair at the southern port. Additional insurance has been written abroad. The liability which the syndicate has assumed would have been impossible without the formation of syndicates.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Taking care of Uncle Sam's disabled veterans of the world war and fitting them for useful vocations, is a huge task according to the Veterans' bureau, which has been actually taking vocational training. Up to May 1, the bureau's figures show, a total of 601,930 Veterans had applied for vocational training, of which number 312,939 applications had been approved.

In addition to the 30,000 factories and industrial organizations which are affording placement training to 36,794 veterans, there are 3,228 institutions engaged in the work of retraining men who were disabled or partially disabled. Of this number there are 162 universities, 254 colleges, 93 state normal schools, 1,043 commercial schools, 244 public schools and 266 institutions teaching miscellaneous subjects. Of these 49 are government institutions.

The number receiving instruction has almost doubled in the period from July, 1921, to last May, the bureau says. On July 1, 1921, there were 32,293 men actually taking vocational training, and on May 1 last there were 103,910.

The number of those graduated, or declared rehabilitated, is constantly increasing. Up to last July 5,000 men had been declared fit to take up new vocations, and since that time 7,514 veterans have been added to that number.

Agriculture, the bureau adds, seems to be the most popular course preferred by the men, as there are now

RICH SUFFER FROM BOREDOME

Woman Novelist Sees Little to Enjoy in Wealthy People

"You have to be poor to enjoy the flavor of life," says Kathleen Norris in explaining why the engaging heroine in "The Beloved Woman" turned down a millionaire almost-ambassador for a poor suitor, and why Stedman's "Wishin' in 'Lauretta Lombard' did not weigh wealth and an assured position against a great love.

"Poor people are never bored with life. I had lunch today," she continued, "in a restaurant filled with rich women. Honestly, I don't think they would have stirred them—they were so bored. And I thought to myself, 'You poor, pathetic parasites, putting your white-gloved hands into your gold mesh bags to pay $7.50 for a single lunch. What are you getting out of life?'

"It was the daughter of one of these women, a little girl of 16, whose mother found that she and a boy friend of 19 had hired a flat together, in which—innocently enough, I believe—the two were entertaining their when the mother asked the girl, 'You have everything—why on earth did you do such a thing as this?' The 16-year-old answered, wearily, 'I was so bored, mother!'

Easier Handled

A supporter of the local football team arrived at the grounds one day and saw a load of bricks. He applied to the club secretary and asked, 'Wouldn't half-bricks have been better?'

"Half-bricks," replied the secretary. "We couldn't build a pavilion with half bricks!'

"Oh, are they for a pavilion?" said the man. "My mistake. I thought they were for the referee."—Toronto Globe.
