

Take Good Care of Your Eyes

There is no function of the human construction more important than good eyesight and none more generally neglected.

Eyes stand for a lot of hard usage; overworked nerves, abused muscles and strained accommodations.

The condition of your eyes in later years will show the care you have given them at the time they need it.

Proper glasses, fitted right at the right time, not only give you better vision, but relieve the pressure on your nerves and give you comfort, ease and efficiency.

I will give you the utmost in eye help by the employment of scientific, sane and sensible methods.

My prices are very reasonable for the service and materials and you are given the benefit of my practical experience extending over a period of more than a third of a century.

Tales of Those Who Tour

The Collins brothers, Harry and Albert, heard of Eugene's auto park while they were in the Yellowstone, and now that they are here both declare it the best one they've struck yet. They are driving their flivver from Cleveland, Ohio, and intend to go anywhere they please, with the ambition to visit every state in the union before returning home. Harry's specialty is pitching hay, he declares, and so the twain will seek employment with some farmer here in the valley for a few days before going on south. In Cleveland, both worked inside, and now Albert says that work outside is real pleasure for them. They intend to "autobum" until October before returning home.

E. D. Wells, from Great Falls, Montana, in president, secretary, treasurer and sole owner of the S. D. Webb company, a lustily growing concern that manufactures aluminum goods, fishing tackle, camping outfits and various other products. The company is doing a fine business, states the president, owner, etc., and he intends to stay in Eugene a few days before continuing his commercial journey to San Diego. He will try out the company's fishing tackle and camping equipment on a trip up the McKenzie over the week-end.

The "four traveling bachelors," Charles Merriman, Ernest Edmonson, Olin Perrott and Randolph Bigle are here from Columbus, Ohio, to visit the University of Oregon, the fame of which has traveled to them back in their native city. They are irrepressible high school students, and as Charlie says, they're "getting a tremendous kick" out of the trip. They have visited the Yellowstone and Glacier national parks, and intend to see the rest of the Western scenic spots before giving the trusty wheels the rest. All four will return to Eugene and enter college in the fall, where Ernest and Olin will don football uniforms, and Charles and Randolph will try to shine at basketball and wrestling, respectively.

A jolly good fellow is P. J. Banner, of Portland, who said in regard to his trip up the McKenzie today that he was "taking a chicken out for a good time." His wife laughingly objected to the sobriquet, but corroborated the statement that "a good time was going to be had by all." They will spend the week-end at Foley Springs, after which Mr. Banner will return to his business in Portland.

Major H. J. Wild, of the Sixth company of engineers of Camp Lewis, is planning on touring Oregon with his wife while on his furlough. They intend to visit the McKenzie and Willamette regions, Crater Lake and any other places they have time for.

Ep. E. David, of Oakland, Cal., says in good faith that Eugene is fast becoming California's playground. He intends to stay here for several days, fishing and enjoying the scenery, and states that several of his friends plan on doing the same later in the summer.

W. E. Myers, from Nanticoke, Pa., is taking his wife and five daughters on a six months' trip, which will in time become a "coast to coast" jaunt. "There's no better way of educating your children," says Mr. Myers, "and from a standpoint of health, well, not one has had even a headache since leaving home." The party is now southbound.

F. W. Trumper is here from Grants Pass, looking for a location. He says he likes Eugene, its people and everything else about here, so is bound to find something to do and stay.

A contractor and builder from Los Angeles, L. E. Gartin, will spend the next few days in Eugene, looking over the building situation, and he states that in the near future he may seriously consider locating here.

Others stopping last night were W. Wright and family of Los Angeles; J. F. Wood, of Everett, Washington; W. A. Finley and family of Waukegan, Wash.; Ernest Dugan and wife of Los Angeles, Cal., and R. R. Jamison of Hornbrook, Cal.

WEALTH OF 3 STATES GIVEN

500-PAGE BOOK TO SET FORTH RESOURCES OF COAST

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) SPOKANE, Wash., July 12.—A 500-page book entitled "The Economic Resources of the Pacific Northwest," and covering the wealth of the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, is being published under the auspices of the college of business administration of the University of Washington, and will be ready for distribution in August.

The book was written jointly by Parker K. Baird, a Spokane engineer, and Ernest Goodner, chemist with a local clay products company. It is primarily intended for use in the upper division of high schools, having been especially adapted by the authors to commercial geography, economics, history and English composition.

According to the authors, the book represents the Pacific Northwest as a whole, impartially pointing out the resources of all cities and sections in the territory, without reference to firm names or trademarks. Editing of the book was done by Dean Stephen I. Miller and Professor H. T. Lewis of the college of business administration at the University of Washington.

HARDING TAKES HAND IN STRIKE SITUATION

ing to labor board officials, are prepared to make determined effort to re-open their shops the first of the week with non-union employees.

With the carriers apparently determined to maintain traffic as nearly normal as possible, the ranks of the strikers were expected to be augmented Monday by a walkout of firemen and others, while at Cleveland the American federation of rail workers have voted to walk out the first of the week.

After a conference with President Harding today, E. F. Grable, head of the maintenance of way organization said there was no prospect of an immediate authorization of a strike of his 400,000 men, but added that 48 hours might change the situation. According to a white house statement concerning the meeting, Mr. Grable brought to the President the first official protest of the labor board and expressed the opinion that proper conference would end in settlement.

Chicago, Strike Hub, Quiet Chicago, the hub of the strike, was quiet. Mr. Jewell announced he would have nothing to say over the week-end while labor board mediators apparently were nonplussed by the "fundamental differences" developed at yesterday's conference.

In Washington, official circles were said to be hopeful for a settlement but the administration was prepared for emergency action should the occasion arise.

Federal court orders restraining strikers from interfering with the petitioners continued to be granted. Troops were requested at San Bernardino, California, to protect railroad property and representatives of Secretary Weeks and Governor Neff were investigating the need of troops at Denison, Texas. Disorders occurred at Scranton, Pennsylvania, where one man was shot, and at El Paso, Texas.

California Fruits Suffer Indication that the strike would have an early effect on crops was seen in statements from Fresno, California, that $200,000,000 worth of fruits is endangered and from Macon, Georgia, that railroads have begun to withdraw their solicitors from the peach and melon districts.

The statement by rail executives here today said that reports from railroads in all parts of the country showed gains in the number of men in the shops since the strike began. The situation, the statement said, was better in eastern territory than elsewhere.

Where injunctions have been issued, men have returned to work in larger numbers, the statement said, and added that the policy of the carriers to protect the seniority and other rights of men who remain at work has had a beneficial effect.

PEACE IS NECESSARY TO PROGRESS IN BALKANS

THEY ARE DESTINED TO BECOME VERY PROSPEROUS

The Most Potent Influence at Present to Maintain Peace Is "Little Alliance"

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, June 20.—If peace can be maintained among the various countries of the Balkans they are destined to become, with gradual development of their promising natural resources, extremely prosperous, according to Americans who have lived here and engaged in business since the war.

The most potent influence at present to maintain peace is the "Little Alliance," established by the help of the French at the conclusion of the general war. This at present is an intangible understanding between Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, countries which have never had conflicting national interests of serious importance. Greece and Bulgaria, if not Austria, may eventually be drawn into this understanding. One object of the alliance, if it can be so called, is to block German influence, another is to settle quarrels and eventually to arrange practical customs and trading agreements similar to those in effect when much of this territory was under the Austrian empire.

When one considers the expressions of hatred daily indulged in by the Greeks and Serbs against the Bulgars, it would not appear probable that any reasonable termination of this hatred could be found. Yet it is the theory of Minister of Interior Mankovich, of Yugoslavia, that a permanent peace between the Serbs, chief of the Yugoslav union, with Bulgaria is logical. He maintains that they should try to go back to their original union, which had for its purpose the defeat of the Turks. This, he says, is the secret of peace in the Balkans.

TREATY BOWL UNEARTHED

INDIAN RELIC SAID TO BE MORE THAN 500 YEARS OLD

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) VANDERBILT, Ind., July 15.—A relic, said to be the largest in existence, was found at Nimkiah, 100 miles north of here.

The relic, which is said to be more than 500 years old, is 15 feet long, and according to archaeologists, was made by Indians using stone tools and axes. The bowl, which was the center of an interesting Indian ceremony, was called by the aborigines "the mother of the Five Tribes." These tribes would meet to discuss hunting laws and tribal boundaries, and on such occasions the bowl was filled with some kind of liquor. After the conference of chiefs of the respective tribes, they would take a smaller bowl and, filling it with the liquor, would take it back to their councilors. If the terms agreed on for a treaty were accepted, the liquor was accepted, but if the councilors objected to any of the terms, the liquor was returned and the vessel was laid under the neck of the idol, this constituting an ultimatum.

The bowl was found by a party engaged in removing a totem pole attached to the side of an old house. The relic will be placed in the Vancouver museum.

FOREST EXTENSION IS PLAN

F. G. MILLER EXPLORES TREELESS VISTAS OF IDAHO

(Correspondence of the Associated Press) MOSCOW, Idaho, July 12.—As a tree missionary for the forest belt of Idaho, F. G. Miller, dean of the school of forestry of the University of Idaho, is spending July and August in a trip through the central and southern parts of the state in the interests of forest extension.

Dean Miller reports that there is coming to be a marked interest in the establishment of windbreaks, shelter-belts and woodlots in the treeless areas, and of his trip is to determine the trees best adapted for planting in the different localities of the state. He reports a special interest being shown in the planting of black locust for fence post production, as the demand for this wood was greater than the supply this spring.

Dean Miller also plans to give considerable attention to the planting of home grounds, streets, parks, school grounds and public highways, as well as to the relation of forested watersheds to irrigation farming.

Von Elm Loses to Knipper (By the Associated Press) OMAHA, Neb., July 15.—Rudolph Knipper, Sioux City, Iowa, lifted the trans-Mississippi golf championship crown from the head of George Von Elm, Salt Lake City, here this afternoon, when he defeated the champion, five up and four to play.

Throughout the morning round, which left Von Elm seven down to the challenger, neither man had risen to the golf worthy of a champion.
