American Walnuts FOR American People

The safest crop to raise is the one having the greatest public demand. Take Walnuts, for instance. In 1911 there were 32 million pounds of Walnuts imported into this country. In 1921 there were 45 million pounds imported. An increase of 13 million pounds. American people "want" more American Walnuts. But we're not supplying their "want." Our home-grown Walnuts are far superior to any imported, and an unlimited demand for them exists. Why not plant a few Walnut trees this Spring? They are likewise serviceable for shade and ornamentation. For full particulars on best varieties, locations, soils, etc., write to the

DAILY MARKET REPORT

OREGON JOURNAL MARKET SERVICE
PORTLAND, Ore., March 7. Trend of the butter market is somewhat easier. It would not be at all surprising if a general decline be forced in the trade here and at Pacific Northwest points generally.

Already the underlying features of the trade indicate gathering weakness. The depression is usually first shown in cubes. At this time there is a decided downward tendency in the cube trade and especially for stock that is not strictly No. 1 quality. Real extra are by no means in superabundance in the trade here. In fact, at intervals there is a decided shortage of such offerings. It is the No. 2 and worse stuff that shows increasing neglect from buyers here. Cubes of so-called extras are quoted from 42c down. While some of the big centralizers here are holding their cubes around 44 1/2c to 45c a pound, so far as known, no business of moment is shown above 42c in the far west would be an acceptable figure to some of the smaller local creameries.

EGG TRADE STILL ASCENDING
Market for eggs continues its advance here, with general prices higher for selling. The recent advance of the buying price is generally maintained. Cold weather in the East is a factor.

POLTRY MOVEMENT IS BETTER
Better movement of poultry is showing along the wholesale way. Chicken receipts are quite liberal—both live and dressed stock—and demand is keeping the market cleared with the price range unchanged.

VEAL DEMAND IS NOT SO KEEN
Demand for country-killed calves is less keen. Live calves liberally gain of offerings here. Sufficient stock is now arriving to take care of the trade's wants without skimping the price. Hogs about steady.

POTATO BUYING ALMOST CEASES
Live of live potatoes is small but business with still lower prices shown at leading consumer centers, there is practically no new movement in potatoes from country points. Buyers are bidding 30c to 40c generally, with an occasional select lot 50c to 60c a c. b. station.

DOLLAR APPLES IN BEST CALL
Apples that sell around $1 a box continue in the best call in the local trade. There is a report of buyers buying at Columbia river points by Canadian inter-ests at 75c to 80c per box for small sizes, face and fill.
