Today is Mothers Day

the sweetest day of all. Let our thoughts be today of our dear Mother, the best friend we'll ever have. Honor her today by wearing a flower—a bright one if she is still with you; a white one if she is gone.

GOD sent the birds and sunshine
To gladden all the world;
He sent the foliage and flowers
In radiance unfurled;
He sent the June, the Stars, the Moon,
The pearly dewdrops sweet;
And then he sent you, MOTHER, dear, to Make it all complete.

Eugene's VALUE store for men

Eddie Cantor tells this story young wife found a card in her husband's pocket on which was written "May Belle 1604."

who is this May Belle, and what are you doing with her phone number?" - - - asked the wife - - - "my dear" - - - said the husband, "May Belle is a horse, and the odds are 16 to 4 against her."

the next evening as the young husband entered the house, he was greeted with this remark - - - "well, Harry dear - - - your horse called up this afternoon!"

the clothier who hollers himself hoarse about his values in the paper and is a whispering Smith in person, always finds that it's a horse on him.
