DAILY MARKET REPORT

OREGON JOURNAL MARKET SERVICE PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—There remains a quiet tone in the egg trade, but values showed no change for the day. Friday's business was generally at the recently lowered price, but there was a disposition in some quarters to believe that the reaction was only a temporary slide. Outside markets are very much inclined to show little change in prices. Values in the East are on a basis where real extras can be moved to the Atlantic seaboard at a profit, but only a very small volume of the local supply can be placed in that grade. The situation today is that most of the local eggs must be absorbed along the coast.

BUTTER SITUATION IS STEADY Generally steady tone is showing for butter here, with cube prices generally maintained for good stuff. Considerable off-grade butter arriving from interior points and purchases are reported down to 34¢-35¢ per pound. Extras command 39¢.

POOR PEACHES ARE WEAKENING Considerable poor quality peaches are shown on the market here and this is affecting values. The general price list is lower, even top Elbertas selling down to $1.50-$1.60. Local stock around 75¢ to $1.25. The latter is an extreme.

OVER HALF OF COTS ARE SOLD Fully 60 per cent of the apricot crop of the Dalles section has been shipped, according to announcement made by Manager Thompson of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association. He reports the peach crop in general will be slightly less than a year ago in that district.

TOMATO CROP BADLY BLIGHTED Further reports of blight of tomatoes are coming from The Dalles and from Eastern Washington centers. Early selling is badly affected. Receipts from The Dalles slowly increasing, but little is of top quality. Best packs still command $1.75-$2.00 per box.

APRICOT MARKET DOES BETTER All through the market for apricots an improved feeling is shown here. Sales of best crates are shown as high as $3.75 for large sizes, while juicier rule around $1.60 for similar goods. Sultans around 90¢-$1.00 generally.

CANTALOUPE PRICES ARE OFF Further reduction in cantaloupe prices is shown, with California standards around $5.50-$5.75 and flats $2.50, slight for Imperial stock standards are moving at $4.75.
