FLORIDA AND OREGON

In this column day before yesterday was described briefly the amazing boom that has made Florida the most discussed, at the moment, of all the states. In this sketchy survey of a subject that is interesting the eastern part of the United States tremendously no mention was made of the curious legislative device by which Florida bids for the favors of the wealthy tax-dodger. The omission was deliberate. For the anti-income tax and anti-inheritance tax clause of the Florida constitution has had little to do with the situation that is focusing the eyes of the East on that state.

Senator Bruce Dennis and his backers of course, think otherwise. Within a short time we shall be hearing from them that the way to make Oregon great is to follow Florida's footsteps and agree solemnly to exempt incomes and inheritance from taxation for a period of at least 15 years. That assertion will doubtless be a prominent part of the campaign for the so-called Dennis resolution when it comes up to be voted on.

In the writer's opinion, the Florida ban on income and inheritance taxes has had comparatively little to do with the spectacular boom which has made Florida a by-word everywhere east of the Rockies. That boom is based fundamentally upon winter climate. It capitalizes the desire of those living in cold countries to get away from snow and ice. It began with the sudden realization that Florida is only 35 hours away from the great cities of the East, and once started it was a fire that fed upon itself. People are rushing to Florida now not so much for the climate as for the easy money to be made out of rising land values. But it all traces back to palm trees and warm beaches within a few hours of a vast population that dreads cold winters.

Oregon is by no means the only state that is considering the income and inheritance tax ban, and it stands to reason that if many states adopt it the special advantages hoped for will fall to materialize. They will fall of realization anyway, for the Florida condition is a peculiar one not duplicated elsewhere.

ADVICE TO NEW INVESTORS

Unfortunately every beginning investor seems to have to learn his own lesson through his own bitter experience. For the benefit of the few who really think before they invest, the Better Business bureau of New York has prepared a list of 10 questions to be asked of the salesman. It is well, the bureau says, to get his answers in writing, with his name signed to them, and then to follow them up by serious investigation. The questions follow:

- 1. What are the names and principal addresses of your employers and how long have they been in business?
2. With what bank does your firm do business and what are its other references?
3. What were the real assets (real worth) of the company in which stock is being sold at the date of its organization, and what are its assets now?
4. What are the company's liabilities?
5. What are its earnings?
6. How many times has interest or dividends on this security issue been earned in the past five years?
7. Who are the officers of the company and what is their record of business activity during the past five years?
8. What experience have these

Physical Causes of Senile Dementia

Hardenings of the Blood Vessels. Together with Advancing Age, May Bring on Gradual Loss of Mental Powers.
By ROYAL S. COPPLAND, M.D. (United States Senator from Maryland, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City)

A few weeks ago a New England reader asked me to write about senile dementia. She told me of an unusual circumstance. In that one family there are three cases of this disturbance, each patient being above 74 years of age. My correspondent wants to know the cause of it and if there is any help for this condition. She says there has been no apparent treatment already given and wonders why.

There is an old saying that a man is no older than his arteries. There is a lot of truth in it. Some persons grow, old easily and sweetly. Others have hardening of the blood vessels, so bad sometimes as to make their little pipe-stems, ready to be broken by a fall or a blow. If the break occurs in the brain, the mind may be disturbed.

Even though the blood vessels remain elastic and fairly normal, there may be in the tissues of the brain other changes which are capable of disturbing the mind. With increasing age the brain substance may waste away and thus impair the normal action of that organ.

Early Days in Eugene

(From the Morning Register, December 1, 1906)

The University of Oregon won the football game yesterday from Multnomah club by a score of 8 to 4. This is the first time Oregon has won from the club men since 1896.

Eugene high school football team won from the Columbia university team of Portland yesterday by a score of 11 to 0.

Married, at Creswell, November 29, 1906, J. Wiley Maxwell and Miss Clara B. Sly. Rev. Mr. Stratford officiating.

The police have issued a warning that small boys will be arrested if found roaming the streets late at night.

Dillard and Svarverud's orchestra went to Junction City yesterday to play at a dance.

Married at the home of the bride's mother in Eugene, November 28, 1906, Willis A. Walker and Miss Mary Shipworth. Dr. M. C. Wire officiating.

Words Often Misused: Don't say, "They offered a catalogue to whom they would ask for it." Say "whoever."

Often Mispronounced: Pique. Pronounce "pek," the "e" as in "she."

Often Misspelled: Intelligible. Synonyms: Relax, detach, loosen, slacken, divert, abate.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours. Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Today's word: Implacable; not to be pacified or released. "He faced the group of men, a look of implacable anger in his eyes."

TREATIES TO BE SIGNED

REPRESENTATIVES OF NATIONS MEET IN LONDON

German Delegates to Be Given Note Interpreting Article 16 of League Covenant
(LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Locarno treaty of mutual guarantee and its sister arbitration pacts already have been laid on the tables in the reception hall of His Majesty's foreign office for the ceremony tomorrow of signing and sealing by the plenipotentiaries of the nations concerned. All the delegates had arrived in London tonight in readiness for the work which will put into operation these documents pledging Germany and her neighbors to respect the frontiers established by the treaty of Versailles and accept arbitration in their disputes. The signatory nations are represented by Austro-Chamberlain for Great Britain; M. Briand for France; Herr Stresemann and Chancellor Luther for the German Republic; Emile Vandervelde for Belgium; Count Scialoja, Italy; M. Skarzynski, Poland; and Edouard Beneš, Czechoslovakia. Ceremonies Start at 10
The day's ceremonies will start at 10 a. m. when the delegates will meet in the foreign office to verify the documents conferring plenipotentiary powers upon them. The signatories will assemble in the reception room where the formal signing will begin shortly after 11 o'clock. Great Britain's delegation, which includes Austen Chamberlain and Premier Baldwin has been accorded a place at the head of the line, a table around which the delegates will be seated in the same order as at Locarno. The plenipotentiaries will be simple. At the head of the Austro-Chamberlain foreign office has reported that the delegates' powers have been found valid and a few corrections have been made in the original text of the treaties. Mr. Chamberlain will propose the signing. Other Treaties Made
When the signing is completed the collective note to the German delegates interpreting article 16 of the covenant of the league will be signed and handed to them by Mr. Chamberlain and the two treaties between France and Poland, and France and Czechoslovakia will be signed. It is provided by the treaties that they shall be ratified and then deposited with the league of nations, which will furnish copies to the contracting parties.

Answers to Health Queries

A READER: Q.—What can I do to be rid of a little brown mole?
Answer.—This may be removed by an electric needle. However, it requires the skill of an expert.

M. L. R.: Q.—What will make my eyelashes grow?
Answer.—Apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the lids each night. This should make them grow.

MRS. G. F. B.: Q.—What can be done to relieve a cough that seems to be caused by phlegm in the throat causing tickling? The patient is unable to sleep properly on this account.
Answer.—This is probably due to bronchitis. Build up the general health and you will be less susceptible to colds and coughs. A good throat spray should relieve your symptoms to a great extent. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Briefs of Oregon Life

With a bank account which probably will amount to more than $1000, made possible by Portland's spontaneous Thanksgiving generosity, and with the assurance that in the near future she will be placed on a definitely self-supporting basis in a small business of her own, Mrs. Floyd Camp, widow and made destitute Monday night by the burning of her home in Portland, faces a future far from hopeless for herself and her little daughter, saved from the fire.

Dr. M. B. Marcell, 911 West Lombard street, Portland, celebrated Thanksgiving day in bed as a result of an encounter with a brown bear which he tried to train.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Cultivating a Pleasant Voice
One Mother Says:
"Son and I made a contract with each other to stop whatever noise we might be making, such as hammering, running the sewing machine, etc., when it became necessary to communicate with one another; also to come as near to where the other might be as possible, thus eliminating the harsh repetition. There has been a much needed rest to my nerves since then and Bobby is cultivating a well modulated and pleasant speaking voice."

NINE DIE IN WRECK

PASSENGER TRAIN STRIKES AUTO AT CROSSING
(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 30.—Nine persons were killed and one injured, probably fatally, when St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train No. 801 bound from St. Louis to Memphis, struck an automobile which was crossing the tracks at a crossing near here late today.

All of the dead and the injured, a child, were members of the family of Cleve Oxford and his brother, Lawrence Oxford, farmers.

CHAPLIN LOSES SHOE

NEW SETTING PROVIDED IN "THE GOLD RUSH"
Balanced Mixture of Pathos and Near-Teaseful Turns Into Comedy in New Film
By G. W. M.
If you think Oregon is cold and damp right now, step down and watch Charlie Chaplin weather "The Gold Rush" in his derby hat, cutaway coat and a little old hat, year's plaid slacks. But stoke the furnace before you go, and get a backing ready for the fireplace.

All our good friend Charlie has between him and nature in the rear is the same pair of Oxford bags that he's been wearing for the last five years, a pack and an iron prospector's skillet—cold comfort in the land of the midnight sun. Present also his heavy gait and 1 pt. gloves, cotton. The film starts with the hero shod on both feet, but somewhere between Seattle and New Year's one shoe disappears and a sturdy gunny sack comes to the picture with good effect.

The film is just Charlie Chaplin's same old stuff, and that's all right because it's what everybody expects and wants when they peek the showhouses to see his antics. But it's the same old stuff in a new setting, and it's just fooling around the edge of being serious every moment or two. There are some moments of near-tragedy and pathos that get you worked up to pity an alien who has had to become a chow chow and a sturdy gunny sack comes to the picture with good effect.

The film has some scenery which is as fine as that of many a serious picture, and against a background of near-burlesque that is easier to watch than stark realism, you can see Alaska gold rush.

The film will be a drawing card all week at the McDonald theatre.

W. R. LLOYD HANGED

MRS. BAUN DENIED ADMISION TO DEATH CHAMBER
(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
SALEM, O., Nov. 30.—William R. Lloyd, murderer of Clinton L. Baun, former garage owner at Independence, paid the penalty for his crime on the gallows in the execution chamber of the Oregon state prison here this morning. Approximately 30 persons witnessed the execution.

Mrs. Clinton L. Baun, widow of the murdered man, and Mrs. Irvine Baun, wife of the murdered man's brother, demanded admission to the hanging but were refused by prison authorities.

"I am not sentimental," Mrs. Irvine Baun said, "but I want to see this man die and I could pull the rope myself. I never will be satisfied unless I am allowed to witness the execution."

Lloyd shot Baun to death on the evening of September 1. He was captured in The Dalles the following night.

REAL ESTATE IS SOLD

TRADE OF FARM LAND INVOLVES $50,000
Yakima Ranch Traded for Lane County Property; Two Other Deals are Reported
Exchanges of real estate in which one deal alone involved the transfer of property valued at $50,000, were reported yesterday through Frank Kinney, local realtor.

The largest deal was that in which Myron A. Dayton traded 320 acres of farm land in Lane county, 11 miles northwest of Eugene, to W. M. McGinnis for what is considered one of the best improved 46-acre tracts in Yakima county, Washington.

Both properties were valued at $25,000 each in the exchange. Mr. Kinney represented Mr. Dayton in the transaction and Pat Murphy of Prosser, Wash., represented Mr. McGinnis.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Stevens of Eugene yesterday purchased a tract of 4.85 acres on the Pacific highway one-third of a mile north of Siskiyou, formerly owned by George Simpkins who is now located in San Diego, California. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens plan to improve the place which is all in bearing orchards. There are no buildings on the land.

Another deal reported by Mr. Kinney was that between P. S. Baker of Princeton, Cal., who bought a ten-acre tract in Prosser just back from R. H. Pierce. This tract faces on Chambers street just south and west of the aviation field. Mr. Baker expects to divide the acreage into one-acre plots and sell it again. Peterson and McCully handled the negotiation for Mr. Pierce.

CERTIFICATE RETURNED

LUTHERAN HOME MISSION COMING TO EUGENE
Certificate of incorporation of the Eugene Evangelical Lutheran church was returned to the secretary of the new organization, O. P. Nordling, yesterday by the secretary of state.

Mr. Nordling reported that a meeting with the Home Mission council for the Pacific coast, an inter-synodical body representative of five of the largest Lutheran churches, was expected in the near future.

The council will come to Eugene to look over prospective sites for a church and the territory generally to determine what aid the new project should have. The Home Mission is said to be entirely in accord with the movement to establish an American church.

NOTED SINGER ARRIVES

ANNA CASE APPEARS IN CONCERT HERE TONIGHT
Anna Case, noted soprano, who will appear here this evening in a concert, arrived in Eugene late yesterday.

The singer has been brought to this city by the Associated Students of the University of Oregon and will make her appearance at the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Preparations for the concert, such as decorating the stage platform and arranging for the large audience expected, were made last night by officials of the student body.
