PARK AND INDUSTRIAL BODY ORGANIZES

Meeting With Eugene Committee Will Be Arranged; Uses for Site Held Many by Members

(Register Lane County Special) SPRINGFIELD, Ore., Dec. 2.—H. E. Maxey, temporary chairman, was made permanent chairman and Herbert L. Clarke was elected permanent secretary of the Springfield municipal park board and industrial committee at a meeting held here last night. The session was held to organize the body for its work in the investigation of park and industrial projects for the old Southern Pacific company site located from the city of Eugene for 49 years. A meeting will be arranged if possible with a similar industrial committee of Eugene by the local group, it is announced. The entire committee was named a short time ago for the purpose of disposing of the land tract and contents of Mr. Maxey, Mr. Clarke, A. J. Perkins, S. C. Wright and William G. Hughes. The site could well be used by many industrial firms, it is believed by members of the committee. Water power is accessible for plants on the land and the Booth-Kelly mill race passes almost directly through the tract. Five acres of the land will be used for a public park.

BATTERY SHOP GUTTED

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE STOCK IN MORNING FIRE

Springfield Fire Department Saves Gas and Oil Supplies When Building Burned

(Register Lane County Special) SPRINGFIELD, Ore., Dec. 2.—Fire believed to have started from an over-heated stove early today gutted the Springfield Battery and Electric company building, destroyed stock and equipment valued at $1000. Gasoline in an underground tank in front of the building and several barrels of oil were saved by fire-fighters. The flames were discovered shortly after 8 o'clock this morning by residents in the rear of the electric shop. An alarm was turned in to the Springfield fire department and the firemen responded at once. The blaze was extinguished before it had reached the front of the structure where the oil and gasoline supplies were kept. Stock and equipment valued by the owner, M. L. Rowley, at more than $1000 was either destroyed or damaged. The top part of the structure was almost completely destroyed only the walls remaining after fire fighters had managed to extinguish the flames. Insurance on the shop is said to have expired a short time ago. The building was one of the pioneer structures of Springfield. It stood for many years on Mill street where it was used by the Stewart family as a store in the early history of the town. Later it was moved from Mill street to Main street between Second and Third streets.

DAILY MARKET REPORT

(Oregon Journal Market Report)

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 2.—While quite heavy shipments of eggs are being made from the section to the Mid West and to the Atlantic Coast markets, the bulk of the supplies consists of storage eggs brought in from the coast and held here for shipping orders. There has been a most unusual desire on the part of interested parties to get their supplies out of the houses. Claim is made that government figures of holdings here, a government estimate of a desire on the part of those giving the information to force the market value to suit themselves. Leaders of the trade are practically unanimous in declaring that not only have they very little stock in ice houses but they know of no other dealer who retains more than a limited volume. Just who has the storage stocks is the big mystery in the market. Many are inclined to believe that the stocks exist only in imagination. No change in the price of fresh eggs was quoted on the dairy exchange but the secret cutting on the open market continues.

Butter Trading About Same

No change in the general trend of the butter trade indicated for the last 24 hours. Cube situation is still unsettled but offerings are moving out in sufficient volume to keep the market active. No change on the dairy exchange or for prints on the open market.

Chicken Call Is Very Good

Very good demand continues all through the live chicken trade. Reports are of a volume but local in the Hawaiian islands are taking care of more birds than normal. Dressed turkeys are normally quoted with a weak underbid.

Small Supply Fresh Halibut

A lucky purchase of a couple of tons of fresh halibut, a very late arrival from the North, enables the Portland trade to have some stock on hand to meet the needs of the Oregon Fish company. There is an acute scarcity of fresh salmon and most of the trade is in frozen stock.

Orange Prices Set Lower

Further shading of orange prices here has resulted in additional losses to wholesalers who are "stuck" with higher priced goods. Lemons are inclined to show strength in that market. Apples here is still quoting at recently low levels.

Eastern Cranberries Poor

Despite all claims to the contrary by those anxious to secure good profits on their sale, the eastern cranberries now being offered here at extreme prices are not as good as the locals offered for less money.

Brief Notes of Wholesale Trade

Bananas market firm with prices maintained generally. Decline of 10 gallon opened in turpentine according to W. P. Foster and company. Not markets very slow but prices show no change. Country-killed hogs and calves fully steady at late prices. Excellent sale southern sweet potatoes at 23 1/2 bushels. Fancy northwest hothouse cucumbers finding ready sale at $1.25 to $1.50 dozen.

For winter driving—change your oil. Image of a car with a large oil can on top.

IN winter your automobile requires a free-flowing oil, if it is to start quickly and be free from dangerous friction. All oils do not meet this requirement, but here again Zerolene proves one of its superiorities — it flows freely at low temperatures.
