SALES WINNERS NAMED

THREE WILL GO TO PORTLAND FOR COMPETITION

Merton B. Folts, Maurice Warnock, and John F. Davis First in Insurance Contest

Merton B. Folts, Maurice Warnock and John E. Davis, adjudged winners of the local life insurance sales contest held under the auspices of the business administration department of the university, will compete for first, second and third prizes in Portland Tuesday evening, before an audience composed of Oregon state managers and underwriters of life insurance.

The local contestants not winning a place in the Portland contest received Schaefer's pencils as a token of appreciation of their interest. The three who go to Portland will compete for the cash prizes, to be paid in gold as follows: first prize $27.50, second prize $22.50 and third, $20. In addition the winner will have his name engraved on the silver loving cup, the property of the school of business administration, presented by Oregon State Life Insurance company. Those who have had their names engraved on this cup before, symbolical of their receiving highest standing in that year's life insurance sales contest, are Dix Holaday, William Wesley Frater, Shirley B. Edwards and Ivan D. Houston.

The men competing last night and the life insurance companies they represented were: C. W. Heck, Union Central; J. K. Bailey, Equitable of New York; H. F. Crites, Sun Life of Canada; W. J. Owsley, Equitable of Iowa; J. R. Lowe, American Central; Gilbert Sussman, Old Line Bankers of Lincoln, Nebraska, and Merton B. Folts, Massachusetts Mutual.

The judges were David F. Faville, associate professor of business administration; Hugh F. Rosson, associate professor of English and law, and Robert Prescott, Eugene realtor.

The prospective buyers were Elmer Gunderson, county blacksmith; Walter W. Snyder, assistant professor of English; Harold Gray, a university student; W. B. Mikesell, local realtor; Peter Ermler, student and business man; Carl Vreeland, graduate student; Robert Callahan, owner of Callahan Furniture company and a radio expert. Clifford Arthur, manager of the College Side Inn, was to have been interviewed, but owing to a misunderstanding he did not appear in time; his place was taken by Robert Earl, district manager of Equitable Life Insurance company.

These contests are conducted under the direction of C. L. Kelley associate professor of business administration.

AMAZING!

That's what People Say About Our Prices—Read Every Word!

Our Address 32 West 7th Opposite the Dreamland Dance Hall and Moose Hall Look for the Electric Sign and Orange Front

Our prices are lower! This is not a mere advertising phrase! It's a positive fact. Our chain store organization was established some years ago, in the face of tremendous competition. We realized that we had to give people something besides just workingmen's clothing, to be successful. We decided on a policy of "LOWER PRICES"

This policy was rigidly adhered to. Today we are still offering prices that defy comparison. Customers voluntarily tell us they are actually amazed to find such unusually low prices! The result has been a tremendous business for this store. Our volume is as large as that of some stores four times the size of ours. It's natural for people to buy anything where they can get it for less money. It's false economy to pay more than our prices. Test our statements about our lowest prices by comparing the following values with others and you will find that not only are the savings immense, but the quality of the materials and workmanship is beyond question.

TIMBER TAX HELD UNJUST

DEAN OF FORESTRY SCHOOL FAVORS REVISION

Change of Policy of Taxation in Oregon Advocated as Economic Necessity

CORVALLIS, Ore., Dec. 3. — A revision in the policy of forest taxation in the state of Oregon is an economic necessity, G. W. Peavy, dean of the school of forestry at O. A. C. declared in a talk here Wednesday. The state of Oregon has accumulated several million acres of logged off and burnt over land which is suitable only for the growing of timber. The tax on such privately owned land is likely to be more than the profit which could be made from this land by growing timber, he indicated.

"If private owners of cut over forest land are to engage in the business of raising a new timber crop," explained Dean Peavy, "the state of Oregon must enact laws which will assess such forest lands upon the basis of its income producing capacity. Farm lands and other properties are valued for taxation on such a basis.

Timber Grows Slowly

"Under climatic conditions existing west of the Cascades, it requires from 50 to 75 years to grow trees to a reasonable saw timber size. The unfairness of the present policy of forest taxation may be illustrated by comparing the business of growing trees with that of growing corn. With favorable conditions corn matures in 90 days. The owner of corn land would hardly feel justified in devoting his property to growing corn if he knew in advance that he had to pay a tax on the full value of the crop every day of the growing period. Yet the timber grower who pays a tax on the full value of his timber every year for 60 years does virtually the same thing.

Tax Should Be Law

"It is my belief that many of the owners of cut over and burnt over land would be interested in starting crops of timber if they could be assured that their annual taxes would be fixed with some relationship to the final income of the property.

"Thousands of acres of forest land in Oregon should not be valued for taxation purposes at more than one or two dollars per acre because this land does not produce an income large enough to warrant a higher tax value."

MEAD'S REPORT GIVEN

DEFERMENT OF PAYMENTS HELD MAIN PROBLEM

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Consideration of requests of farmers on federal reclamation projects for deferment of payments due the government has constituted the most difficult and exacting duty of the commissioner of reclamation, Elwood Mead declared in his annual report to the secretary of the interior, made public tonight.

Of the thousands of such requests received, Dr. Mead reported, many were entitled to and received sympathetic consideration, but, he said, there were many requests from irrigators amply able to pay, from non-resident land owners whose farms are cultivated by tenants nad from those who openly opposed all payments to the government and these applications were refused.

RAIL HEARING MONDAY

RATES ON CANNED GOODS DECLARED UNJUST

(By The Associated Press)

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 3.—Examiner Flynn of the interstate commerce commission arrived here today to preside over a hearing here next Monday involving the Montana railway commission and the Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads.

The Montana commission complained to the federal body that the rates on canned goods favor Spokane jobbers in the Couer D' Alene district in Idaho. Rates between Missoula, Montana, and Seattle and Portland, also were attacked in the complaint.

Police Autos Will Protect Shoppers

A patrol of nine fast automobiles equipped with high-powered rifles and manned by expert marksmen, will be a feature of the special holiday protection program mapped for the shopping district in New York City. In addition to rifles and riot guns, they will carry signal rockets, team bombs and a short range radio to maintain communication with headquarters.

"SHINE" MONEY IS USED

JUNIORS TURN OVER $125 TO POLICE MATRON

Christmas Cheer to Be Given Needy Families; Largest Sum Turned In

The juniors of the university have turned over to Mrs. M. S. Ady, police matron, the sum of $125 which she says will be the largest part of her fund to furnish Christmas cheer to the needy of Eugene this year. The juniors held a "shine day" on the campus a short time ago, the men shining the shoes of the other students and the women "drumming" up trade for the shine stands.

The proceeds were intended as a Christmas fund for the unfortunate and it was decided to turn the money over to Mrs. Ady as her work is organized and she has a complete list of all families who are in need.

Mrs. Ady said yesterday that this is the largest sum she has yet received from the "shine day" activities.
