

A FARMER'S DOUBLE BUSINESS

A farmer must be a business man; he, too, must be a sales manager if he is to prosper.

A banker must know finance. But also must be positive about the economic status of his community; he should be able to point out to you the exact trend of business at any time or season.

The officials of the U. S. National Bank are experts in this secondary phase of banking. Ask their advice and they will give you direct, definite, sound facts that you can put into use. Their time and experience is yours if it will help you succeed.

If this service interests you we suggest you call. There will be no obligation.

K. CHRISTENSEN MAKES COMPLAINT TO COURT
New Road on East Side of S. P. Track not Completed and New Sidetrack Grade Blocks Him

K. Christensen, who lives on the east side of the Southern Pacific tracks opposite the terminal site, complained before the county court yesterday that owing to the fact that the new road known as the Hardy lane extension has not been completed and that the Southern Pacific company has thrown up the grade for the new tracks on the terminal site, he is unable to get out with a team or automobile.

The Hardy lane extension was established as a road to give the farmers in that locality an outlet but a bridge across the slough on that route has not yet been built and the grade has been completed in so soft that it cannot be used. On the west side of the main line track the grade of the new sidetracks precludes all travel in that direction, it was stated.

ALUMNI EDITOR RETURNS
MISS CALKINS SPENDS HOLIDAYS IN SAN FRANCISCO

Miss Jeanette Calkins, editor of "Old Oregon," an alumni secretary at the university, has returned from San Francisco where she spent the holidays. She visited on the Stanford and California campuses while there.

Miss Calkins was enthusiastic over the California-Stanford football game and the mild weather she encountered. "It was a marvelous game and a pageant of color. It seemed so funny after the cold homecoming game here to attend one at which the women wore short sleeved silk gowns and silk wraps. The sky was blue and with the eucalyptus trees showing above the bowl it was a beautiful sight. The bleacher struts were fine."
