

BANCROFT BONDS WILL BE SOLD TO PAY WARRANTS

City Recorder Has Extra Force at Work

TRANSCRIPTS ARE MADE

Property Owners Who Have Not Filled Application for Yearly Payments Rounded Up

Transcripts for the sale of Bancroft bonds on about 15 city improvement projects completed during the past few months are being prepared at the office of George A. Gilmara, city recorder, and arrangements will be made at once to sell bonds to cover these projects, the recorder said yesterday. Extra help is being employed in the office to expedite the work. One reason given for the city warrants being so far behind at the present time is the fact that Bancroft bonds have not been sold fast enough to take them up. The city recorder's office force is rushed at all times trying to keep up with the work and getting transcripts ready for the sale of bonds, but the public improvement projects have been so numerous that it has been found necessary to employ two or three extra stenographers to catch up with the work so that the bonds may be sold and some of the warrants taken up.

Property Owners Are Slow A great many property owners on street where improvements have been made are slow to file application to take advantage of the Bancroft act, which allows them to pay only a tenth of the cost of the improvement each year and this delays the sale of the bonds, it was stated. Mayor Lee, in an attempt to expedite the sale of the bonds, has employed two men who have hunted up a large number of these recalcitrant property owners and obtained their signatures to applications to "Bancroft."

HOME MEN FILL JOBS

NO OUTSIDE LABOR NEEDED IS REPORT

Men Flock Here From Different Parts of State Expecting to Find Employment

All the men needed for construction work in Eugene can be had at home, says F. L. Armistage, superintendent of the United States labor bureau here, in his report to the government for the past week on the local situation. He said yesterday that a large number of men are coming here from all parts of the state expecting to find work but that all the jobs are filled by home men. His report follows: "On account of the work on the terminal yards of the Southern Pacific here, people from other towns and the general moving east, plus are applying for jobs, but we have all the labor listed here in Eugene that we will need on this work this winter. Consequently there is no demand for outside labor."

"We have about 250 people working on terminal yards in various kinds of work, 200 white men and about 40 Mexicans. The last two or three days there have been a few laid off on account of lack of material, but this is only temporary and we expect to place more men on this work as soon as the material is on the ground. The logging camps and saw mills are operating at normal capacity with practically no turnover of labor."
