What Greater Praise

For a great Star's performance than given by The Moving Picture World critic, as follows:

"I can think of no one better qualified to cinematize 'Trelawney of the Wells' (which is what 'The Actress' used to be) than Norma Shearer. The period is excellently re-created, the acting is superb. I should catalogue it as One Of The More Substantial Things That Come From The Pacific Slope At This Or Any Season Of This Or Any Year."
