MARKET TREND UPWARD

HIGH MONEY RATES FAIL TO STEM PRICE MOVEMENT

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP)—High money rates again failed to stem the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. Which was featured by a brisk buying movement in General Motors, General Motors closed 6 5/8 points net higher at 186 1/2, on a turn-over of more than 300,000 shares with buying influenced in part by expectations of a substantial extra dividend at the August meeting of directors. Most of the other motors showed only fractional changes.
