The housewife cooks and washes dishes three times a day; The family sit at the same table in the same place and eat food prepared in the same way three times every day. For variety in your meals go to the Lee-Duke Cafe, 845 Willamette, for dinner some evening. Your choice of delicious foods, all served in the most appetizing manner in this lovely cool place. With a crisp cold salad, a refreshing drink and a delightful frozen dessert this warm weather won't matter half so much.

Summer seems to be the playtime for everyone but mother. Son is in camp most of the time daughter is in swimming, and dad plays golf or goes on fishing trips. But mother stays home and cooks and swelters in the heat. Cooking is bad enough but washing and especially the ironing is terrible. Summer could be mother's playtime too, if she would call 828 and let the New Service Laundry do her washing and ironing.

TENNIS DOUBLES PLAY INTERRUPTED BY RAIN

French Pair Leading When the Downpour Comes

YANKEE COUP MATCHED

Both Teams Spring Surprise by Sending in Different Doubles Paris to Courts

By THOMAS T. TOPPING

AUTEUIL, France, July 28.—(AP)—France and the United States, deadlocked thus far in play for the Davis cup, renewed their challenge round battle today with the important doubles match only to have play interrupted by rain after five games of the first set.

When the downpour came the French were leading by three games to two. The players will continue at 3 o'clock tomorrow from where they left off today. The two remaining singles matches in which Big Bill Tilden meets Henri Cochet and John Hennessey takes on Rene LaCoste, which were scheduled for tomorrow, were set over until Monday.

Both teams produced a big surprise by sending in different doubles pairs from those announced the day before. American strategy hit on the plan of using Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, the veteran combination, instead of John Hennessey and George Lott. But when the Americans took the court they found the French had matched strategem for strategem and had arrayed against them, not Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, whom this same pair beat in the Davis cup play of last year, but Cochet and Borotra.

Tilden and Hunter Hoaxed

Tilden and Hunter had felt quite certain of repeating their 1927 victory, principally by attempting to lob Brugnon out of the picture, but these tactics proved worse than futile against the combination they were called on, to their surprise, to face.

The match didn't go very far, but it went far enough to indicate clearly that lobbing tactics against such volleyers as Cochet and the bounding Basque are little short of suicidal. In the very first game Cochet smothered three short lobs for kills.

There were two service breaks, one for each side. Hunter's and Borotra's being the ones cracked. As Tilden's service is next in order when play is resumed and as Big Bill usually can be depended on to pull it out, the match is very close to even terms at this stage despite the French lead of three to two in games.

Americans, seeing the bright side of the rain clouds, regarded more hopefully their chances of capturing the cup as a result of the postponement since it gives Tilden another full day's rest.

HOT SPELL DISSIPATED

TEMPERATURRE LOWERED BY COOLING OCEAN BREEZES

PORTLAND, Ore., July 27 —(AP)—Cooling breezes from the ocean rapidly dissipated today the hot pocket of air which has overlaid the Pacific Northwest for nearly a week. The temperature reached 84 degrees at 4 p. m., ten degrees under the mark registered Thursday during the close of the longest period of consecutive hot days on record here.

The break inth e hot spell was the result of a well-defined high pressure area moving toward the coast, giving relief to the northwest with a strong movement of cool air. The southwest winds brought in clouds from the ocean and produced conditions which, according to the weather bureau, may cause light showers. Restoration of normal temperatures and variable winds were predicted.

ROUND UP WILD HORSES

VIRGINIA FISHERMEN HERD SPANISH PONIES

CHINCOTEAGUE ISLAND, Va. —(AP)—The fictitious horse marine becomes an actual reality here each summer when Virginia fishermen, wearing their deep-sea boots, hold their annual roundup of wild horses on Chincoteague and Assateague islands.

The wiry little ponies, said to be descendants of Spanish cavalry horses cast ashore after a wreck 200 years ago, live in the marsh lands of the coast and subsist on wild forage throughout the year. The penning and branding of the animals in the summer months is the occasion of an annual festivity attended by visitors from all sections of the east. A highway of white shell construction permits easy access by automobiles.

For many years it has been the custom of Virginia's governor to attend the roundup. This year Gov. Harry F. Byrd is the guest of honor at the barbecue, oyster roast and athletic games held in conjunction with the roundup.

Departure of the athletes from the stadium was more informal than their entrance. They waved hats and handkerchiefs to friends in the grandstands Close national friendships were indicated by applause as each team marched past the others on the way out.

The Americans applauded the British, particularly Canada and Ireland. The Egyptians cheered the Turks, the Czechs cheered the Jugoslavs and other middle Europeans and the Dutch cheered the South Africans, many of whom are Boers.

FORTUNA, Cal., July 28.—(AP)—For the first time since leaving Washington, Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, went out of the lines of telephone and telegraph communication tonight when he headed an automobile party into Bull Flat on the Eel river, 31 miles south of here.

The nearest telephone was at Dyerville, 24 miles south, but the station closed at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The scores of newspaper correspondents and photographers who made up the party were with Mr. Hoover at his camp tonight, but unable to communicate with the outside world.

The party will motor back to Dyerville and continue the journey north on Sunday morning.

EDITOR WHITE DIGS UP SMITH'S RECORD

who in the days of his youth sweat dimes from the poor through those that prey upon the poor —the saloon keeper, the tout and the prostitute.

"This record is, of course an old record of a young man, but the young man rose on this record, and today the issue is formed upon the elements that made this old record —the return of the saloon, which Governor Smith as a young man defended so ably, so consistently, so loyally. But the Tammany system goes on today as it went on 100 years ago, and indeed it will go on in all of our American cities unless Governor Smith and the sinister forces behind him are overthrown. Tammany is indeed Tammany, and Smith is its major prophet."

veranda for a rest he called to the newspapermen and others to join him.

In a small room where for half an hour three men were kept on the jump serving ginger ale, soda water, cigars and sandwiches, Smith was master of ceremonies urging everybody to have a cooling drink on him.

"Don't take any money from these men," he told the proprietor, "I'm running for alderman and I need their votes."

As he sipped iced soda water and puffed a cigar, the governor pulled from his pocket a five dollar bill given to him just before he left the Biltmore by two girls who said they had hiked from Houston, Texas, to make that contribution to his campaign fund.

Smith, it developed, had accepted the bill on which the girls had written their names and in exchange he had given them another one with the suggestion they turn it over to the treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

When he reached the beach, the governor found a crowd of youngsters in swimming and a small battalion of camera men waiting for him. He showed them that he could really swim.

Walking into the still salt water, Smith started out with an overhand stroke when he was in water of swimming depth, and later turned a few somersaults in the water. Finally he made his way out to a float, pulling up there to join a number of adventurous youngsters who had gone out that far.

FIRE AT INSANE ASYLUM

NASHVILLE HOSPITAL DAMAGE PLACED AT $250,000

Water System Destroyed and 15 Inmates Escape During Confusion of Fire-Fighting

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 27 —(AP)—Fire that caused approximately $250,000 damage to the administration building of the Central State hospital for the insane today, destroyed the water system of the institulon and imperiled the lives of many inmates.

Officials were concentrating their efforts on providing a water supply for the hospital, while guards were watching the familiar haunts of 15 inmates who have eluded searchers after escaping in the confusion that accompanied the fire.

Hospital authorities were not concerned over the escape of the inmates, only two of whom, confined for murder, were described as bad actors." Early captures are expected.

One of the most serious features of the fire was the destruction of records containing identification and case history of all inmates.

Defective Wiring Blamed

The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring. When the blaze broke out attendants herded the more than 1200 inmates onto the hospital lawn, fearing that the dormitories might catch fire. As firemen, handcapped by the damaged hospital water system, struggled with the flames, most of the inmates stood quietly watching the spectacle. Only 15 escaped, three were found soon after.

Definite figures on the loss were not available, but it was indicated that the quarter million figure would not be far from correct. The state carries its own insurance fund, which, however, is not believed to exceed $125,000 at present.

Being the Twenty-Third and Continuation of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment of Them

DO YOU PAY YOUR BILLS?

Dead-Beats and Thieves

"Do You Pay Your Bills?" The question is a pertinent one, but we have a right to know.

We judge you by the way you pay. We size you up—we gauge your value to the community in which you live by the way you square your accounts.

By experience we have learned that DEAD-BEATS are not good citizens. We don't care to harbor you if you are ready to seek refuge in the bankrupt court.

We don't care to have you mingle with us and contaminate our children if you don't play the game square.

We prefer to live with gentlemen!

When seeking the company of crooks and thieves, we will go behind the prison walls. But on the outside we expect to find honest men, honest women, and men and women with character enough to pay their honest obligations.

A coward shuns responsibilities and sidesteps his obligations.

A thief purloins those things which belong to another, whether by force, misrepresentations or PLAIN, BAREFACE LYING.

A DEAD-BEAT IS BOTH A COWARD AND A THIEF. He sidesteps his responsibilities and obtains merchandise that he has no right to by lying.

You know yourself better than anyone else — WHAT ARE YOU?

If you're a DEAD-BEAT by nature, there's [no] help for you.

If you're a DEAD-BEAT by accident, there [is] help.

But to make it easier—and give you the benefit [of] the doubt, WE'LL SHOW YOU THE WAY.

A Way Out

If you have become "mired" in the DEAD-BEAT PUDDLE and want to get out—really GET OUT—there's a way.

But first of all you must undestand that the "[get]ting out" route is no macadam road. It's hard, [full] of pitfalls, and narrow.

You can get help—and you can get guidance.

Figure up the amount you owe. See the men [you] owe. Go to them—meet them face to face—and [tell] them of your condition. Tell them what you can [pay] —and do enough. Don't expect them to do it [all]. They'll meet you half way. If you expect them to [go] farther you'll be disappointed. It's only their generosity that prompts them to meet you "fifty-fifty." They don't have to—but they are willing.

If you're sinking—you had better strike out and swim, or you'll go over the dam, as sure as fate.
