Mr. Tharp was in town Sunday with general passenger agent A. C. Eagan, of the O. W. R. & N. He is connected with the European horse buyers with his headquarters at the Bend and states they are willing to do business at the right prices and want the average size horse, with the exception of white. The average life of an army horse is nine days.

The traveling public library is now open to the people of this section. Anyone wishing a book inquire of postmaster Talcot. After the book is out two weeks, two cents per day will be charged.

Christmas goods. Large assortment to choose from. Our store your holiday headquarters. W. H. Staats & Co.

Roy Slusher, Bates Shattuck and wives, went on a days outing Sunday, several miles up Wapinitia canyon scouting for Christmas trees. Bates spied some speckled beauties in the Deschutes and forgot the tree party; the three kept bravely on climbing over ledges until they found a perfect tree, which Roy proceeded to cut down with his pocket knife. Returning to camp they found a bounteous dinner awaiting them. Everything on the menu, but trout. Chef Shattuck has been pronounced a good camp tender, by all of the party excepting himself.

Life is a stage upon which is thrown a minute spot light.

If you don't like this town it has good transportation facilities.

The home talent play, put on by Billy Canton will be played here next Tuesday evening. A free dante after the show.

A new disease has been discovered called gossip-phobia. The tongue is found to be so affected in some cases, that it continues the perpetual motion, after the patient is dead. No cure has as yet been found.

Holiday Suggestions For Us

Some merchants are so all-fired dumb, you wonder how they ever come to sell the stuff they have in store, and keep the sheriff from the door. Old Binkson is a lot that way; he seldom has a word to say. I ask him for a pound of lime; he wraps it up and all the time, he wears a tragic air of doom, and sheds an atmosphere of gloom. He never chats he never spels, nor jumps up high and cracks his heels. He isn't gruchy or unstrung; he never learned to wag his tongue. Oh silence is a golden thing, when tisn't worked too hard by jing. But none of us will stand up strong for men that gabble all day long, and elocute a thousand miles in fifty-seven varied styles. The dealer who is prone to talk until you hear him round the block, is worse than t'other kind of bird, who's never known to spring a word. But if you've scantling you would sell, you ought to boost it wisely well and if a gent should buy a plank, to build himself a dipping tank, you might suggest ere home he speeds, that you have other things he needs. I called on Lumber Dealer Gaff, to buy a shingle and a half. He put my purchase in a sack, and wrapped a string around and back, and as he toiled in manner gay, he talked to pass the time away. "The farmers in busy troops are building stately chicken coops; the winter soon will hit the road, and hens must have a warm abode, or they won't lay their lucious eggs, but stand around on frozen legs." And that recalled the fact to me that I had hens some ninety-three, and ere I left that lumber store, I bought a wagon load or more, of stuff to build a chicken shed; its standing now all painted red. And that's the way big sales are made, and that is how men build up trade. Talk corn cribs at the proper time, or prove a silo is sublime, but in an incidental strain, and not as though you'd gladly sprain your conscience—which I hope is hale—in eagerness to get the kale. Suggestion is a noble art; the wise man gets it down by heart.

E. A. Chandle returned from Puget Sound last week, bringing home with him a bride. They will make their future home on his homestead in Criterion.

Fight with your neighbors, knock your town, peddle gossip, pinch the nickel and frown, at every newcomer who happens 'round. Do this and some day your anvil chorus will put you in the judgment seat, to listen to a verdict of the jury, who are giving their town proper protection.

Hot drinks, the kind that's good at Styer's. Anything you like. Try them.

Religion in Mexico has lost it powerful grasp upon the people. The imagination of the peons are suffering from years of delusion. His superiors are fleeing and illiteracy reigns. A boomerang in decisive action.

A crippled horse was left to starve in a vacant lot near the Hunts Ferry ware house, but thanks to Mr. Doty's timely assistance it still lives.

Mrs. E. A. Mayhew is on the sick list this week. Have a cold?

Death of James Donaldson

James Donaldson, died at his home in Dufur, Saturday morning, of stomach trouble, at the age of 66 years. He was born in Ireland, coming to Oregon, several years ago.

He is survived by one daughter, Ella, of Portland, and three sons, William, of Kingsly, David and John, of Maupin.

Funeral services were held at 1:00 p. m. Sunday, in the Dufur M. E. church. Rev. Pepperton officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the Kingsly cemetery. The bereaved have the sympathy of Wasco county.

Fresh Oysters can be ordered through E. J. Styer for the holidays.

Miss Fisher, teacher in the Wapinitia public schools, visited her parents over Sunday.

Dr. C. H. Francis and wife contemplate building a home.

W. H. Staats and Dr. Francis, went to Wapinitia to visit among the good people of that section and pronounce the country progressing. Peter Kilberg went along.
