City of Grand Turk

WHATEVER may be the fate of the Ottoman empire as a result of the great war, it is probable that in the years to come Constantinople will become much more familiar to world travelers than it has been in the past, because it will be more accessible. Always it has been a fascinating place, but the more timid travelers have avoided it.

The capital of the sultan of Turkey is unique among the cities of the world. It is superbly situated on the shores of the Sea of Marmora and the waters of the Golden Horn separate the old Moslem quarter of Stamboul from the modern European section known as Pera, which lies upon the hill opposite, above the peninsula of Galata, which is connected with Stamboul by the famous Galata bridge. The third portion of Constantinople is the typical little Moslem town of Scutari in Asia, on the opposite shore of the Bosphorus, which is of little importance commercially, and which really hardly constitutes a portion of the city, being reached only by ferries-boats which ply to and fro across the Bosphorus at certain intervals.

Constantinople is the chief commercial center of the Levant, but has had railroad communication with the rest of Europe only since 1888.

Walls Centuries Old.
 The city is surrounded by water on all sides, except to the west, where the old double ancient walls extend entirely across the promontory. A wall which still remains standing in many places after more than fifteen centuries was built at the time of Constantine the Great. It extends from the famous Seven Towers across the isthmus to the Sea of Marmora and the waters of the Golden Horn. Seraglio Point, with its domes and minarets, its hill crowned with dark cypress, is the first part of the city seen on arriving and the last glimpse caught of "the city washed by four seas."

STREET SCENE IN PERA

 Seraglio means inclosure, and the sultan's seraglio includes vast gardens and the lovely oriental kiosks of Techinli, said to have been erected in the reign of Mohammed the Conqueror and restored by Murad III. It is situated in the lower part of the grounds under the hill and has a lovely pillared portico, domed corridors gay with gilded ornamentation and walls lined with exquisite blue Persian tiles. Its doors are of ancient bronze, inlaid with mother of pearl, and the whole palace speaks eloquently of the bizarre effect delighted in by all Orientals.

Constantinople is full of imperial residences. The new palace of Beyerbey, situated on the Asiatic side of the lovely Strait of Bosphorus, is magnificent. It is used chiefly as a summer residence, or as a sumptuously furnished dwelling, which the Sublime Porte has ready for any royal guests who may visit him in Constantinople. The present sultan, Mohammed V, like his brother and predecessor, Abdul Hamid II, resides in the splendid Fildiz Kiosk, his palace on the Galata side of the Golden Horn, opposite Seraglio point. The kiosk is situated on a lovely wooded hill above the Bosphorus and is surrounded with barracks. It is a miniature city in itself, containing many buildings, among which is a white marble mosque, in which the sultan performs his devotions without being under the necessity of leaving his palace grounds.

FEEL WAR'S EFFECTS

Manufacturers of Gas Mantles Are Hurt.

Thorium, Most Essential Part of the Composition, Comes From Germany, and the Supply Is Shut Off by Conflict.
 Thorium, an essential constituent of gas mantles, comes principally from Germany. The supply has now been cut off, and the Scientific American foresees serious difficulty in the making of mantles as soon as the present stocks of this rare earth are exhausted. The condition the manufacturers have to face is shown by the fact that they are now trying to have consumers save the ash from broken and burned-out mantles, as the thorium is not destroyed by burning and can be reclaimed from the ashes.

In the meantime the manufacturers of incandescent electric lights are making large quantities of tungsten lamps in order that, should the gas mantles be obtainable no longer, they may seize the opportunity to substitute electricity for gas.

PITTSBURG WITHOUT THE "H"

Was So Written by General Forbes, Who Christened the Now Famous City.

Under date of November 26, 1758, the earliest known use of the name of Pittsburgh occurred in a letter from General Forbes to Governor Denny of Pennsylvania, in which he told of the triumph of the British in the West, written the day of taking possession of "Fort Duquesne, now called Pittsburgh," very properly omitting the "h," he having christened the place and feeling that he knew how to indite the name of his own immortal progeny. Historian Bancroft says of that red-letter day: "The little army moved on in one body, and at evening (November 26) the youthful hero, Washington, could point out to General Armstrong, who marched at the front of his Provincials, to the Highlanders, the Royal Americans, and to Forbes himself, the meeting of the rivers. Armstrong's own hand raised the British flag on the ruined bastions of the fortress. As the banner floated over the waters the place, at the suggestion of Forbes, was with one voice called Pittsburgh. It is the most lasting monument to William Pitt. America raised to his name statues that have been wrongfully broken, and granite piles of which not one stone remains upon another, but so long as the Allegheny and Monongahela shall flow to form the Ohio, so long as the English tongue shall be the language of freedom in the boundless valley which their waters traverse, his name shall stand inscribed on the 'Gateway of the West.'"

Napoleon's Tax on Tobacco.
 Napoleon tried to smoke once, and then, with dire results, instituted the French tobacco monopoly, which the German government now proposes to adopt, so far as cigarettes are concerned.

At a court reception held early in 1810 the emperor remarked a lady wearing jewels of such magnificence that he inquired how her husband made his money. "He is a tobacco merchant," was the reply, which led him to seek further information as to such a profitable business. Before the year expired Napoleon issued a decree restricting the sale and manufacture of tobacco exclusively to the state. It has remained a monopoly ever since, and for many years past has brought in an annual revenue of over £16,000,000.

Bible and New Zealand Schools.
 The New Zealand government has introduced into the house of representatives of that colony a bill to provide for a referendum vote at the next parliament election to determine whether the Bible shall be read in the public schools under the supervision of teachers, but without sectarian teaching, and whether provision shall be made during school hours for religious instruction by a minister or his substitute, to be chosen by the parent. If the bill, which has received the endorsement of the government, shall pass, it will be submitted to the voters at the next election and the result will be laid before parliament at the opening session of 1915.—The Living Church.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, the heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is which contains no dangerous narcotics or alcohol.

 It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fever; for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing.
 In liquid or tablet form at most drug stores or send 50 one-cent stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalid Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Read Chapter VII on Circulatory Organs in the "Medical Advice"—A French cloth-bound book of 1008 pages sent on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps, address as above.

Liquor men have a substitute for prohibition. Perhaps they would only substitute whisky for "patent medicine" and crowing.

Turning the Tables.
 "Please, ma'am, your dog has killed three of father's prize fowls," said the small boy.
 "Oh, I'm sure my Fido would never do such a thing," said the old lady.
 "But father saw one of the chickens in his mouth," said the boy.
 "Purely circumstantial evidence," she snapped, and the boy departed.
 Some time later he returned.

Heavy.
 "Oh, dear," groaned the young wife, "I don't know what to use to raise my bread. I've tried everything."

Most Skin Trouble Readily Overcome

The Active Principle of a Famous Remedy Works Wonders.

Many people have marveled the way S. S. S. overcomes skin troubles. The explanation is the fact that S. S. S. works in the blood and the blood is really a most intricate and extraordinary mass of arteries and veins.
 When you come to realize that the skin and the flesh beneath are composed of a network of tiny blood vessels you solve the mystery.
 There are wonderful medicinal properties in S. S. S. that follow the course of the blood streams just as naturally as the most nourishing food elements.
 It is really a remarkable remedy. It contains one ingredient, the active purpose of which is to stimulate the tissues to the healthy selection of its own essential nutriment. And the medicinal elements of this matchless blood purifier are just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritious elements of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food.
 Not one drop of mineral or drug if used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and just insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice and counsel upon any matter concerning the blood and skin, write to the Medical Department, The S. S. S. Co., 529 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
 Do not allow some zealous clerk's eloquence over something just as good as S. S. S. to fool you with the same old mineral drugs. Beware of all substitutes. Insist upon S. S. S.

A Rebuke.
 "Mary followed Edward," mumbled the high-school girl, who was trying to fix the sovereigns of England in her mind.
 "What's that?" spoke up grandma, who had been dozing.
 "Mary followed Edward."
 "Then you keep away from Mary. I don't want you to go with them kind. Girls is getting too bold."—Louisville Courier Journal.
