Oil in Abundance

George A. Beavis of the Beavis-May Oil Co. was in the city today and stated that oil in quantities from six to 10 barrels a day is flowing into the well which is being drilled near Dufur. The well is being recased and in the progress of this work it was necessary to pull up some of the old casing. The oil is so thick that the casing removed from the well is covered with oil, which can be scraped off. Mr. Beavis stated that the present quantity of oil practically assures that a much larger flow will be struck when drilling is resumed in the near future.

Moro, Oregon, before she returns.

Mrs. Hull of Smock is with the family of J. T. Harper at Whispering Piers. Tygh people are glad to see Mrs. Hull.

Tygh people are glad to see Miss McKay again. She has been in Portland for a few weeks but has returned to keep house for her nephew, Dr. Shannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Mays and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bolton of The Dalles spent several days in Tygh Valley. All have returned home now. Mr. Bolton was very sick while here but was much improved at the time of departure.

Now is the time to put up Fruit. While your wife is busy putting up fruit for the family to eat this winter, why don't you get busy and do the same thing for your stock. Tum-A-Lum Silos are to stock what the Mason fruit jar is to the human being.

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are designed to use just ordinary lumber carried in stock at our lumber yards. "TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are anchored by foundation bolts against the hardest winds blowing when the silo is empty—(We use no guy wires).

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are built all of wood and the expansion is the same throughout (We use no hoops).

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" have double walls with air space between which actually prevented frozen ensilage last winter. (Other silos with only one wall held frozen ensilage).

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are recommended by the U. S. Govt., (see Bulletin 589), by Washington State College, (see Bulletin 45), by Oregon Agricultural College (see Bulletin 136) and by scores of practical farmers above all single wall silos for this hot dry climate.

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are just buildings—they cost less than other silos (there being no patents or royalties to pay for).

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are built from our FREE COMPLETE PLANS.

"TUM-A-LUM SILOS" are furnished with all lumber, cement, paint, hardware—required—material is complete, except the sand and gravel for the foundation.
