NATIVE BOY PASSES AWAY

J. C. Ayres Well Liked

(Smoek)

Jesse Ayres died April 20th of measles and pneumonia at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ayres, after an illness of only a few days, during which time he was a great sufferer. All possible was done by loved ones and the brother I. O. F., of which he recently became a member, to relieve him, but to no avail. He contracted measles while at Portland, taking Civil Service examination. He and brother Harry attended school at Tygh Valley during the winter, where they gained highest esteem of Tygh Valley people, many of whom attended the funeral. He was about 22 years of age. Knowing that the end was near, he conversed with the loved ones telling them of the beauties of the place beyond, describing what he had seen in part, told them that this life was not all, and commanded them not to grieve for all was well with him. He was laid at rest in Four Corners cemetery, the services being conducted by the I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs. The floral pieces were beautiful, cut flowers from The Dalles as well as many others; the grave was a mound of tributes of bloom. He leaves to mourn, father, mother, three sisters, three brothers, many relatives and hosts of friends.

You Will Never Go Back To Wheat Sacks

There is a better way to handle wheat than in sacks. Only three places handle wheat in sacks — Argentine, Australia and the Pacific Northwest. The governments of Argentine and Australia are putting in the bulk system, and the war price on sacks are doing the same thing here.

Save The Price of Sacks Every Year.

Here's How

Bulk System, 1 year only	Cost of sacks to be paid every year at 14 1-2 cents
Turn the hogs into the stubble as soon as you are through threshing.
T-A-L 1000 bu. portable grain bin
Type 1	$46.00
Type 2	$38.00
A new 1500 bu. Low-Down portable granary now ready—ask for prices.
T-A-L 5000 bu. Stationary granary
Level Ground Type	$282.00
Side Hill Type	$272.00

The Proper Place to Store Your Grain is on the Farm

And if you are thinking of an elevator at the track, we are now designing and building many track elevators of from 15,000 bushels up to 100,000 bushels, and can furnish complete plans and guaranteed costs.

Rapidly fluctuating prices on material make it impossible to protect above prices for any length of time.

We hear a lot of talk now about concrete elevators—Let's see if there is any economy in concrete elevators—Take a 60,000 bushel track elevator costing in timber construction not to exceed $7,000.00 fully equipped with most expensive machinery—and costing in concrete at least $20,000.00—the increased investment at 8 per cent would be $1040.00 yearly.

Say you carried no insurance on the concrete elevator, and the insurance on the timber elevator fully insured at $1.75 per $100 would be 60,000 bushels $0.70 insured for 6 months—$367.00, $7000.00 building for 12 months at $1.75, or $122.00, or a total of $489.00 yearly insurance on timber against $1040.00 yearly interest on increased investment of concrete—a saving of about $551.00 yearly by having a timber elevator—and you are fully insured.

There is only a limited amount of elevator timber in this country—it's being used up now. Every day sees another community adopt the bulk system of handling grain.
