Probably never before have such sweeping powers been concentrated as now granted Herr von Battocki, the new food dictator. Various counselors will be assigned to him, representing agriculture, industry, trade, the mili-tary and the consumers, and the repre-sentatives of the federal states and associations connected with the war will aid him. Final decision on all questions, however, rests solely in Herr von Battacki's hands. The regulations of the federal council will not be affected by the appointment of the dictator, but in case of pressing necessity the dictator is em-
