MAUPIN SOUTHERN WASCO COUNTY, OREGON, FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1917

THE YEAR $1.50

Water Report

The irrigation water has flowed from the upper to the lower end of the flat and is now flowing into the Deschutes river. The company's representatives have divided the flow and now have diverted half of the stream toward F. Batty's, Ira Gresham's and George Claymire's properties. The general demand for water is most gratifying and encouraging and the farmers are jubilant.

It is a sight for sore eyes and sour stomachs to see tank wagons lined up filling their buckets with the God-given waters of Clear lake and the perpetual glaciers of the upper Cascades. Cattle, pigs, chickens and wild ducks are all rejoicing over the flat.

N. C. Heddin, financial representative of the company, now estimates that the demand for water will exceed the supply if the present spirited interest is continued.

Engineer William Hickey was hurriedly called to Portland Monday, having received a telephone communication of the death of his brother at Boring, near Portland. Chas. Hickey, son of the engineer, will take charge of the crew while his father is away.

Mr. Staats and family, Mr. Slusher and wife were among the great number of auto parties that visited the irrigation works Sunday.

Mr. Bruner butchered and peddled out another fine beef Monday.

Say, did the small boys charivari Mr. and Mrs. Joe Graham? No, they were so busy swimming in D. Woodside's pools that they missed the ample treats that Joe paid for.

The Wapinitia Irrigation Co. has doubled decked the Miller bridge.

All farmers and merchants and others interested in the Harvest celebration are requested to meet at the home of D. Woodside at Wapinitia on Saturday night, August 11, to discuss ways and means for the celebration. The exact time, place, plan and extent of the "blow-out" will be the topic for discussion.

Let's all join in putting Wapinitia Plains really on the map. Let's compel the gods of the state to sit up and take notice of our day. "Come in, the water's fine."

Wapinitia Items

The McCorkle Bros. had quite a fire at their threshing machine Monday afternoon. A small fire was discovered under the derrick table, which they succeeded in putting out, or thought was out, and went on to work, but in a few minutes it broke out again in several places. The derrick table and wagon, a derrick fork, some cables and rope and about 150 bushel of grain were burned, and it was by hard work, they succeeded in saving the separator, as a hard west wind was blowing.

The veterinary of Maupin was called Saturday to the home of Mr. Osborne to see a cow which was crazy. The disease was pronounced rabies, from which she died Sunday. This is the second cow in this vicinity to die from it. O. L. Walters lost one a few days ago. J. P. Abbott has lost several more head of hogs lately.
